Democrats Will Help Elect Him, Dewey Says

Addresses GOP Committee After Rep. Hugh Scott Is Named Chairman

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 26.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey confidently predicted here today that the Republican Party would be joined by millions of Democrats and independents next November to give the Nation a new administration.

The GOP standard bearer addressed the new Republican National Committee shortly after the formal selection of Representative Hugh D. Scott, a comparatively unknown Philadelphia Congressman, as national chairman of the party.

Scott, a veteran of World War II, was elected new chairman of the committee after his selection had been approved by the party's presidential and vice presidential nominees.

The vital task of steering the party through its campaign this year, however, will be entrusted to Herbert Brownell, jr., veteran Dewey aide, Scott announced.

Scott "Surprised"

A member of Congress since 1940 and GOP nominee to succeed himself, Scott said his present plans were to keep his congressional seat in addition to assuming the unpaid job as GOP National Committee Chairman.

Scott, who said his selection came as "a complete surprise" for a post to which he had never aspired, faced a rough going-over in a press conference following the committee meeting.

Newsmen asked if his selection had been made as a reward to Joseph R. Grundy, longtime potent Republican power in Pennsylvania. They also asked if it were true that "the price" of the withdrawal of Senator Edward Martin as favorite son candidate for the Presidency—a move which pushed the Dewey bandwagon into high gear here—was the naming of a national committee chairman from Pennsylvania.

Scott parried all questions. He flatly denied having seen Martin in regard to the chairmanship, and added that the Pennsylvania Senator "is a very good friend of mine."

Bid for Votes Seen

A number of others had been mentioned for the politically potent post, which is, of course, far less important when it is divorced from the campaign chairmanship.

Many observers here believed the selection of Scott was as much to help cinch Pennsylvania's votes in the coming election as to compliment the State for delivering 40 of its 73 convention votes to Dewey on the first ballot.

Dewey was in high good humor when he, together with Mrs. Dewey and Vice Presidential Nominee Earl Warren, appeared before the GOP National Committee today.

Just before Scott was introduced to the committee, Governor and Mrs. Dewey and Governor Warren established an informal receiving

AFL Won't Back Dewey, Green Says

But Teamsters Union Says It 'Does Not' Share His Views

By The Associated Press

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday it will "never" support the new Republican presidential ticket of Thomas E. Dewey and Earl Warren.

But one AFL union, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, promptly rushed in to say that Green was not speaking for it.

The teamsters union "does not share Mr. Green's views on this matter," declared Lester M. Hunt, director of public relations for the union, which has headquarters at Indianapolis.

Green Sees Truman

Green's announcement was made to reporters at the White House after he had had a 15-minute chat with President Truman.

Whether the AFL might support Mr. Truman if he wins the Democratic nomination, was left an open question.

Green, a registered Democrat, didn't say.

But he did express the opinion that the Republicans "certainly won't get much labor support."

Tobin Leaves Way Open

Green added that Labor's League for Political Education, the AFL political adjunct, "will never support the Dewey-Warren ticket."

Only once before, in 1924 when it supported Robert M. LaFollette on a third party ticket, has the AFL been committed politically as an organization.

Daniel Tobin, president of the teamsters union, has left the way open for both the Democrats and the Republicans to seek the support of the union's one million claimed members. He said the union won't decide its political course of action until sometime later in the campaign.

Several times a delegate to Democratic national conventions, Tobin won't go this year because he explained, he is "too busy."

But he denied he has quit the party, and said he has neither opposed nor indorsed any major party candidate.

Man, 76, Just 'Too Old' For Free Paris Vacation

St. Albans, England, June 26 (U.P.).—William Spencer Attwood, 76, has put his vacation up for sale.

Attwood won a prize of a week's holiday in Paris at a theater recently. He offered it for sale yesterday for $60.

"At 76, I'm too old," he said. "If I were 50 years younger, I could enjoy myself in Paris."

Law Questioned

Eisenhower Supporter Is Arrested

There's no law in the District against passing out political handbills, but an Eisenhower-for-President booster was lugged to the pokey yesterday and charged with just that.

Police officials later admitted distribution of such handbills is no violation of the law. In fact, they dug up a general order of 1941 which specifically said such activity was lawful.

And if there's any further argument: The Supreme Court in 1941 ruled unconstitutional local ordinances which banned distribution of political handbills.

Arrested, at 13th and F sts. nw., was Jack Kutner, 47, of 1208 Evarts st. ne., a business agent for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. He is a volunteer worker for the Veterans for Eisenhower Committee.

The incident added a little bit of zest to the last-minute hoop-la over Washington's Democratic primary election to be held tomorrow.

The arrest was made by Pvt. Alexander Siegal of the traffic division. Siegal said he warned Kutner once to stop handing out the handbills because they were cluttering up the street when passersby threw them down.

Siegal said when Kutner continued to hand out the bills he called a scout car and had him taken to the First Precinct where he charged him with distributing handbills.

Informed that it was legal to pass out such handbills, Siegal said he arrested Kutner because he didn't see that the thrown

Scott Nominated In North Carolina Governor Race

Raleigh, N. C., June 26 (AP).—W. Kerr Scott swept to a decisive victory over Charles M. Johnson in today's runoff primary for the Democratic nomination as Governor.

Johnson, State treasurer, conceded shortly after 9 p. m. tonight that he had been defeated by Scott.

At the time, Scott was leading by some 30,000 votes with more than three-fourths of the State's precincts reported.

The tabulation in 1590 of 1952 precincts gave Scott 188,902 votes, Johnson 158,370.

In the Seventh District Congressional race, the only other contest of Statewide interest, F. Ertell Carlyle took the lead over Hargrove Bellamy.

Army to Gird 18 Divisions By End of '49

6 Guard Outfits Will Support 12 Infantry and Armored Units

Norfolk, Va., June 26 (AP).—Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall said today a mobile striking force of 18 infantry and armored divisions is planned for the Army by 1949.

Royall said the divisions, six of which would be national guard divisions, would be fully manned and equipped.

The Cabinet member disclosed the Army's plans in a commencement address at the Armed Forces Staff College here.

6 National Guard Divisions

Royall said the national guard divisions will be the Twenty-sixth in Massachusetts, the Twenty-eighth in Pennsylvania, the Thirty-first in Alabama and Mississippi, the Forty-third in Connecticut, Vermont and Rhode Island, the Forty-fifth in Oklahoma and the Forty-ninth Armored in Texas.

"We have been forced by circumstances—by bitter actualities—to spend a substantial part of our national effort on the expansion of our armed forces," Royall said. "We had no alternative other than to take a dangerous chance as to the survival of our Nation, its form of government and its way of life.

"It is our duty to see that the money—and above all the men—which America has entrusted to our care are not wasted . . .

"By the end of 1949 we expect to have a mobile striking force of 12 complete Regular Army divisions and six National Guard divisions, with the organized reserve supplying necessary service support units for the Guard.

"These 18 divisions are to be fully trained as promptly as possible. They are to be equipped and weaponed to the maximum extent permitted by available supplies. Our plan contemplates a striking force ready to go into immediate action in case of emergency, and this force will be the nucleus of the new army.

"The 12 regular divisions of full strength will double our present mobile force. Six of these regular divisions will be in the United States. There will be the Eighty-second Airborne Division of Fort Bragg, N. C., the only domestic division now anywhere near full strength.

To Full Strength

"The Second Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Wash., and the Second Armored Division at Camp Hood, Tex., each of them now at about one-third strength, and the Third Infantry Division at Fort Benning, Ga., now just a headquarters—all of these will be brought to full strength. A brand new infantry division, the Eighth will be at Camp Campbell, Ky. Another airborne division will also be organized. Its station has not yet been determined."

Later, a reporter asked Royall whether Russian research in bacteriological weapons might prove "an answer to the atom bomb."

"There is nothing in germ warfare that would affect the armed forces setup here in the foreseeable future," Royall replied.

Stop-Order in Mail, D. C. Guard Still Recruits

U. S. Backs Britain in Demand Red 'Siege' of Berlin Be Ended; Churchill Warns of War Peril

Russians' Isolation Of Berlin Likened In Its Gravity to Days Before Munich

Willing to Negotiate

90,000 Hear Speech

Luton, England, June 26 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill declared today he is not sure another war can be prevented.

Soviet isolation of Berlin has raised issues as grave as those which were at stake at Munich 10 years ago, when World War II was set off by the breaking up of Czechoslovakia, he warned.

He urged strongly that the western powers avoid appeasing Russia in the Berlin crisis.

Churchill declared that strong defenses and a get-tough-with-Russia policy are the only hopes for preventing World War III. Even then, he said, peace can not be assured.

He pledged his Conservative opposition party to support the Labor government in its opposition to the East. Party differences should be dropped, he said, when it comes to resisting foreign tyranny.

His Largest Audience

The British wartime Prime Minister spoke for an hour to more than 90,000 persons who jammed the huge lawn of the estate of Sir Harold Werner for a Conservative Party rally. Special trains and buses brought the crowd to the estate. Churchill said it was the largest gathering he has ever addressed in his long political career.

The size of the crowd seemed to inspire Churchill.

"There can be no doubt that the Communist government of Russia has made up its mind to drive us and France and other allies out (of Berlin) and turn the Russian zone in Germany into one of the satellite states under the rule of totalitarian terrorism," Churchill asserted.

"It is our heart's desire that peace may be preserved, but we should all have learned by now that there is no safety in yielding to dictators, whether Nazi or Communist.

"The only hope of peace is to be strong, to act with other great freedom-loving nations and to make it plain to the aggressor, while time remains, that we should rally the people of the world against him and defend ourselves and our cause by every means, should he strike a felon's blow.

Warns Against Weakness

"I cannot guarantee that even a firm and resolute course will ward off the dangers which now threaten us. But I am sure that such a course is not merely the best, but the only chance of preventing a third world war, in which the most fearful exigencies of destruction yet known to man will be used to the fullest extent.

"I trust that our defenses have not been neglected and that the immense sums of money we have voted for the armed forces will have been turned to good account. It has often been said that Britain's hour of weakness is Europe's hour of danger.

"It is our duty to show, whatever our party differences may be, that in resistance to foreign tyranny we are a united nation. I still believe that by this means peace may be preserved."

Churchill advocated support of the Labor Party in its stand against communism.

Gen. Clay Sends Apology

Red Chief in Berlin Arrested By U. S. Soldiers for Speeding

Berlin, June 26 (AP).—American soldiers in an armored car and a jeep chased Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Russian commander in Germany, for 2 miles tonight and arrested him for speeding.

As soon as the Soviet leader was identified his release was ordered and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the United States commander in Germany, sent his personal apologies.

Sokolovsky, who was not driving the car himself, was held for about 30 minutes. The arrest was made by United States military policemen in the American sector of the city.

The Soviet official was traveling on one of Berlin's super-highways, presumably en route from his office to his villa, when a United States constabulary patrol spotted the speeding car. Russian officials use the highway through the United States sector to get to their zone from downtown Berlin.

A military policeman said the car "was going to beat hell." The jeep overtook the Russian car after a 2-mile chase and brought it to a halt.

The armored car then drew

Berlin Crisis Not Expected To Come to Head for 2 Weeks

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

Official Washington waited yesterday to see how far the Russians would go in playing out their hand in Berlin.

The real crisis will not come this weekend, as officials here interpreted the dispatches coming from American authorities in Germany.

If it comes at all, it will come in two or three weeks, when the food and fuel stocks in the western sector of Berlin approach exhaustion. The period of grace is not long, but it is long enough to permit some kind of patched-up settlement—if the Russians want one.

Theoretically, of course, the Russians can always use their vastly superior force to push the western allies out of Berlin. But the use of force would be an act of war, and for this reason officials here are confident it will not take place.

Theoretically also, the Russians can cut off food to the point of outright starvation for the two million Berliners living in the western sectors. The western sectors are only a tiny island in a Soviet ocean, and their food supply has always been entirely at the Russians' mercy.

But there is one very good reason why most officials here do not believe the Russians will carry their squeeze tactics to the limit. This is that Soviet diplomacy and propaganda are busily courting the good will and support of all Germans, in the eastern and western zones as well.

How, it is asked here, can the Russians possibly expect German support if, at the same time, they

Tito in Bad With Moscow, London Hears

London, June 26 (AP).—The Manchester Guardian's London diplomatic correspondent wrote today that reports from southeastern Europe "strongly suggest that a serious political crisis has arisen in Yugoslavia."

"Marshal Tito's relations with Moscow are believed to be strained, largely because of conflicting views on relations with the west," the newspaper said. "Even the question of Tito's whereabouts is being discussed.

"It is believed that the Yugoslav situation was on the agenda of the Warsaw meeting of Foreign Ministers from the eastern European states.

"From Budapest came further indications of the crisis in Yugoslavia. It is learned that the only newspaper to take notice of Tito's birthday was one opposition paper, which, apparently, had not heard of the troubles in the neighboring country and published a short article.

"A telegram conveying good wishes from Hungary's non-Communist Prime Minister was held up and withdrawn from the wireless bulletins. There were no Yugoslav representatives at the recent congress for the fusion of the Hungarian Communists and Socialists.

You Can't Turn Off 66 Million Radios

New York, June 26 (AP).—If you can't seem to get away from the sound of a radio, this will explain.

The Broadcast Measurement Bureau said today 94.2 per cent of American families have sets in working order.

The 1948 total of radio families is put at 37,623,000. Industry sources estimate the number of sets in use at 66 million or more.

Yugoslavs Free 5 U. S. Soldiers Held for 10 Days

Trieste, June 26 (AP).—The Yugoslavs today released five American soldiers arrested 10 days ago when they went swimming off Capodistria in the Yugoslav zone, U. S. Army authorities said.

The State Department said yesterday it had ordered the American Ambassador in Belgrade to protest their long detention.

They are T/4 George C. Wilson, Southern Pines, N. C.; T/5 Jarvis L. Saulnier, Manchester, N. H.; T/5 Augustine Santana, New York City; Pfc. Gordon J. Foster, Falls Church, Va.; Archie M. Van Why, Route 1, Stroudsburg, Pa.

They were released this morning at Albaro Vescova, on the boundary between the Allied and Yugoslav zones of the Free Territory.

Pressure Intensified

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, June 26 (NYHT).—The British, with American support, today demanded that the Soviets lift the blockade that threatens hunger for the German population in the western sectors of Berlin.

The first official western Allied protest to the Soviet military administration came as plans were being completed for the inauguration on Monday on an extensive air supply service to bring food to the Germans in Berlin and to stave off a food crisis.

The British protest was in the form of a letter from Gen. Sir Brian K. Robertson, British military governor, to the Russian military commander, Marshal V. Sokolovsky. The letter was concurred in by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor.

Sanctions Believed Needed

It is considered dubious in Berlin that any action on the level of General Clay and General Robertson can at this point do much good, as the situation has gone too far. In view of observers here, a protest to the Soviet Union at the Washington-Moscow level, backed by diplomatic sanction, is likely to be the only measure with any possibility of effect.

Meantime, the Communist newspaper tipped the Russian hand as to its plan for Berlin. For the first time the paper revealed that final plans had been drawn up whereby the Russians could supply all the city—that is the western sectors also. Up until now the Soviets have been deterred from putting the final heat on the Allies in their campaign to oust them from the city by one simple fact. This was that the surrounding Soviet zone did not have enough food to supply the western sector, hitherto sustained by western Allied imports.

In its first weekend of complete blockade, Soviet power cuts and unprecedented nerve warfare, Berlin remained in a state of high tension.

Reds Hint at Force

And the continued deliberate Soviet attempts to panic the population reached its high point as the Russians, through a Communist mouthpiece, openly hinted at the use of armed force in the east-west struggle for Berlin.

Wilhelm Pieck, veteran Communist leader, said at a press conference: "Developments in Berlin have been so fast that none can see how a peaceful settlement

Communists Try To Kill Java Pact, U. S. Official Says

A State Department official charged last night the Communists are trying to wreck the agreement between the Dutch government and the Indonesian republic.

This agreement provides for creation of a Netherlands Indonesian Union. The charge was made in a radio address by H. Merrell Benninghoff, deputy director of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs.

The basic agreement was worked out under United Nations sponsorship last January. It is known as the Renville agreement.

"There are those who are conniving to subvert the ends sought in the Renville agreements," Benninghoff said. "They are those same people whose policies require the presentation and the intensification of chaos and hatred everywhere in the world.

"You know of whom I speak—the Communists, who even at this hour are at work in The Netherlands, in Indonesia, through Asia and even in the United States to call the good faith of the good offices committee (of the United Nations) and its work into question."

Mrs. Talley No Longer to Sign President's Name to Patents

Ruth Whitney Talley is able to take things a bit easier these days. She doesn't have to sign Harry S. Truman's name to Government papers any more.

Mrs. Talley, formerly of Pierre, S. Dak., has been signing patents for the sale of public lands—in the name of Presidents—since 1941.

She started with the signature, "Franklin D. Roosevelt, by Ruth Talley."

"I never attempted to copy the President's signature—just wrote it the way I usually sign my own name," Mrs. Talley said.

Mrs. Talley

Three weeks after President Roosevelt's death in 1945 she received authority to use the new President's name.

Altogether, she has signed the names of the two Presidents to 8479 patents. In her periods of absence, Mrs. Alice M. Grove, Steelton, Pa., has signed them 2236 times more.

The first six Presidents signed land patents personally. During the Andrew Jackson Administration the responsibility was transferred to proxies.

Since 1884 it has rested with a "female clerk" in the Interior Department.

Ten days ago President Truman signed public law 667, transferring the authority for signing such documents from the President to officials of the Interior Department. Mrs. Talley need no longer worry over mistakes.

Her most unusual experience? Twice, inadvertently, she signed documents, "Harry S. Talley."

Once she caught the error before it left the office. In the other instance, an Indian patent was returned with the query, "Who is President Talley?"

Police, Guided by Planes, Trap Gunman Mob in Quarry

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Fifteen squads of police—aided overhead by six planes—were closing in tonight on a mob of gunmen who entrenched themselves in a west suburban quarry.

The mob—surprised in the hijacking of a suburban Western Springs handbook — machine-gunned a Western Springs policeman.

Police were about to raid the handbook when the mob came out of the front door. Shots were exchanged and Sergt. Charles Peterson, 42, was seriously wounded.

The mob sped away in an automobile. Reinforcements, summoned by radio, raced to intercept the car. Near suburban Hodgkins, the gunmen abandoned the auto and fled on foot toward the heavily wooded quarry.

Six planes aided in the search until darkness came.

The quarry is in a large forest preserve area. It is filled with ravines and wooded tracts.

Police ringed the steep-walled pit and began slowly working their way in. The gang was believed to have taken a strong position somewhere in the quarry.

Open Fight on Marshall Plan Is Declared by Italian Reds

Rome, June 26 (AP).—Italy's Communist chief, Palmiro Togliatti, just back from a mystery trip behind the iron curtain, declared tonight Italy's 2,500,000 Communists will now wage an all-out fight against the Marshall Plan.

It was Togliatti's first declaration that he will lead the Communists in a full-scale attack on the European recovery program. The Communist's line before and following their defeat in the April elections has been to go easy on the Marshall Plan.

Togliatti, who said he returned yesterday from a week-long trip to Prague, Bucharest and Budapest, replied to a series of questions submitted by the Associated Press.

His blast at the Marshall Plan came at a time when a wave of strikes again threatened to engulf Italy.

Togliatti blamed Italy's latest rash of strikes on "the serious economic plight of labor, increasing unemployment and the reaction of industrialists who would like to destroy or seriously curtail

New Chairman of GOP National Committee Is Member of an Old Virginia Family

It's getting to be that a fellow has to have been a Republican district attorney to get into this column. Two days ago it was a fellow named Tom Dewey. Yesterday it was Earl Warren. Today it's Hugh D. Scott, jr.

The tall, hefty, socialite Philadelphia Congressman has been named chairman of the Republican National Committee, which sort of makes him chief of staff for the forthcoming election campaign. The selection came as a surprise to a lot of folks, including Scott.

Hugh Scott is an FFV, which is to say, a member of the First Families of Virginia, circa 1624. He was born in Fredericksburg, where his father, Hugh, sr., has been presiding over the National Bank for over half a century. He was educated at Randolph-Macon College and the University of Virginia.

A Republican From Dixie

Nonetheless, Scott has been a Republican all his life, according to Scott himself. He explains this unusual situation by pointing out that his mother's side of the family is Pennsylvanian, and that as a youngster he became attracted to the GOP and its principles. No sooner did he get his law degree at Virginia U. in 1922, than he moved to Philadelphia to practice law with his uncle, Common Pleas Judge Edwin O. Lewis.

The 47-year-old Congressman, currently serving out his third term, falls, roughtly, into the internationalist wing of the Republican Party as do Dewey and Warren. He backed the Marshall Plan but warned that we ought to be careful how the money of American taxpayers is spent. He vigorously supported both the draft and UMT. He has denounced government control and the "New Deal Gestapo."

Scott was in the thick of Philadelphia politics shortly after entering private practice there. He was named assistant district attorney, and held that post for 15 years handling chiefly criminal cases.

He entered Congress in 1940, representing a "silkstocking" district of Philadelphia, and was re-elected in 1942.

The following year the Democrats figuratively hopped all over the 5 foot 11 inch, 180-pound frame of Scott when he declared:

"It is time for the Republicans to take over. We are the best stock. We are the people who represent the real grit, brains, and backbone of America."

The Philly Democrats howled with delight. "Snobbery," they screeched.

Scott was defeated in 1944. So he volunteered for active duty in the Navy and was appointed lieutenant commander. He participated in the landing at Tokyo, drove the first Navy jeep into the Japanese capital, and refused the surrender of an airfield at nearby Tateyama. He came out of the Navy in 1946 as a full commander. Then he proceeded to lick the man who'd beaten him for Congress.

Got Work as Ordinary Seaman

In 1944 Representtaive Scott together with Representtaive Gordon Canfield (R., N. J.) worked their way across the Atlantic as ordinary seamen in order to see first hand the problems of the Merchant Marine. They didn't learn until they were at sea that their tanker was loaded with high octane aviation gasoline.

Two more things ought to be mentioned about Scott:

He is distantly related to President Zachary Taylor.

He wears a toothbrush-type mustache.

Also, he's something of a joiner: patriotic organizations, veterans' organizations and the Republican Union League.

Scott is married to the former Marian Chase of Germantown, Pa. They have one daughter, Marian Lee, 14. They've no current Washington address.

ture are also reported from other east European capitals."

A spokesman for the British Foreign Office declined comment.

Qualified Whitehall sources were inclined to place some credence in the reports.

Reports here say that Tito lost prestige by failing to get Trieste and by the shake-up in his government last month. He dismissed two leading Communist members of his government.

British informants feel that Moscow is confident that any Yugoslav government crisis will be settled before July 30 or the Kremlin never would have permitted the Danube conference to convene in Belgrade then.

U. N. to Provide European Babies With Diapers

Lake Success, June 26 (AP).—The United Nations will provide diapers next winter for many of Europe's needy babies.

This was disclosed today by the International Children's Emergency Fund, A U. N. agency, which announced the purchase of $1,500,000 worth of raw cotton for diapers, sheets, towels and other baby items.

The cotton will be sent to 12 European countries and China for processing into cloth and garments.

All materials, including the diapers, will be marked to show their origin and will be distributed free. The purchase was made from a $3,400,000 raw materials allocation set aside by the Children's Fund.

Vienna Reports Russian-Allied Relations Calm

Vienna, June 26 (NYHT).—Russia's relations with the western allies remained calm here despite the crisis in Berlin.

Vienna would be even more at the mercy of a Russian siege than Berlin since both the American and British airfields lie in Russian-controlled areas.

American and British officials were almost uniformly confident the Russians do not intend to try to force the western allies out of Vienna by applying the tactics here in the near future.

line and shook hands with all of the 61-member national committee present today. There were about seven absentees.

Banter With Brown

Dewey frequently halted the line for prolonged conversation with one committeeman or another. He called many by their first names, clasping a number affectionately around the shoulders. Committeemen broke into applause when he halted the group to meet Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio). Enthusiastically calling him by his first name, Dewey stopped the campaign manager for Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), for several minutes of friendly banter.

Newsmen noted that Dewey's hair was rumpled, his manner cordial and highly informal. Shortly after the reception, Dewey took off for his farm at Pawling, N. Y. Governor and Mrs. Warren and their three daughters plan to leave here for New York tomorrow.

In his onformal, unprepared speech to the committee, Dewey said: "On my own behalf and on behalf of all of the members of our party and the millions of others of the Democratic Party and of independents, who will join with us in bringing new administration to our Nation next year, I want to thank you who have pulled the laboring oar."

His comment was interpreted as an invitation of welcome to Democrats dissatisfied with the Administration of President Truman to join with the Republicans in securing a change.

Repeats Unity Call

The GOP standard bearer reiterated his previous call for national unity.

"I have a deep and prayerful hope and confidence that following the victory in November we shall be able to bring to the people of our country—I may say to the people of the world—a new hope, a new unity, and a new sense of faith in the institutions of human freedom," he declared.

Of Governor Warren, Dewey said he would not only be a great Vice President but "a partner in the administration of the Government of the United States."

Warren told the national politicos he was "thrilled at the end of the third ballot Thursday to find a united Republican Party in the convention."

"Never have I seen a finer spirit, and never have I seen people more willing to adjust their differences out in the open, and never have I seen people more tolerant of views expressed out in the open even though controversial," said Warren.

"Drought and Famine"

Dewey referred to the past 16 years under the Democrats as years of the "drought." Warren called it "a famine." Laughing, Dewey chimed in that it was both.

Scott, a native of Fredericksburg, Va., graduated from Randolph-Macon College, and later from the University of Virginia Law School. He is a member of the law firm of White & Williams in Philadelphia. He and Mrs. Scott, who accompanied her husband today, have one daughter, Marian Lee, 14.

Scott, who replaces National Committee Chairman Carroll Reece, told the national committeemen and women that he regarded his selection "as a tribute through me to the Eightieth Congress, and the fine, forthright and effective record of achievement which that Congress has made, which record along with our party platform we will be very proud indeed to make the issue of this campaign."

He called for further participation in politics of the women of the Nation.

The committee today also elected the following other officers: Vice chairmen: Ezra R. Whitla, Idaho; Werner W. Schroeder of Illinois; Mrs. Horace H. Sayre of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown of Ohio. Mrs. Charles P. Howard of Reading, Mass., was elected National Secretary. Mrs. Howard has served on the Reading Town Committee for 20 years, and is a former president of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts. Elected national treasurer was James S. Kemper of Illinois.

Scott described the selection of Dewey and Warren as "a perfect dreamboat of a ticket."

Mrs. Dewey, introduced as "the next First Lady of the land," wore a simple gray and white tailored dress and a bright green hat trimmed with field daisies for her appearance before the Republican leaders.

GOP Deficit In 6 Months Hits $44,587

By The Associated Press

The Republican National Committee went into the party's convention month in the red for its January-to-June financial operations.

Reports on file yesterday with the clerk of the House of Representatives showed the committee had taken in $285,126 from the first of the year to May 31, but had spent $329,713. This left a $44,587 deficit.

The Democratic National Committee was in considerably better shape.

It received $516,744 and spent $272,199. The Democrats hold their convention next month.

Henry Wallace's third party had overspent itself $49,490 by the end of May. The National Wallace for President Committee reported it had taken in $292,498, and spent $341,958 since it was organized. The third party also holds its convention next month.

The reports are required under the Corrupt Practices Act of 1925 and the Political Activities Act of 1939. These provide for periodic financial statements from persons and organizations engaged in politics.

The biggest source of revenue for the Republican National Committee from March 1 through May 31, was various State Republican committees. They chipped in more than $97,000.

The Democratic National Committee collected more than $218,500 of its $516,744 receipts during the same period from Jefferson and Jackson day celebrations. The D. C. Jefferson-Jackson Day Committee, for example, turned over $125,000 to the National Committee.

Taft Offers to Campaign for Dewey, Warren

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said yesterday he is ready to campaign for the Dewey-Warren Republican victory.

Back from his losing fight for the Republican presidential nomination, Taft looked fit. Martin, who was chairman of the party convention and won a few votes for the nomination himself, also was cheerful.

Martin said he is convinced from reports he has received from all over the country that the Dewey-Warren ticket will "sweep the Democrats out."

He also told newsmen he believes the Republicans will pick up 25 new seats in the House of Representatives in the forthcoming elections and "one or two, perhaps more" in the Senate.

Martin said the Truman Administration's foreign policy will almost certainly rank high among the targets of Republican attack.

People are dissatisfied, he said, because Truman has made "no progress" in foreign relations. And he said any new friction with the Russians "might well convince the voters of this country that we need somebody who can work things out with Russia."

Turning to the high cost of living, Martin said:

"The Republican Party is not worried about Democratic threats to make that a major issue. The Democrats have run the Government, and President Truman is as much to blame as anybody on that score."

Taft said he sees no reason for a special session of Congress.

Dewey Stresses Need Of New Hopefulness

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Pawling, N. Y., June 26.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey came home today to tell his neighbors here he wants to bring a new spirit of "hopeful Americanism" to the national government.

The Republican nominee for President, hatless and smiling, spoke to about one thousand persons from a hastily erected stand on the green slope in front of Pawling Trinity School. The town fire sirens had sounded as the Dewey special train rolled in at 6:50 p. m. bringing Governor Dewey, his family, aides and newsmen from the Philadelphia convention.

What had been an almost empty platform filled quickly and a waving, shouting crowd spread across the street to greet Dewey. Accompanied by his wife, and their two sons, Thomas, jr., and John M. Dewey stepped to the observation platform, to grin and wave back to the crowd.

Greeted by Mayor

When they stepped down, Dewey was greeted by Pawling's Mayor John A. Sheridan, a Democrat, with a handshake and "congratulations." The Deweys rode in an open car to the scene of the "homecoming ceremony" about a mile from the station. A police escort paced them. Behind came fire engines, and other vehicles. En route they passed a sign "Welcome Home Pres. and Mrs. Tom Dewey."

Dewey has considered Pawling home since he bought a farm nearby about 11 years ago. The town has a population of about 2800 and from it came $7000 in campaign contributions, raised by a bipartisan committee, to help Dewey. The town is in the Harlem Valley, about 75 miles north of New York City, and a mile from the Connecticut border. It is in Duchess County, about 28 miles from Hyde Park, country home of President Roosevelt.

On the temporary speakers' stand, Dewey faced West, across the valley where the sun was a red ball in mounting clouds. He was welcomed by Lowell Thomas, the writer and radio commentator, and by Jim Stark, owner of a 1000-acre farm nearby. Stark greeted Dewey as a "farmer, neighbor, Governor, the nominee and future President."

Dewey Thanks Crowd

Dewey warmly thanked the gathering for the welcome they had given him.

"I hope we shall bring to our Government a philosophy and men and women who have not forgotten the people of the farms, the villages and the cities," he said.

"This is my home, here I find the leisurely spirit and understanding of other people's point of view that you don't often find in other places.

"I'd like to bring to our Government a revival of that generosity of spirit, that fairness, that faith in the essential decency of all of the American people and all the free governments in the world without which free government cannot long survive.

"I earnestly hope to be able to bring to our Government a new spirit of respect for the principles, a new spirit of faith in the diligence and the integrity of the American people, the kind of spirit that we find among our neighbors. The thing which is America.

Role of Pawling

"And if we succeed, you, the people of Pawling, will have had a real part in bringing into our Government that new atmopshere of genuine and hopeful Americanism that believes in our country, in our destiny and in the things by which our country became great.

"If we can bring to our Nation a restoration of faith in ourselves and in the things by which we live, in the Bill of Rights, and in the cause of human liberty, that shall have been worth more than anything else in the world."

At the end Governor Dewey told the group "you are the most wonderful neighbors in the world, and I hope I shall be your good neighbor through all the years."

It was an ending with a postscript.

After the applause, Dewey turned back to the crowd, to say that Mrs. Dewey had just reminded him to make a report. He said the $7000 had been spent on the public campaign headquarters in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia.

Run by Women

He said it had the distinction of being the only one run exclusively by women, and "it was the best there ever was."

After that the crowd gave three cheers. There was a prayer, and the singing of "America" and the ceremony was over.

The Deweys then were driven back through the center of Pawling, and on past the Pawling Grange Fair, where they stopped briefly to greet about 75 persons. Dewey is a member of the grange. He had urged the hillside audience to follow him to the fair, because there was a lot of work still to be paid for on the new grange hall.

Then he was driven to his farm for part of the rest he has been eagerly awaiting.

The Deweys will remain at their farm Sunday and Monday, and possibly longer. They plan to return to Albany during the next week. They are slated to attend 11 a. m. services Sunday at Christ Church on Quaker Hill, near Pawling. It is a nondenominational church where services are conducted in the summer by the Rev. Dr. Ralph Lankler, Presbyterian minister of Cortland, N. Y. He will officiate Sunday. Dewey is an Episcopalian.

Farm Almost Paid For

Dewey's farm is a 300-acre tract, mostly wooded, enlarged by an adjoining 168 acres which he rents. He paid $3000 cash and took a $27,000 mortgage to get the farm. The mortgage is still there, but close to being cleared. The farm has been in use for at least 200 years.

There is a 12-room house. The original part of the house is about 150 years old.

When he's at the farm, Dewey occasionally takes his turn on the milking line, not as boss but as a temporary "hired hand." He owns 51 dairy cows, mostly Holsteins.

Stark, whose family has owned their farm continuously through 200 years, said in his welcome speech he had seen a lot of newcomers try farming and then quickly give up. But he told Governor Dewey, "Your operation has been based on real economics." And it looked as though he would stay.

Dewey, with a grin, said the farm is a practical, economic operation —"it has to be or there ain't no farm."

Enjoys Farming

"I have enjoyed farming here, more than anything else I ever did in my life," said Dewey.

The Deweys left their Philadelphia hotel about 1:30 p. m. They boarded their special five-car train at Broad Street station about 1:45 p. m. He had picked up about seven hours' sleep, after snatching only two hours the night of his nomination. He lunched with Mrs. Dewey and his secretary, Paul Lockwood, aboard the train, rested, and during a brief stop in New York City's Pennsylvania Station he posed with his family for pictures. He did not leave the train.

During the last hour of the ride to Pawling he chatted informally with newsmen.

A sidelight on the trip was that the lounge car was the one which was used as the press car on President Truman's recent cross-country trip. It is called the Andrew W. Mellon. It was identified by Charles B. Brown, press representative for Western Union, who made both trips.

Governor Dewey disclosed that he expects to see his running mate, Gov. Earl Warren, before the latter returns to the West Coast. No time is set for the meeting.

Eisenhower Booster Arrested For Distributing Handbills away handbills were picked up from the sidewalks.

"Look," said Siegal, "I was in the Army five years myself. I served under Eisenhower. But the merchants were complaining about the mess on the streets. I warned this fellow once."

The policeman pointed to a refuse can which bore these words: "It's the law—don't litter the streets of the Nation's Capital."

Kutner said when Siegal warned him to stop passing out the handbills, he replied he was within the law and continued to distribute them until placed under arrest.

Kutner said he was held in a cell at the First Precinct for about an hour until a friend arrived and posted $5 collateral.

How did police figure collateral on a charge which does not exist? The collateral clerk of the traffic division explained that he obtained the $5 figure by using a collateral sheet of the Park Police, dated 1925, which set that sum for the charge, which then was in effect.

The Kutner arrest was roundly denounced in a statement issued later by Maynard B. DeWitt, director of the local Veterans for Eisenhower club.

He said it was "an outright violation of the constitutional rights of the supporters of the Eisenhower write-in campaign."

Kutner will receive a hearing next Thursday in the office of the corporation counsel.

Meanwhile, DeWitt announced the Veterans for Eisenhower would continue their campaign until the closing of the primary polls tomorrow at 8 p. m.

District Democrats of two years residence who do not vote in other places will be eligible to cast ballots to determine who will be the 12 delegates who will carry the District's six votes to the Democratic convention.

In Virginia, a 26-vote delegation will also be selected tomorrow at a State convention.

Locally, the primary is under direction of the Democratic Central Committee for the District.

Primary polling places, open tomorrow from 2 to 8 p. m., are the Cabinet Room in the Willard Hotel; Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw.; 1352 U st. nw.; Katzman Tailor Shop, 409 7th st. sw.; 826 Bladenesburg rd. ne.; 141 B st. se., and 5323 E. Capitol st.

Green Won't Support Dewey

the CIO's Political Action Committee were both noncommital yesterday but at least one CIO union leader, Emil Rieve, was critical of Dewey.

Rieve, in a talk for the Maine CIO council meeting at Lewiston, said the country's future "will be darker than ever before" unless the Eightieth Congress is repudiated by the next Administration on almost every domestic issue.

"The Republicans have had full control of Congress for two years, but they have done nothing," Rieve said, about such questions as housing, health and education, minimum wages, social security, civil rights, and on controlling inflation.

"It is ironic to find these issues in the Republican platform," Rieve said.

Green disclosed, meanwhile, that he had urged Mr. Truman to appoint Keen Johnson, former Governor of Kentucky, as Secretary of Labor. The President, however, did not commit himself, Green said.

The death of Lewis B. Schwellenbach recently left the Labor secretaryship vacant.

Wallace Backers In District Plan New Party Unit

The Washington Committee for Wallace has called a convention for July 10 to set up the local organization of the new party.

During the convention, to be held at the Hotel 2400, the committee will dissolve and become the core of the new party organization for the District of Columbia.

The new party then will elect delegates to the new party founding convention in Philadelphia, which begins July 23.

Letters have been mailed to about 5000 local residents by the Washington Committee for Wallace, according to Mrs. Anna Berenson, executive secretary.

At the convention, official program of the new party in Washington is expected to be drawn up. It probably will include suffrage, abolition of segregation, opposition to the "thought-control" loyalty program and other infringements of civil rights, Mrs. Berenson said.

Crop Damage by Hail, Rain May Reach Millions in Md.

Maryland farmers face serious crop losses as the result of the hailstorms and wet weather of the past two weeks.

University of Maryland experts have been unable to estimate the losses accurately but said they will run into the thousands and possibly millions of dollars.

High winds, hail and pouring rain have beaten down tobacco, corn, tomatoes and other crops so that in some instances the entire crop of a farm has been destroyed. This was particularly true in the Mitchellville area of Prince Georges, where even trees were stripped to their bare limbs by hail last Sunday and the previous Saturday.

On the Eastern Shore, tomato growers are praying not for rain but for a dry spell, so that the remaining tomato plants will have a chance. The planting was light this year because a glut last year resulted in thousands of bushels rotting in the fields because the canners were unable to take them.

The heavy rainfall has made working crops difficult all over the State and in some areas the farmers are plowing under their damaged crops, even though it is very late to plant new ones.

Uncut wheat and barley have suffered heavy losses. The wet weather makes it impossible to work the corn to keep down weeds and grasses, and the farmers have been unable to cut hay in most areas, with a number reporting that the grasses have been flattened to where they cannot be cut.

More than 100 farms in the Centerville area of Queen Anne County reported early plantings of corn totally destroyed.

can be achieved if the western allies insist on staying in this city."

The Moscow-trained Communist added that "Berlin crises will not end until the western allies leave. I think and I hope that the western powers will soon see that they have gotten themselves into an impossible position."

The Communist leader was playing the Russian game of trying to frighten the people into believing that the present iron blockade will never be lifted so long as the western allies are here. The Communists hope to make the threat of starvation a lever which will cause the Germans themselves to demand the departure of the western allies.

General Clay Concurs

But the western allies are determined to make it clear to the world and to the Germans here that the blame for Berlin's suffering lies clearly on the Soviet Union.

In this vein, General Robertson said in his protest: "The interruption of essential freight traffic (from the western zones of Germany to Berlin) cannot be held to be a measure necessary to protect the currency position in the Soviet zone. I therefore request that arrangement be made by the Soviet military administration to restore normal traffic communications to and from Berlin immediately. I wish to make it clear that, if they are not so restored and undue and avoidable suffering is thereby inflicted upon the German population it will be because I have been deprived by you of the means to sustain them."

The office of General Clay said the American general had read the letter before its dispatch and agreed with it.

The American general did not send a similar dispatch but did bring up the matter of interzonal trade in another letter. Informing the Russians of completion of currency reform, Clay pointed out that he was "still prepared to meet with you" to discuss trade relations between the Soviet zone and the American zone.

The new American air supply armada, that will tax the facilities of the airfields to the utmost, is designed to stave off the time when dwindling reserves run out. The air service will gain additional time, but cannot possibly provide enough food and coal for the 2,200,000 Germans in the western sectors.

Without the air supply these reserves would start getting dangerously low in several weeks. The air service will at the least triple the number of flights coming into the American field at Templehof. About 120 flights daily will bring about 250 tons or more.

West sector Berliners use 2000 tons of food and 2000 tons of coal daily.

The British, it was learned tonight, also will inaugurate a supplementary air supply soon.

As a gesture to buck up the German population, the Americans today announced a special issue of prunes and Army "C" rations to Germans living in the French, American and British sectors.

A barge carrying 300 tons of grain for the Berlin population and two trains bringing potatoes reached the city from the West today, but there was no indication the Russians were letting up on their stranglehold.

Thirteen more barges were reported en route, but Allied officials said these shipments had been started in the Soviet zone before the blockade was imposed and had been "in the pipeline" for a week.

Czechoslovak Socialists, Reds Merger Today

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 26 (U.P.).—The 70-year-old Czech Social Democratic Party will merge formally with the Communists tomorrow.

Communist newspapers will take over Social Democratic dailies July 1. The 50-year-old Social Democratic Pravo Lidu today announced its own demise and said subscribers would receive the Communist Rude Pravo instead.

Berlin Crisis Not Expected To Come to Head for 2 Weeks

are deliberately starving two million Germans? How can they appeal to Germans as friends and protectors if they deliberately stop food trains at the boundaries of a starving Berlin?

The Germans will know who is stopping the food trains; the propaganda of the western allies will see to that. They will see pictures of the inevitable food riots in Berlin, and of the freight trains crammed with food from the western zones, and they will draw conclusions that can be deadly to the entire Soviet policy of preaching German unity under Communist auspices.

This, at least, is the way it looks this weekend to the policymakers in Washington. It is a serious situation, and a touchy one, yet there is an undercurrent of confidence here that the Russians themselves cannot afford to carry their present tactics through to the bitter end.

It is not forgotten that the Soviets themselves, back in 1945, asked the Western Allies to be responsible for the feeding and maintenance of the western sectors of Berlin.

There was no confirmation in Washington yesterday of a Berlin report that the railroad line from the British zone would be permitted to reopen on Monday. However, some relaxation is expected, and would be in line with the past performance of the Russians in first putting on the pressure and then relaxing it.

As for ultimate Soviet intentions, they are something of a mystery at the moment. The communique issued after the Communist conference in Warsaw simply repeated, for the most part, the Soviet claims advanced at the abortive meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in Moscow last year.

Only one new proposal was announced—the withdrawal of all occupation armies a year after the German peace treaty comes into effect. This was a new wrinkle, but it was not enough to show the emergence of a new Soviet policy.

Cautious Hope Marks Birthday Of U. N. Charter

Lake Success, N. Y., June 26 (U.P.).—The United Nations today marked the third anniversary of the signing of the U. N. Charter in an atmosphere mingling disappointment over the past with cautious hope for the future.

U. N. diplomats, officials and newsmen generally agreed that the world organization, whose blueprint was adopted in San Francisco three years ago, had not yet proved itself.

Ex-Dean O'Ferrall's Romance Nears End

Detroit, June 26 (AP).—The Very Rev. Kirk B. O'Ferrall's romance with pretty divorcee in his Episcopal choir appeared at an end today.

After less than a year of marriage, 32-year-old Mrs. Isabelle Wilson Morill O'Ferrall announced in Reno, Nev., that she planned to divorce the dignified, 59-year-old former dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in Detroit.

Their engagement shortly after his first wife's death was followed by O'Ferrall's resignation from St. Paul's a year ago.

"He didn't like the way I dressed and criticized me in public," Mrs. O'Ferrall said today in Reno.

"Frankly, I like nice clothes and lots of hats."

She also noted "There's quite a discrepancy in our ages."

Mrs. O'Ferrall's attorney, Kendrick Johnson, termed the pending action "just a case of divorce on the grounds of incompatibility." He said it would not be contested.

New German Currency Order Paves Way for Trizonia

Frankfurt, Germany, June 26 (U.P.)—France, Britain and the United States issued a new currency reform order today and set out to give 45,000,000 Germans a western state of their own.

In the first step to fulfill the London agreement on western Germany, the three military governors ordered a two-day Allied-German conference here next Wednesday.

Trizonia's 11 German minister-presidents and leading German officials were ordered to attend. Delegates will work out plans for electing a constituent assembly early this fall, and prepare for the establishment of Trizonia as a unified state.

The governors also issued a third law for monetary reform, effective at midnight. It provides that Germans living in Trizonia may turn in 10 old reichesmarks for each new deutsch mark.

Anglo-American financial experts announced a separate conversion law for the western sectors of Berlin will be issued soon.

The first currency law a week ago provided for funds to tide Germans over the reform. The second, issued five days ago, instructed banks on the exchange process.

United States and British financial strategists said they are well satisfied with results so far.

It is planned to restrict the circulation of deutschemarks to 10 billion.

Under today's law, Germans can get only half the money legally due them. The rest will go into a blocked account, to be ruled on later.

Individuals will be limited to 5000 old marks. Tradesmen and professional people can convert up to 10,000 on clearance from the tax office. Business firms similarly cleared can convert their whole balances at once.

Government agencies and occupation units were barred from converting anything at all but will get "reasonable payments."

Doolittle Named To Aeronautics Advisory Group

By The Associated Press

Dr. James Harold Doolittle—better known as Lieut.-Gen. Jimmy Doolittle—yesterday became a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

President Truman name Doolittle as one of three new appointees to the comittee required by an act of the Eigetieth Congress.

The commander of the famed Tokyo bombers, together with a Philadelphia physicist and physiologist, Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, were appointed with terms expiring December 1, 1950. Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman of the research and development board of the National Miltary Establishment, became a member by reason of that chairmanship.

Dr. Dawson Elected Methodist Bishop

El Paso, Tex., June 26 (AP).—Dr. Dana Dawson of the First Methodist Church of Shreveport, La., today was elected bishop of the Methodist Church.

He was elected by 282 delegates at the south central jurisdictional conference here, receiving 185 votes on the thirtieth ballot. A total of 169 was necessary to win.

He will fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Bishop Charles C. Selecman of Dallas.

Criticizes Clay

Bidault Willing to Negotiate

Paris, June 26 (AP).—Under Communist questioning, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault is reported to have criticized Gen. Lucius D. Clay and expressed willingness to negotiate a settlement with Russia on the Berlin crisis.

Legislator who attended a meeting today of the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee gave this account:

Communist Deputy Florimond Bonte observed that the Warsaw meeting of Russia and her satellites had opened up the possibility of negotiations among the big four nations. He asked if France was ready to seize the opportunity.

Bidault replied that France was willing to negotiate. Pressed as to whether France would take the initiative, he replied:

"Initiative, no, but we will perhaps have conversations."

Then Bidault was asked whether France subscribed to the statement by Clay, United States military governor of Germany, that "the Russians cannot drive us out of Berlin by any action short of war."

Bidault, this account continued, replied:

"It would have been better if General Clay had remained a soldier. In situations of this kind, I always believe in a great silence."

Premier Robert Schuman called a special cabinet meeting for Monday to discuss the international situation. The French are trying to balance their need for American aid against their unwillingness to stand up to the Russians in the present state of world armament. The feeling has grown that the French do not want to risk a shooting war even for Marshall Plan aid.

London, June 26 (NYHT).—Intensive diplomatic activity, evidently aimed at arranging a joint three-power exchange with the Soviet government on the Berlin crisis, continued at the British Foreign Office today.

At the same time, the British issued a disclaimer of a report in a Russian-controlled Berlin newspaper to the effect that Britain does not intend to remain in Berlin and is making preparations to withdraw.

"The report is completely untrue and is very far from representing His Majesty's government's real attitude," the Foreign Office said. "The statement that we intend to stay in Berlin holds good. The opinion of the whole world will condemn this ruthless attempt of the Soviet government to create a state of siege in Berlin and so by starving the helpless civilian population to secure political advantages at the expense of the other Allied powers."

Nevertheless, there are many indications the basic principle of remaining in Berlin has been reviewed by the British cabinet. The possibility of an eventual withdrawal cannot be ruled out despite the Foreign Office disclaimer. There certainly has been no change in policy yet, and there certainly will be no unilateral British action, but equally there now seems to be a limit as to how far Britain is prepared to go to maintain the Berlin position.

In the meantime, with the possibility of withdrawal pushed into the background, British policy at the moment is believed to be aimed at getting the matter on a government-to-government level with the Soviet Union. The various four-power organs of Berlin and German government are in suspension, and the situation is so critical that some action seems called for to relieve the military commanders on the spot of the difficulties of dealing with the Russians.

Bevin conferred at the Foreign Office again today with Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador. With him was Sir William Strang, undersecretary in charge of the German section. Rene Massigli, French Ambassador to Britain, is to call at the Foreign Office during the weekend. Bevin is staying in London over the weekend to follow the situation.

The tone of the letter from the British occupation commander, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, to the Russian commander, Marshal Sokolovsky, on the subject of the Russian moves was mild to a point of appearing almost ineffectual.

the conquests achieved by labor in p[illegible] years."

[illegible]e nation's biggest strike, however, was called off tonight. It was a national food workers' strike which began today and resulted in more than 250,000 men being called from their jobs. The strike was called by the General Confederation of Labor, Italy's huge, Communist-run union.

After consultation with government mediators, the Food Workers' Federation announced it had ended the strike. The announcement said the cabinet would consider demands for raises, family benefits and restriction of temporary dismissals.

Italy still was troubled with big and little strikes, mostly protesting against layoffs. These included general strike at Pisa and Modena. A general strike in Trieste was ended in its second day today.

Togliatti expressed belief the Marshall Plan is designed to put Italy under a yoke.

"It is increasingly evident that the Marshall Plan is a scheme involving political and economic enslavement of our country," he said. "This is why we oppose and fight it."

His flat declaration that Communists "oppose and fight" the Marshall Plan put Italy's non-Communist government on the firing line.

The Communist leader said Italy was not represented at this week's Warsaw meeting of eight eastern European Foreign Ministers. He said the meeting was a "gathering of representatives of governments and not of parties."

"Granted" that a Cominform (Communist information bureau) meeting was held before the Warsaw conference, he said, "you will know in due time."

alongside. A few minutes later a second United States jeep arrived. About a dozen GIs gathered around the car before Sokolovsky was identified.

Sokolovsky stepped out of his car and declared, "I'm Marshal Sokolovsky."

"This made no impression on the GI's," an American officer related, "since they didn't understand Russian."

The GIs then showed Sokolovsky credentials which carry a note in Russian that any one stopped must accompany them to headquarters.

Sokolovsky refused to go. He said he was "surprised at being stopped because he thought official cars had the right of way," the officer said. Sokolovsky "didn't seem very pleased about it, but he was patient," the officer said. "He appeared startled at the concentration of strength around him."

Israel Army Ordered on War Footing

Tel Aviv, June 26 (NYHT).—Freed of United Nations restrictions against military action in the Negeb, the army of Israel ordered all its troops today to return to battle stations in preparation for a possible renewal of the Palestine war.

All military leaves were canceled, but the army refrained from launching an assault against the truce-defying Egyptian invasion column while United Nations truce supervisors made a final effort to save the four-week cease-fire order.

The Irgun Zvai Leumi organization, appeared to be diverting its opposition to the government, at least temporarily, into political channels.

The Irgun radio suddenly announced itself as the voice of the Freedom Party, formed by Menachem Beigen, Irgun leader.

The strength of dissident elements in the Jewish state was demonstrated this monring when the Stern group took over the Habimah National Theater in Tel Aviv for its first public meeting. The government made no effort to interfere.

The Sternists bitterly criticized government policy and army military tactics.

Egyptians Continue Palestine Attacks

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 26 (U.P.).—Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations Palestine mediator, was informed by his truce observers today that Egyptian forces still are attacking Jewish settlements in the Negeb area ofsouthernPalestine.

U. N. representatives said King Farouk's troops were using all their arms and were knocking at the gates of Kefar Darom following yesterday's attack on a Jewish convoy enroute to Negeb.

U. N. representatives in Palestine have taken the "gravest view" of Egypt's reported disregard of U. N. authority in the Holy Land.

Egypt Refuses to Pass Jewish Food Convoys

Lake Success, N. Y., June 26 (U.P.).—Egypt has refused to back down on its ban on Jewish food convoys in the Negeb despite the charge by the United Nations mediator that its stand violated the Holy Land armistice, it was announced today.

Egypt's refusal was revealed to the Security Council by its mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, who had demanded a "full explanation" of Egypt's action in stopping a convoy yesterday and firing on a U. N. observation plane.

Rebels Slash Greek Army Supply Line

Athens, June 26 (AP).—Guerilla forces attacked an important supply line of the Greek army today and destroyed part of the Elasson-Kozane highway in northeastern Greece, a general staff communique reported.

The road is a connecting link between a Greek Second Army Corps supply base at Larissa, and the Grammos operational headquarters at Kozane to the northwest.

Rebel Chieftain Markos Vafiades apparently was trying to cripple the all-out offensive launched by six Greek army divisions.

The communique said fighting around Nestorion and northwest of Grevena continued as the campaign went into its seventh day.

Fighting still raged for strategic Amouda Heights on the eastern side of the rebel flank.

The tough Greek Ninth Army division reported a major battle is shaping up around Pyrssoyani.

ECA Approves Large-Scale Buying Abroad in Aid Program

Large-scale purchases outside the United States were included in a new list of relief and recovery shipments approved yesterday by Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman.

A total of $122,004,849 worth of purchases for ten countries was provided in the new list. Among them was 10 million dollars' worth of copper from Chile, $3,500,000 worth of 30-ton freight cars to be built in Belgium, and smaller quantities of zinc ore from Peru, ethyl alcohol from Cuba, oil from Venezuela and cottonseed from Brazil.

Under the Economic Corporation Act of Congress, Hoffman has the right to buy ECA supplies anywhere. The understanding is that the so-called "off-shore purchases" will be limited to goods in short supply in the United States.

The chief limitation on his right is that for bulk commodities he must not pay higher than market prices in the United States, although he can make allowances for differences in transportation costs and in the quality of the goods.

Recently Hoffman showed that he felt free to buy in the Soviet-dominated countries of eastern Europe, and bought $405,000 worth of Polish coal for Austria.

France got the biggest share of the new purchases, with $14,947,287 worth for metropolitan France and North Africa and $6,323,800 worth of wheat for the French zone of Germany. Austria came next with $10,048,188 and Italy next with $9,079,497, almost half of it in wheat.

Meanwhile Hoffmann announced the appointment of Robert Allen Griffin, publisher of the Monterey (Calif.) Peninsula Daily Herald, to a key post in the ECA program in China. Griffin will be special assistant to Roger D. Lapham, former Mayor of San Francisco, who is now in China as chief of the ECA's special mission there.

British Oil Firm Head Arrested in Hungary

Budapest, Hungary, June 26 (U.P.).—The government announced today that Alexander Evans, British manager of Steana Romana Oil Co., was arrested June 8, while trying to leave the country.

Evans was charged with diverting funds to "so-called benevolent aid."

It said Evans, admitted payments totalling $100,000.

Argentina to Cut Production Unless World Pays Its Price

Buenos Aires, June 26 (AP).—Miguel Miranda, chairman of the National Economic Council, said today Argentina will cut production if her surplus food products are not sold to Marshall Plan countries.

His statement came after Struve Hensel a Marshall Plan representative, said the world does not need Argentine food at present prices. (Argentina has been asking up to $5 a bushel for wheat, more than double the Chicago price.)

Hensel told Miranda and President Juan D. Peron yesterday that better crop conditions in other countries probably would result in the inability of Argentina to sell her high-priced crops for Marshall Plan dollars.

In reply Miranda said today: 'Hensel is a very fine gentleman, but I do not see why he came to Buenos Aires from Washington just to tell us the world does not need Argentine food.

"If the world is going to starve, then Argentina will not get dollars. If the world needs to eat, we are going to get dollars."

There has been an undercover dispute between the United States and Argentina over the high prices of Argentine wheat and over the inability of United States business concerns in Buenos Aires to transfer profits back to the United States.

Miranda said Argentina will liquidate dollar obligations abroad little by little. All transfers of dollars for imports were halted May 14. Since then the Central Bank has gradually been permitting transfers for most essential imports. Miranda said confirmed letters of credit were not repudiated but were paid off as dollars became available.

Four days ago bank orders increased the exchange rate for imported manufactured goods to five pesos per $1. The orders were designed to bolster Argentine trade abroad.

Referring to the confusion created by the orders, a reporter asked if it were true that trade with the United States had been virtually halted. Miranda said:

"You answer that. If we do not have dollars, we can't spend them. If the United States wants us to play, it must let us have some marbles."

Miranda also announced that Britain and other European customers would be required to pay in dollars if they buy food from Argentina after the termination of the present barter treaties.

He said he had held discussions with Sir Reginald Leeper, retiring British Ambassador, concerning the British-Argentine agreement. Britain also has been insisting on the right of private companies to send profits to London. Transfers have been interrupted for the past year.

Argentina has insisted that Britain buy final end products of Argentine meat. Miranda said full agreement is in sight. He emphasized, however, that Argentina would refuse to buy luxuries from Britain.

New Coal Pact Opens Door for Steel Pay Hike

By Robert Nichols

A third-round wage increase for union steel workers appeared in the offing yesterday as a result of John L. Lewis' new contract with the major segment of the soft-coal industry.

Although operators of coal mines used exclusively by the large steel mills have refused to sign the United Mine Workers' contract so far, they have announced that they will "reluctantly" grant $1-a-day wage increases provided in the agreement.

These operators are expected to sign the Lewis contract before July 6, even though they have protested a union-shop clause in the contract. If they grant their miners a wage boost, the CIO United Steel Workers undoubtedly will again call for higher wages, too.

U. S. Steel Cut Prices

United States Steel Corp. already has rejected its workers' wage demands once this year, choosing instead to trim steel prices by 25 million dollars. This policy presumably would be laid aside if the coal contract is signed.

The steel companies have not yet offered a pay raise to the steel workers, who are headed by Philip Murray, but industry sources said such a move is under consideration. "Anyone can see that Big Steel's position is untenable," one official said. He added that the main question is how much to pay steel workers and when.

Meanwhile, President Truman's emergency fact-finding board reported to the White House yesterday that the threat of a Nation-wide strike in the soft-coal industry was over. The three-man panel told the President: "Our job is done."

Price of Coal to Go Up

They said they did not consider the refusal of the steel company coal interests to sign the new agreement a threat to "national health or safety." A contrary finding could have led to an 80-day injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act forbidding a strike by miners in the steel company mines.

The new wage boost for miners, according to industry spokesmen, may increase the retail price of soft coal between 75 cents and a dollar a ton. The industry estimated that the production costs would jump between 40 and 50 cents a ton.

Separately, yesterday, Ezra Van Horn, management trustee to the UMW's welfare and retirement fund, announced that he would agree to releasing more than 40 million dollars in the 1947 trust to pay miners $100 a month old-age pensions. Earlier last week Justice T. Alan Goldsborough of United States District Court ruled that the miners' pension program was legal.

Dewey Seen Hostile To Soviet Union

Moscow, June 25 (NYHT).—Articles in the Soviet press have pictured Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as an American politician hostile to the Soviet Union and friendly to American capitalists.

When Mr. Dewey was a candidate in 1944, Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper recalled that he once condemned the Roosevelt Administration's recognition of the Soviet Union. He also was referred to as an isolationist at the time when the Soviet Union welcomed President Roosevelt's support in the war against Germany.

'Widow's Mite'

SALVATION ARMY CONTRIBUTOR—Although aged Mrs. Cora Chavis, a resident of the Blue Plains Home for the Aged since 1932, said it was but a "widow's mite," her $4 contribution to the Salvation Army was deeply appreciated by campaign workers seeking $350,000 to rebuild Salvation Army facilities in Washington. Mrs. Chavis, 75, gives her donation to Lieut. Betty Wiliford. The fund drive will continue several weeks

Aged Widow in Home Sends $4 To Aid Salvation Army Drive

In generosity as heartwarming as that of a child who has but a penny to give, and gives it, a 75-year-old widow who lives at Blue Plains Home for the Aged and Infirm yesterday added her mite to the Salvation Army's building fund drive.

The widow is Mrs. Cora Chavis, a resident of Blue Plains since 1932. Her contribution made the Army $4 richer.

In a letter she sent along with her donation, Mrs. Chavis said:

"While I do not have much to give, I am herewith forwarding $4 to help the good cause of your work.

"I am giving this in commemoration of Father's Day and because I know what you are doing back in my old home State of North Carolina. Although this is only a widow's mite, it is sent along from the heart. God bless your good work . . . "

The Salvation Army hopes to raise $350,000 to rebuild its facilities here. The drive will continue for several weeks. Campaign headquarters is at 1435 K st. nw.

U. S. Citizenship Denied Tucci, Italian Writer

New York, June 26 (AP).—A Federal judge has denied U. S. citizenship to Niccolo Tucci, holding that the 40-year-old writer "had a low opinion of our form of government."

Judge John C. Knox said also that Tucci was "the head of Fascist propaganda" in this country before the war.

Tucci, who came here from Italy, said that "as a young man I was a Fascist because I was brought up in that atmosphere. But then I could stomach it no longer. I have found democracy and believe in it. I shall continue to be critical of things I find in democracy that would destroy it."

Goodrich, Third Member of Rubber's 'Big Four', Grants 11-Cent Wage Hike

Cleveland, June 26 (AP).—The third member of the rubber industry's "Big Four" granted a wage increase of 11 cents an hour today. That raised to approximately 68,000 the number of workers receiving the same boost.

B. F. Goodrich Co. and the CIO United Rubber Workers' Union announced today's agreement, covering about 17,000 employes.

There have been no official statements from company sources regarding possible price increases as a result, but trade sources in Akron believe boosts of about 5 per cent in passenger tires and 10 per cent in truck tires are in prospect.

The union originally asked 30 cents an hour from all of the "Big Four." Its stand, in accepting the 11-cent pattern for the industry, is that the smaller increase does not justify higher prices for tires.

Negotiations still are being conducted in New York with the fourth large producer, United States Rubber Co.

Bendix, CIO Union Reach Agreement

New York, June 26 (AP).—Bendix Aviation Corp. and the CIO United Automobile Workers announced tonight they had reached "full agreement."

The joint company-union statement gave no further details. It said the agreement would be submitted to local union memberships for approval.

However, Company Vice President M. A. Heidt indicated the wage settlement followed the 13-cent hourly offer made by Bendix earlier today.

Meanwhile, the joint statement disclosed, the negotiators agreed to extend until July 18 the present contract, covering 12,000 workers at five plants.

1000 Go on Strike At Castings Foundry

Indianapolis, June 26 (AP).—Approximately 1000 employes of the National Malleable & Steel Castings Co. went on strike early today and formed a picket line.

Representatives of the company and the union said they had failed to reach an agreement on a new contract to replace the one that expired June 18.

The company makes castings for Studebaker, Chrysler and Dodge motor cars.

Harvester Co., CIO Resume Wage Talks

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Representatives of the International Harvester Co. and a CIO union, working to beat a Monday night deadline, resumed negotiations today for a new wage agreement.

The contract between the company and the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers union expires at midnight Monday after a 30-day extension. About 40,000 workers in 12 Harvester plants are involved.

20 Million Chinese Homeless in Floods

Nanking, June 26 (AP).—Summer floods in nine south China provinces have left at least 20 million Chinese homeless and inundated more than two million acres of farmland, the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry reported today.

A spokesman termed crop losses "alarming." Added to cuts in production to the civil war, he said, it may produce famine conditions over large areas of China.

Communism Held Spreading in Asia

By Stanley Swinton

Singapore, June 26 (AP). — The flood of communism is spilling south from China over the rich lands of southeast Asia. Senior British officials assert Communists have launched a major offensive in the area.

An Associated Press survey shows that Communists are openly bidding for power in Malaya and Burma, and are trying to infiltrate into positions of influence in long-established non-Communist independence movements in Indo-China and Indonesia. Even in conservative Siam an increase in Communist activity is reported.

British officials, often best informed, say they believe the movement was launched after Communists digested their political conquests in eastern Europe and were rebuffed in Italy and France.

Aims Held Twofold

Information from southeast Asia's capitals and from British officials indicates Communist aims are twofold:

1. To slow the flow of rubber, tin, oil and other strategic raw materials into recovery factories and defense stockpiles of the United States and western Europe.

2. To lay the foundation for an eventual blow for full political control.

If the Communists are engaged in a major effort—as confidential reports indicate—it comes at a strategic moment.

Non-Communist nationalist independence movements have been stalemated in Indonesia and Indochina. Disillusionment may permit the Communists to make hay.

Uunions Mushroom

Since the war, labor unions have mushroomed among Asiatic workmen, many of whom are paid as little as $15 a month though living costs are many times prewar. Communists have moved into positions of influence.

Nationalist struggles for freedom from colonial rule are the outgrowth of half a century of development. Neutral observers agree these movements are not basically communistic, although some foreign business interests and colonial administrators seek to label them so.

Orders for the Communist offensive are believed by authorities to have come from elsewhere in Asia, but not from Russia or China.

"D-Day" in Malaya was seven weeks ago.

British officials say the new terrorist campaign in Malaya definitely is not the spontaneous outburst of peasants in a period of unrest, but is directed from a central headquarters—presumably a South Asian Comintern about which little is known.

So far, these oficials say, it is controlled by Asiatic Communists, with no evidence that the Kremlin is directly implicated, although presumably the general idea was authorized by Moscow.

The offensive, British officials say, may be extended elsewhere later.

This is the picture, country by country, as reported by Associated Press correspondents:

INDODNESIA

Qualified sources believe Communists count Indonesia as one of their most promising fields. The Indonesian Republic is gradually being worn down by a Dutch economic blockade during a year of so-far fruitless U. N. negotiations for a permanent settlement. Recent recognition of the republic by the Soviet Union and outspoken Soviet support for the Indonesians at Lake Success have increased the front's influence among non-Communists. The Communists are increasing their efforts and already there has been a swing to the left.

INDO-CHINA

Well-informed sources believe Indo-China is the second place upon which Communists are counting strongly.

About 120,000 French and French colonial troops have frustrated Vietnamese hopes for independence but have not yet been able actually to defeat the nationalists. The French sponsored apparently successful native governments in two southern Indo-China protectorates, Cambodia and Laos. Communist influence there is negligible. In far more important Vietnam—Tonkin, Annam and Cochin China—the French have now set up a "central Vietnam government" which most foreign observers consider a puppet regime virtually without popular support. The French have excluded and refused to deal with the Vietnam republicans. To head their new regime they are reenthroning the former Emperor Bao Dai who is generally conceded to have little popular backing.

Communist influence already is strong in Vietnam. Only 10 or 20 per cent of the Vietnam revolutionary rank and file are Communists. But the top leadership avowedly is Communist.

The first Communist target in southeast Asia is Malaya, the world's greatest producer of natural rubber. There, guerilla warfare already is underway. British officials say there is direct evidence that it is Communist-directed.

Terrorist attacks by small Communist bands against estates, mines and Chinese Kuomintang leaders have averaged more than one a day. At least 24 Chinese and Europeans have been killed in these attacks.

The Communists control an army of up to 5000 trained guerillas. These men operate on a military basis and are well armed and officered. Already rubber production has been slowed.

Military reinforcements have been moved north into Malaya, and 600 persons have been arrested in mass raids. But the assassinations continue.

BURMA

Open fighting has been reported for months between Communist guerillas and forces of the leftist government. Before Britain granted Burma independence in January, the Communists were among the loudest advocates of immediate independence. Once it was granted, they turned against the new independent government.

The most recent Communist strike was the capture of Waw, a railway station on the Rangoon-Mandalay line. About 500 Communist insurgents participated. Later government troops drove them out.

SIAM

Police Chief Chartrakarn Kosol said there has been increased Communist activity in Bangkok, including secret meetings and increased left-wing labor activity. Although realtively calm, Siam fears it may be next on the Communist list.

Siam has a right-wing government headed by Field Marshal Pibul Songgram. The only Communist member of Parliament was defeated in elections last January.

Solomon Wins Bar Group's $2500 Ross Essay Award

Frederic Solomon of 1447 Chapin st. nw., assistant counsel of the Federal Reserve Board has won the $2500 Ross Essay Award for 1948, the American Bar Association announced yesterday.

Solomon

Title of Solomon's prize-winning 4500-word essay was "What Steps Should Be Taken by the National and State Governments to Preserve the American Federal System and Restore Power and Responsibilities to the State and Local Governments?"

The Ross essay prize is awarded annually under the terms of the will of the late Judge Erskine M. Ross of Los Angeles for the best essay on a subject of vital public importance.

In the essay, Solomon proposed a National Committee on Intergovernmental Relations, composed of members from Congress, Federal executive, State and local governments, industry, agriculture and labor to study and report on means of strengthening Government responsibility.

The award will be presented in Seattle, Wash., at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association there on September 9.

Church Goes Russian

Moscow, June 26 (U.P.).—The Polish Orthodox Church has switched its allegiance from the Turkish patriarch to the head of the Russian Church in Moscow, Izvestia, official Soviet newspaper, said today.

Hard Fighting On Paper Seen In China War

Nanking, June 26 (AP).—Contradictory reports on the battle of Kaifeng strengthened convictions of neutral observers today that both sides in China's civil war fight harder on paper than anywhere else.

Kaifeng, capital of the central province of Honan, is a good example.

The Communists took it June 22. The official military spokesman pictured the city as largely in flames, while a small government garrison made a last-ditch defense.

Travelers who flew over Kaifeng the same day, when the action was said to be at its height, said they were unable to detect the slightest sign of fighting.

Observers declared the many reports of bitter, destructive conflict were intended to cover reluctance of government troops—especially small garrisons such as at Kaifeng—to put up firm resistance.

The government's quick recovery of Kaifeng was taken as an indication that the Communists likewise avoid battles unless favored by all factors.

House and Movie Predicted Hits of the Year

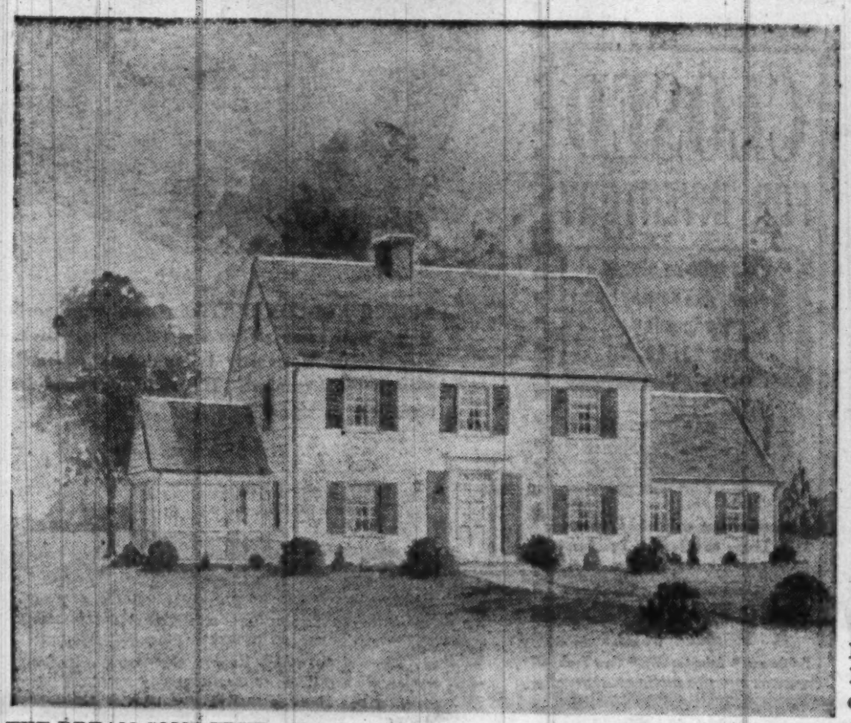
Myrna Loy

Washington, June 26.—David O. Selznick, releaser of the comedy hit, "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House," has telegraphed his congratulations to the four Washington business firms who are building and furnishing the Blanding Dream House in Sumner, the new W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Co. home community.

Washington firms congratulated by Selznick are the W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Co., the P. J. Nee Furniture Company, the Hudson Supply and Equipment Co., and the General Electric Supply Corporation of Washington.

The Blanding Dream House will be located out Massachusetts Avenue extended, three-quarters of a mile beyond Western Avenue, just off Fort Sumner Drive. The house will be ready for public inspection the latter part of July. The opening will coincide with the national release of "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House," the comedy co-starring Cary Grant, Myrna Loy, and Melvyn Douglas. "Mr. Blanding" is an RKO production—a Selznick release.

While the Blanding house will be equipped with the latest all-electric G. E. kitchen, gas-fired heating unit by Hudson Supply, and the finest Nee "Dreamhouse Furniture," the house will reflect the traditional pioneer spirit of America, the pride in personal property and love of the land.



THE DREAM COME TRUE. This is the Miller-Built home you will see. Spacious, beautifully proportioned, magnificently furnished and appointed, it is designed to specifications and blueprints of the original Blanding Dream House.

DREAMHOUSE FURNITURE from the P. J. Nee Co. will be used exclusively, in the Blanding Dream House here in Washington. All room settings will be similar to the original movie scenes.

Nee's Decorating House In Early Colonial Style

Washington, June 26.—Nee's staff of decorators will furnsh the Blanding Dream House in the Early Colonial style, the P. J. Nee Company revealed today. An exclusive line of solid maple furniture rubbed to a glowing finish, is being introduced this week at all three Nee stores and will be used in the Blanding Dream House in Sumner.

Nee's selected traditionally American furniture for the traditionally American Blanding House—a nine-room Colonial "salt box." The decorating motif for the Washington house was actually taken from Myrna Loy's own Connecticut home, the original model from which all the Blanding Dream Houses have been adapted.

The exclusive Blanding furnishings will be on display in the windows of the three Nee stores—H Street at 7th, G Street between 11th and 12th, and 215 King Street in Alexandria. There will be a preview showing of the Blanding General Electric kitchen at Nee's next month.

The same decorators who are furnishing the Blanding Dream House in Sumner are available to Washington homemakers at the three Nee stores. The Nee decorators will be glad to make suggestions about furnishing your home and will help you select the pieces you need from Nee's large stock of Dreamhouse Furniture. There is no charge or obligation for this personalized Nee service.

Dream Houses Feature General Electric Kitchen

Washington, June 26.—When RKO and Selznick planned the picture "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House," General Electric was unanimously chosen to furnish the kitchen with General Electric equipment. Then, when 74 builders throughout the United States, including our own city, decided to duplicate the Dream House, General Electric was again chosen for every kitchen. When you see the all-electric General Electric kitchen in the Washington Dream House you'll know the reason why! G.E.'s new appliances actually make your kitchen a beauty spot in your home; they take the work out of housework, too!

The handsome General Electric sink includes an electric dish washer and garbage disposal unit. The roomy refrigerator has one of the new, convenient, economical home freezer compartments. The range (the G.E. "Stratoliner") has "master mind" automatic controls that mean hours of extra freedom for every housewife. Even the sturdy metal cabinets are General Electric.

Whether you're building a new home or re-modeling your present one—see your local General Electric dealer before you plan your kitchen. He has a special kitchen consultant who will tackle your particular problem and will help you select the equipment you need. He will work out a space-saving, step-saving plan for you—right down to the last detail. This special service is yours without cost or obligation.

W. C. & A. N. Miller Completing Dream House

Washington, June 26.—In conjunction with the release of the RKO-Selznick comedy hit "Mr. Blanding Builds His Dream House," to be shown soon in Washington, the W.C. & A.N. Miller Development Co. were selected to build a replica of this house made famous by the book of Eric Hodgins. Mr. Blanding Dream Houses are being built in 74 cities in the United States.

Washington's Blanding Dream House is under construction now in Sumner, the newest of the W. C. & A.N. Miller home communities, located in the rolling Maryland countryside off Massachusetts Avenue, just beyond Westmoreland Circle. Sumner enjoys the same natural advantages of woods and streams, gentle hills and restful vistas that have added so much to the beauty of the other two Miller-built communities, Wesley Heights and Spring Valley. Behind this new Miller development are more than 36 years of home building and community planning, and Sumner carries on the tradition.

Recognizing the need for more homes of high character in a planned and controlled community, the Miller Company has undertaken the development of Sumner to meet the need of those who want homes in a community comparable to Wesley Heights and Spring Valley. Sumner has all the same natural beauty of these other Miller built communities and is in a section where the trend is toward the building of finer homes such as the Blanding Dream House.

Nowhere else in Washington can there be found communities in which so much has combined to offer the homemaker everything he may want in the home which he dreams of making the permanent residence of his family—the home in which his children will grow to manhood and womanhood and to which they will return with increasing joy, pride and satisfaction.

THE BLANDINGS are making the great decision, to buy or not to buy the 170-year-old house which the owner says has charm and great value, and will only reluctantly sell it to Blanding at a very high price.

MOVING DAY arrives, but prematurely. Due to eviction from their old apartment, the Blandings are forced to move into their Dream House before it is completed.

JEALOUS MR. BLANDING believes his best friend and lawyer, Bill Cole (played by Melvyn Douglas) is trying to steal the affections of Mrs. Blanding. The family counselor spends a cozy evening with Mrs. Blanding while Mr. Blanding works.

THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART is through the General Electric Kitchen shown here. Complete in every detail it soon becomes the center of activity for the Blandings, just as it will in your own Dream House.

Guard Curbs Enlistments Except in D. C.

It takes longer to get a message from the National Guard Bureau in the Pentagon to the District National Guard here than it does to deliver the same message to San Francisco or Bangor, Me.

This was proved yesterday in the latest episode involving the District National Guard.

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall decided Friday that all Guard units that went over their quota in last week's flood of recruiting should halt further enlistments.

Message Teletyped

This message was delivered to the National Guard Bureau in the Pentagon where it was immediately rushed on the teletype system to Guard units from one coast to the other, that is, with the exception of the District.

The District unit, it seems, receives its orders by mail. A letter carrying the Royall message was mailed Friday morning, according to Maj. Ralph Pearson, public relations officer of the Guard Bureau, addressed to the Adjutant General of the District Guard at the Guard headquarters in the Armory.

However, Col. Peyton Nevitt, the District unit's adjutant general, is away for the weekend and so the District National Guard is accepting enlistments as usual, according to Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding officer.

D. C. Unit is "70 Over Quota"

The general told reporters yesterday until he received the message he would "not change my plans of recruiting. We will take any good man, except those from 19 to 25, who qualifiies."

At present, the local unit is "about 70 over quota," but when some fail to meet physical standards or get sick or leave town, "as we expect," the unit will be within or below the quota of 2633, General Cox explained.

Meanwhile, or until someone at the Pentagon lifts up the phone and dials Executive 2333—the guard's number in the armory—the District National Guard is accepting new members.

Naval Reservists Visit Bermuda . . .

PBY PLANE FROM ANACOSTIA SOARS OVER HAMILTON, CAPITOL OF BERMUDA

By Walter Wood
Post Reporter

Hamilton, Bermuda—Two years and nine months after the end of the war, this is still a well-manicured American base.

For 25 Washington Naval Air Reservists and four correspondents last week it was simply the terminus of a 6½-hour aerial taxi ride from Anacostia Naval Air Station—via PBY.

Two flying boats made the navigational training flight here and landed without incident after weathering a storm midway across the 720-mile expanse of Atlantic.

Loran, a cousin of radar, celestial navigation and dead reckoning were responsible for picking out this island—150 miles from any check point and no larger than an oyster at 10,000 feet.

The reservists, who combined recreation with the educational flight, discovered, among other things, that:

1. This pink, white and green island of Bermuda is a thing of beauty, but not a joy forever. (Keats would have found the days too hot, the nights too damp.)

2. Liquor is cheap, but you can take only one gallon home.

3. Cashmere sweaters for the girl a fellow needs can be bought in Washington for the same price, perfume for less.

4. If you haven't got money to burn, stay home.

Those who made the flight are: Lieut. Comdr. Page B. Clagett, 30, flight leader, of Mitchellville, Md.; Lieut. S. E. Beers, 27, copilot, assistant curator of the National Air Museum, Smithsonian Institution; Ensign B. Abernathy, 28, navigator, of Arlington, Va.; First Mechanic F. Lago, 27, plane captain, of Anacostia Naval Air Station; Second Mechanic R. W. Holden, 22, of College Park, Md.; First Radioman H. W. Hollinger, 24, of 1829 Lamont st. nw.; Second Radioman J. E. Duffey, 21, of 1749 Kilbourne pl. nw.; Lieut (jg) H. P. Luckey, 34, radar-loran operator, 1204 Trenton pl. se.; Chief Photographer E. B. Barrow, 26, of 2715 31st st. se.; Lieut. Comdr. Wayne E. Pomfrey, public information officer, Anacostia Naval Air Station; Lieut (jg) M. Y. Aldridge, 25, patrol plane commander, 1455 Massachusetts ave nw.; Lieut. (jg) P. A. Hogue, 27, copilot, 4812 Stuart ave., Richmond, Va.; Ensign John S. Karowski, 24, navigator, 49 Girard st ne.; First Mechanic W. O. Dillon, 25, of 2553 Garrett ave., Baltimore, Md.; Second Mechanic J. F. Benzinger, 23, Sparks, Md.

First Radioman H. W. Brown, Benedict, Md.; Second Radioman W. C. Knippenburg, 25, Anacostia Naval Air Station; Aerographer M. J. Hynson, 23, of 1034 Wilmington pl. se.; Capt. Henry A. Monat, 46, medical officer, 1016 16th st. nw.; Pharmacist Mate First Class A. G. Henebry, 34, of 3011 7th st. se.; Photographer G. B. Worthington, 35, of 5401 Janice lane se.; Ensign T. Tufty, 25, assistant public information officer, 207 N. Royal st., Alexandria, Va.; Lieut. (jg) O. Hunsacker, Navy Department public information officer, 1600 16th st. nw.; Observer N. T. Benson, 29, of 3002 Q st. nw., and Observer Harry Hoben, 18, of 314 Maryland ave. ne.

Ranking American officer on the island is Rear Admiral Ausin K. Doyle, a veteran of both World Wars, who played baseball as a midshipman at Annapolis. Doyle is the kind of a man a sailo. ould like to serve under. He has only praise for the Naval Reserve.

"The Reserve is on the Navy's first team," said . It is our second line of defense."

Naval Air Reserve Has 35 Vacancies

Thirty-five vacancies still exist in the Washington Naval Air Reserve Unit at Anacostia Naval Air Station, despite last week's rush of young men to sidestep the draft. As many as 264 District youths applied for membership in the first three days of the week, increasing the unit's strength from 782 to 1046. Authorized limit is 1081.

Truman Eyes Plans for Draft With Start Set for August 16

By Robert J. Donovan

Plans are under consideration by President Truman to register men between the ages of 18 and 25 for the new draft between August 16 and September 15, it was learned yesterday. Different days will be designated for registration of different age groups.

Only men between 19 and 25 are subject to induction into the armed forces under the 21-month draft law signed by the President Thursday. Inductions may begin on September 22—90 days from the date of signing—or earlier if there should be a national emergency.

However, an official familiar with the Selective Service procedure for registration, filling out questionnaires, appeals on classifications, physical examinations and so on said it was unlikely that many draftees would be in uniform before October 15.

The registration procedure is now undergoing study at the White House on the basis of recommendations from the Office of Selective Service records, and until the President issues official draft regulations, all plans remain tentative.

The recommendations before him, it was learned, call for a month-long registration period, tentatively scheduled to start on Monday, August 16. instead of registration of all eligible men on a single day.

Selective Service officials favor alloting three days for the registration of each age group except the oldest—those who are nearly 26. This group would be smaller than the others and thus could be registered on one day. Under present plans it would be the first group registered.

It is expected that about 9,600,000 men will register between August 16 and September 15 and that the total number of registrations will rise to 10,800,000 by the end of the year.

During the next year at least 250,000 persons are expected to be drafted and more than that if voluntary enlistment drops off.

The Army, Navy and Air Force are expected to announce next week that they will accept enlistment of 18-year-olds. The subject may arise at a press conference which Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall has scheduled for 10:30 a. m. Monday.

A youth of 18 may avoid eventual draft by enlisting for 12 months and then going into the reserves for 6 years.

Those exempt from the new draft include present members of the armed forces, the National Guard and the active reserves. Exemptions or deferments from induction are granted to veterans who served at least 90 days between Pearl Harbor and VJ-Day; to pre-Pearl Harbor and post-VJ-Day men who served 12 months or who, if they served less than 12 months, join organized reserve units.

Road Hog 'Pushes' Passing Car at 60 MPH

Memphis, Tenn., June 26 (AP).—Two men were fined today after a physician testified they "pushed" his car for about 3 miles at 60 to 70 miles an hour.

J. W. Sandridge, 27, was fined $100 on charges of malicious mischief and reckless driving. A passenger was fined $25 for malicious mischief.

Dr. J. A. Smith testified the men would not let him pass their car on a lonely road yesterday but finally he passed them at a wide place. Then, he said, they overtook him and pushed his car.

Why "Stepping Down" is so important to you

Hudson amazes motor-car world by using vital "step-down" zone—not available in any other car—to bring you riding qualities and safety beyond anything known before!

Word's going 'round—and fast, too—that the sensational Hudson, the only car you step down into, gives you a "sweet," smooth, safe ride that is a new high mark in motor-car performance!

Perhaps you've heard pleased and proud Hudson owners talking about this exciting new motoring experience, but here's something you may have missed hearing:

The key to this amazing new ride lies in that area just under the floor of the average car, which in the New Hudson becomes the "step-down" zone—as illustrated in the sketches below.

This "step-down" zone is all-important, because experience has shown that the lower to the ground a car can be built, the better it will handle, the more stability it will have, the safer it will be, and thus the more enjoyable and comfortable will be your ride.

Hudson, and Hudson alone, has accomplished a near miracle of low-built streamlining and smooth, safe, comfortable riding with an ingenious foundation frame and "step-down" zone. This new type of base frame surrounds the passenger compartment, and thus permits the floor to be lowered down within it. Recessing the floor creates the "step-down" zone and a center of gravity that is the lowest in any American stock car—yet road clearance is ample!

That's why Hudson has a hug-the-road way of going, even in cross-winds, and on every conceivable kind of highway. When you see how this car takes even the sharpest curves, it will spoil you for any other type of automobile! You sense this delightful conformity to the road the minute you begin your ride; and this stability, plus the protection of riding encircled by a sturdy box-section steel frame, gives you a grand feeling of safe well-being.

Then, as you get out in the open spaces, the rest of the story unfolds.

Sitting in this car is as downright satisfying as stretching out in your favorite easy chair. You ride on seats that are lowered and cradled ahead of the rear wheels and, even with its low silhouette, this breathtakingly beautiful motor car gives you more head room than any other mass-produced car built today! The remarkable roadability and comfort of the New Hudson bring you to the end of even your longest trips pleasantly relaxed.

Hudson's use of the vital "step-down" zone in its exclusive, all steel Monobilt body-and-frame* is a development that required years of engineering work, the perfection of new production techniques, and millions of dollars in highly specialized new plant investment. Perhaps this explains why Hudson alone offers this new design principle today.

"Stepping down" is the most thrilling motor-car story in years, and the nearest Hudson dealer has a booklet—yours for the asking—which more fully explains how "stepping down" brings you riding qualities and safety—as well as beauty, roominess and comfort—beyond anything you've known before! Hudson Motor Car Company, Detroit 14. *Trade-mark and patents pending.

OTHER CARS—Here you can see that any car with floor on top of the frame, as shown above, fails to utilize that all-important space between frame members (heretofore wasted by placing floor on top of the frame). This results in a high center of gravity, and either a high roof line or insufficient head room.

NEW HUDSON—Here the important space between frame members, shown above, becomes the "step-down" zone—a highly useful addition to interior passenger roominess that creates a new, lower center of gravity, which in turn permits greater safety, improved roadability and ride, a low, streamlined silhouette.

This time it's Hudson

Women Told Of Needs for Conventions

By Christine Sadler Coe

Philadelphia, June 24.—Memo to women who may be headed this way shortly to attend the national Democratic Party convention—or the third party jamboree later on.

You may not have to fight your way through as enormous a swarm of people as overflowed the GOP's victory-minded jamboree, but your life won't be easy. Remember that Philadelphia—although beloved by all believers in the Liberty Bell—is not equipped physically to handle such hordes in comfort. Its streets are narrow. Its hotels are few, and their elevators were designed to hold no more tnan five to six small persons.

Remember, also, that television and some of the other modern contrivances were designed for the enjoyment of absentees—and will make your life here more complicated. Wear dark glasses, as protection from their glare, be prepared to stumble around their equipment in streets, hotels and the convention hall. What is more, blame them and the postwar census figures for the sardine-like existence you will have in your convention seat. They take up a big amount of room, and so do all the extra people who have come of voting age since the two Roosevelts.

Wear your most comfortable clothes. GOP women are divided on the merits of cotton and rayon, but unitedly for short sleeves and one-piece dresses. If you must wear a hat, make it a tiny one. Remember, however, that bare heads are acceptable almost everywhere now and any excess baggage gets hot, heavy, and in the way. You may not agree with Clare Boothe Luce in politics, but she looked more comfortable and, of course, more glamorous than any woman at this convention. She went bareheaded most of the time, wore only one-piece dresses with short sleeves, and only flat heels.

Lowest Heels Safest

The lowest heels you have are the safest here, for steps are everywhere. You may not think you will walk to your fifth-floor room—but you will. Get your leg muscles in trim. Any seat you have at the hall will take blocks of walking to find and you will stand in line for meals, regardless.

Eat a big breakfast, for you may not catch the eye of a waiter again soon nor find a table. Some GOPers who had to give up lunch and had no breakfast got sick.

Dress for the entire day for getting back to your room—or anywhere else—becomes a major problem in logistics, and convention schedules can change quicker than you can find an elevator. If you get invited to parties—and they seem to average about 50 per delegate—go on as you are. Everybody will understand.

If you come with your husband rather than in a political capacity, let him do what he pleases. Conventions come only each four years and he is apt to feel pretty strongly about them.

Take the Convention Hall buses back to town. They're faster than the taxis.

Keep Voice in Trim

Above all, have your voice in trim if you're going to speak, and make your speech short and snappy. GOPers let women do a terrific amount of talking and some of it was good—but don't be trapped into believing that either your radio audience or anybody in the convention hall is there to be bored.

Leave out the corn, regardless. Leave that to the men, if your party just has to have it. Your audience is more critical and if you want to reach rank and file voters remember that you are living in the twentieth century. Somebody just might be interested in what you think about some of today's problems. Let history books speak for the ancient heroes of your party and don't waste your opportunity to be affirmative by devoting your time to a chastisement of the opposition.

Try to make women proud of you and assume that at least some of them are going to be voting on issues and the faith they have in your party's intelligence as it is in 1948—not 40 years ago. Most of them already know that Washington crossed the Delaware.

Heat Inside Sun Overestimated, Scientists Say

Pasadena, Calif., June 26 (AP).—A simple new atom smasher, smaller than a milk bottle, has enabled scientists to calculate that the inside of the sun probably is three or four million degrees cooler than formerly believed.

This brings the interior temperature down to about 16 million degrees centigrade or 27 million degrees Fahrenheit. However, it does not mean that the sun is burning itself out at a slower rate than previously believed.

The rate is the same but the fire is not nearly so hot as was thought.

The reason for this difference is that the little atom smasher shows the atom-smashing process which produces solar heat can take place about 100 times faster than had been estimated.

The sun uses its own heat to transform the atoms in its makeup and thus produce the energy it throws out in all directions. Since the sun's energy output is pretty well known, scientists are faced with the necessity of revising downward their previous estimates of its inner temperature.

This was reported to the American Physical Society by Dr. R. F. Christy and the Rev. Father J. O'Reilly of the California Institute of Technology. It was the result of tean work by several scientists at Caltech.

The little atom smasher was built by Dr. R. N. Hall under a grant from the Office of Naval Research. It produces 120,000-volt protons or atomic bullets which are like those used in the sun.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Truman Seen Signing U. S. Pay Increase Bill With Blast at Congress

Questions—scores of them—are being asked by Federal workers on the pay raise bill which was approved by Congress a few hours before it adjourned. These are the important points at issue and their answers:

Q: Will the pay bill be signed into law by the President?

A: Absolutely, about the middle of this week. The bill gives the President a splendid opportunity to take another uppercut at Congress for voting legislation that was discriminatory and unfair to many classes of Federal people. The President isn't likely to pass it by.

Q: Will the pay bill deny employes the in-grade raises that are due around July 1?

A: Absolutely not. If you're entitled to an automatic increase, you'll get it in addition to the pay increase voted by Congress.

Q: How will the pay raise for legislative employes be computed, on base or gross pay?

A. It will be added to gross pay which means legislative employes will get $330 each. If it had been added to base pay the legislative people would get $330 plus 10 per cent, or $363 each. But the Capitol Hill disbursing officer has definitely decided the increase is added to gross salary.

Q. Does the pay bill increase the salaries of foreign service people?

A. No definite decision on this. However, State officials take the position that the bill includes them. The comptroller general is likely to be asked to decide the legal tangle.

Q. When does the bill become effective?

A. The bill clearly states that it will become effective the first pay period following June 30. Federal agencies have different pay periods. Due to the staggered and delayed pay periods, most employes will receive their larger paychecks in late July and early August.

Q. Can classified employes be certain of another pay raise in January?

A.—No. You can't be sure of anything that must be approved by Congress. However, the 10 Senate and House conferees on the pay bill did promise to make revision of the Classification Act its first order of business in January. This revision would boost classified salaries an average of $90 each. You can be certain of this—that all employe groups will join in demand for a new increase.

Q.—I have a letter from my Congressman which says that the salaries of per diem employes will be raised $330 by the bill. Is that correct?

A.—Your Congressman should know better. No salaries of per diem employes are raised by the bill. These wages are fixed by local wage boards.

Q.—Does the pay bill include a provision which will raise the travel allowance of Federal workers from $6 to $8 a day?

A.—It does not. A separate bill, approved by the Senate, to raise the allowance from $6 to $8 failed to pass the House. I understand that Majority Leader Charles Halleck refused to allow it to be considered. Since Halleck has been traveling since the congressional recess he probably realizes by now that it's not possible to pay meals and hotel on $6 a day.

Q.—Will the 6 per cent deduction for retirement be taken out of my present salary or my new salary which will include the $330 increase?

A.—The six per cent will be deducted from your new base salary which includes the $330 raise. The original House bill provided for a temporary increase on which no deduction for retirement would be made. The bill now before the President makes permanent the $450 raise for postal and the $330 boost for classified employes. Therefore, the six per cent will be deducted from the pay raises. Incidentally, the retirement deduction will be raised from five to six per cent next month.

HOUSECLEANING: If elected, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP nominee, promises a housecleaning of Federal agencies in this city. That's easier said than done. Here's why:

1. 92 per cent of the 1,800,000 Federal jobs in this country are under Civil Service. The agencies whose employes are not under Civil Service, have merit systems of their own, and besides, they are not the type of agencies a new Administration would tamper with;

2. Only a few hundred jobs are filled by appointees who serve at the pleasure of the President, mainly Cabinet and little cabinet members. All board and commission members are appointed to serve terms with the single exception of the Civil Service commissioners, and finally,

3. Dewey, if elected, will find it most difficult to fill top Federal jobs what with the unrealistic $10,330 ceiling on most salaries.

These are the agencies whose employes are not under Civil Service:

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Central Intelligence Agency, Tennessee Valley Authority, State's Foreign Service and the Federal Reserve System. Also, the legislative and judicial branches.

Of course, a new President could exempt big blocs of Federal jobs from Civil Service. But if he did, he'd run smack into trouble with the Veteran's Preference Act.

Most legal jobs aren't under Civil Service. In theory, postmaster jobs are in the classified service but politics still plays an important part in filling them. Collectors of Internal Revenue and a scattering of other jobs could be filled by a new President—a very small number in comparison with the 1,800,000 total.

It's possible, of course, that a new Administration could junk temporarily the Civil Service system until it filled jobs with its own people. That's unlikely since thousands of Federal jobs are now open—and they are open to Republicans as well as Democrats.

The Dewey people are well aware of the handicap of trying to get top-flight people to come here unless the $10,330 ceiling is lifted. At a recent meeting of a Civil Service group in New York, Dewey leaders urged it to do everything possible to get Congress to raise salaries of Federal officials. They pointed out that Dewey had been responsible for raising salaries of New York officials to a point much higher than the Federal official level.

And official salaries would have been raised had it not been for the Byrd Blunder. Senator Byrd (D., Va.), was responsible for striking out of the pay bill needed increases for these people—a body blow for good government. But if the Republicans win, it's a good bet that Byrd won't fight the pay raises.

Maryland Bar Votes For Ban on Red Party

Convention Told Stress on Rights Hinders Moves Against Sedition

Atlantic City, N. J., June 26 (AP).—The Maryland State Bar Association today adopted a resolution calling for the outlawing of the Communist and any other "subversive party."

The resolution was adopted almost unanimously at the association's final convention session after Frank B. Ober, Baltimore lawyer, referred to the Communist Party as an arm of "Russian aggression."

He said planned sedition by such groups is "the immediate menace" to the United States.

He said "undue attention to free speech and civil rights" has hindered congressional moves against seditious organizations.

"We must have the power to prevent sedition before the shooting starts," he declared, "if we are to keep out of war or be in a position to successfully defend ourselves."

Ober said the Supreme Court, which he dubbed the "new court," has blocked efforts of Congress and the United States to protect the country against seditious movements. He contended the "new court" rulings give "preferred status" to subversive groups through free speech protections.

The association elected William C. Walsh of Cumberland president at its final business session. Walsh is a former Attorney General of Maryland.

Others Elected

Robert Griswold, Baltimore, was elected treasurer, and S. V. Champman, Baltimore, secretary.

Circuit vice presidents named were: Judge Levin C. Bailey, Salisbury, First Circuit; S. Scott Beck, jr., Chestertown, Second Circuit; Judge Frederick Lee Cobourn, Bel Air, Third Circuit; John Wagaman, Hagerstown, Fourth Circuit; Benjamin Michaelson, Annapolis, Fifth Circuit; Robert E. Clapp, jr., Frederick, Sixth Circuit; Judge Charles C. Marbury, Upper Marlboro, Seventh Circuit; John M. Butler and William Curran, both of Baltimore, Eighth Circuit.

Named to the executive council were Reuben Oppenheimer and Judge Emory H. Niles, both of Baltimore; Parsons Newman, Frederick, and William J. McWilliams, Baltimore.

2 Md. Groups Oppose Ban On Crime News

Atlantic City, N. J., June 26 (AP).—Opposition of two groups of Maryland newspapermen to proposed rules restricting the publication or broadcast of crime news was aired today at a convention of the Maryland State Bar Association.

A telegram from Phillip J. Austensen, president of the Prince Georges Press Association, and John W. Coffman, jr., head of the Montgomery County Press Association, was read at the final business session of the convention.

The telegram said that press representatives throughout the State were preparing to take more considered action in the matter, and asked the bar to delay action in passing judgment on the rules which have been proposed by a special committee of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

In submitting the telegram, officials of the bar association suggested it did not call for discussion at the present time, and none arose.

The Appellate Court committee proposed extension of rules in force in Baltimore for some years to apply to all the counties.

Baltimore City Court rules prohibit, among other things:

The taking of a picture of the accused without his consent; issuance by anyone officially connected with a case of statements made by an accused or publication of such statements and discussion of the future course of a trial.

This Is the Way They Go to Camp . . .

The Washington Post

IN BUSINESS—To raise money for a summer vacation at camp, these Falls Church, Va., youngsters are selling puppies and doing odds and ends in the neighborhood. They are (from left) Ray Bowers, 14, of 1816 N. Quantico; Anne DiGiulian, 11, and her sister, Carla, 9, of 1827 N. Quantico; Mary Anne Greiner, 11, and her brother, Jimmy, 13, of 215 E. Marshall st. The girls are Camp Fire and Blue Bird Girls. The boys are Scouts of Troop 181 at St. James' Church. Grieners are selling pups

D. C. Youth Killed in Car Upset in Md.

Dunn Loring Bride, Seat Pleasant Woman Also Traffic Victims

A Washington youth was killed and another seriously injured last night when their automobile overturned on Maryland Route 416 near Chaney's in Calvert County, Md.

Killed was Millard F. Zepp, 3d, 16, of 5304 2nd st. nw., said by Maryland State Police to have been the driver.

In the Prince Frederick Hospital in serious condition is a companion, Samuel O. Naecker, about the same age, 516 Rittenhouse st. nw.

According to police the convertible coupe "apparently had been traveling at an excessive speed." The road is one of the heavily traveled approaches to the North Beach-Chesapeake Beach pleasure section.

Earlier a Dunn Loring, Va., woman who was married in Washington Monday died in Harrisburg, Pa., of traffic injuries suffered while returning from her Niagara Falls honeymoon.

The woman, Mrs. Kathryne Lund, 40, never regained consciousness after the accident, which occurred at Amity Hall, Pa., near Harrisburg.

Her husband, Einor G. Lund, 42, is in serious condition in Harrisburg Hospital. Doctors there said he suffered fractures of the skull and left leg and multiple body bruises.

The Lund automobile collided head-on with a beer truck, State police said.

A 38-year-old Seat Pleasant woman was fatally injured in a collision near Warrenton, Va., Friday, while returning from a church conference.

The victim, Mrs. Marion Brown Courtney, died shortly after being admitted to Physicians Hospital, Warrenton, after a collision with a truck on Route 211 at Gainesville, Va.

She and a companion, T. Bruce Morgan, 3425 Eastern ave., were returning from an advanced conference of Episcopal Church members at Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va. Morgan suffered face cuts.

Mrs. Courtney was active in the affairs of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Seat Pleasant, and Morgan is a member of St. John's Episcopal Church, Mount Rainier. He is preparing to enter the ministry, the Rev. J. J. Ambler, rector of Pinkney Memorial Episcopal Church, Hyattsville, said.

Three persons were in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, after a two-car collision on the Old Georgetown-Boyds rd. in Montgomery County late Thursday night. Eloise Hubble, 17, Beallsville, suffered a fractured jaw and head injuries; William Washington, Germantown, fractured leg and arm and head injuries, and Harry Turner, Germantown, fractured leg.

44 Youngsters Mow Lawns, Sell Puppies for Camp Money

Out Falls Church, Va., way a double handful of Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls are mowing lawns and peddling puppies—to put themselves through summer camp.

The youngsters, 28 members of Scout Troop 181 and 16 Camp Fire Girls and Bluebirds, are also washing windows, cars, dishes, babysitting, and even ironing papa's shirts to raise the money.

The girls go to Camp Mawavi near Triangle, Va. July 14 to 28, and they need $32 each. The Scouts will attend Camp Theodore Roosevelt near North Beach, Md. from August 16 to 30. It will cost them $24.

Two of the children, Jimmy and Mary Anne Greiner of 215 E. Marshall st., Falls Church, are feeding, coddling and curring a six-pup litter produced by the family Cocker Spaniel, Beebe.

When the pups are sold, their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Greiner, will give them a share of the proceeds.

By other methods, the Greiner children already have raised about $45 between them. Their mother feels the experience will be "more fully appreciated" when the children pay their own way.

For example, 9-year-old Carla DiGiulian, of 1827 N. Quantico st., Arlington, a Bluebird, has raised $7 mowing lawns and delivering papers for her brother.

And her 11-year-old sister, Anne, scraped up $11 by washing dishes and minding the family's year-old baby.

Scout Ray Bowers, 14, of 1816 N. Quantico st. expects to swell his current $5 take when he peddles the blackberries growing near his grandmother's house.

Painter Held As Fake in 'Arrest' of 2

Motorists Nabbed For 'Speeding' Say He Changed Story

A 38-year-old painter, who "arrested" two motorists for speeding and then told police they had robbed him, was held under $1000 bond in Municipal Court yesterday on charges of impersonating a police officer and making a false report.

Police said Frank Ray, 36, Falls Church, Va., a painter at the Naval Gun Factory, stopped Frank Hogue, 1403 3d st. nw., and Leslie Sanders, 51 Randolph pl. nw., while they were driving near police headquarters about 12:30 a. m. Friday.

He identified himself as a police sergeant and accused them of speeding, police said. Then he hauled the pair before Lieut. Herbert Wanamaker at police headquarters, but changed his story to say the two men had stopped him and robbed him, according to police.

Police finally untangled the story and advised Hogue and Sanders to get a warrant. Ray was arrested later Friday when he appeared at police headquartes voluntarily. His case was continued to July 15.

He is also under $300 bond as a Government witness in a case in which he has accused five youths of beating and robbing him in a parking lot near Union Station, June 18, police said.

When the case came up in Municipal Court, June 19, Ray refused to identify the youths and admitted that full restitution had been made of the money taken from him. The five youths, however, were held under $1000 bond each for grand jury action on robbery charges, according to police.

Chevy Chase Man Forfeits $25 For Hitting Boy

George H. Mitchell, 52, of 15 E. Irving st., Chevy Chase, Md., has forfeited $25 collateral on a charge of striking 11-year-old Ronald Sinclair, 6021 Western ave. nw., police reported yesterday.

The incident occurred after the Sinclair boy and Mitchell's 9-year-old son had an argument over their homemade wagons.

An assault warrant was authorized by Assistant United States Attorney Evan A. Davis, following a hearing last week. He recommended the collateral be as low as $25 and that it be forfeited because the assault was an "unfortunate neighborhood incident" that did not merit stringent penalties.

Mitchell appeared at the First Precinct station house Friday to pay the collateral after police informed him they had received the warrant, police said.

Candidate Quits League for Stand On Hatch Act

Harold L Schliz, Arlington and Washington attorney and a Democrat candidate for the Arlington County Board, yesterday asked that his name be taken from the membership rolls of the Better Government League.

One reason for the action, he said, was the league's opposition to lifting of Hatch Act restrictions which bar Government workers from participating in local elections.

In addition, Schliz said he had learned that the league was behind a "so-called" nonpartisan candidate for the board. He said he could see little difference between "working for or working against" a partisan candidate as far as the Hatch Act is concerned.

Farm Where Boy Killed Three Is Sold at Auction

The 267-acre Snyder farm near Darnestown, Md., scene of a triple shooting by a 14-year-old boy in November, 1946, was sold at auction yesterday for $30,000.

Purchaser was Charles Iler, Bethesda real estate man who owns 100 acres of adjoining woodland.

It was in the kitchen of the two-story frame farmhouse that young Bobby Snyder shot and killed his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Snyder, and their 13-year-old foster daughter, Jane Anne. He is now serving a life sentence in the Maryland State Penitentiary.

Proceeds from the sale will accrue to estate of the victims. Disposition of the estate, however, is still a puzzle as an equity examiner in Montgomery County Circuit Court professed inability last April to determine the order of the three deaths. The foster son was deprived of his inheritance rights upon his conviction of the triple murder.

New Jelleff Store To Open Sept. 1

The new Silver Spring store of Frank R. Jelleff, Inc., women's specialty stores, will be completed by September 1, Frank R. Jelleff, firm president, said yesterday.

Located at 8635 Colesville rd., the two-story store building will contain 35,000 square feet and is being constructed of limestone, marble, brick and transite. Provision is being made for future additions of a third and fourth floor.

Military Engineers Will Hear Gen. Grant

The Washington post of the American Society of Military Engineers will meet at 12:30 p. m. Monday in the Burlington Hotel.

Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will speak on "The Problem of Civilian Defense Today."

Two Additional Spotted Fever Cases Reported

Two new admissions for spotted fever were reported by area hospitals yesterday, while a third victim wsa said to still be in critical condition.

Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, reported the admission of Leslie R Hill, jr., 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie R. Hill of Dawsonville, Md. His was the third tick case reported in Montgomery County.

At Children's Hospital, 9-year-old James Kern, son of Mrs. Effie Kern of Warrenton, Va., was admitted Friday. Also at Children's was Arthur Lent, jr., 3-year-old son of Mrs. Ethel Lent, Oakton, Va., admitted last week.

Erwin N. Williams, 22, McLean, Va., admitted to Arlington Hospital Wednesday, was still carried on the danger list.

Firearms Law Not Violated in Liggett Shooting

Threats Charged

Police Place Major Under Observation

An Air Force major was admitted to Walter Reed Hospital for mental observation yesterday after police said he told them he was going to "kill some people."

Dr. Rudolph Allers, 4212 10th st. ne., a professor at Catholic University, called police yesterday at 10:45 a. m. and said he had received a call from Maj. Francis A. Riley, 2022 Columbia rd. nw.

Dr. Allers told police the major had informed him he was going to "kill some people and myself."

Police Pvts. David H. Gould and Louis A. Losupone entered Riley's apartment with a passkey and found him in bed. They said he admitted calling Dr. Allers, admitted telling him he was going to kill some people, but denied he said he would kill himself.

Gould made a dive at Riley when he started to slide his hand under the bed sheet. They found a loaded .32-caliber revolver under the sheet.

Major Riley's wife, who was away at the time, later told police her husband had been acting strangely and had shown her a clipping of a newspaper account about the Air Force captain who killed himself and his two children in Alexandria early Friday.

According to Walter Reed Hospital, Riley is 45 and a flight surgeon at Bolling Field.

No Present Bill Could Have Saved Children From Shots of Father

No present or planned anti-firearms law could have saved the two Liggett children from being shot to death in their sleep, police authorities agreed yesterday.

The two, Sharon, 5, and Fred, 4, succumbed to two bullets each fired into their heads by their father, presumably in a flash fit of rage over their mother's delay in ironing his Air Force uniform early Friday morning.

Their father, Capt. Charles D. Liggett, 27, assistant chief of flight operations, Military Air Transport Service, then sent a bullet spinning through his own brain to die in an adjoining bedroom of the family home at 215 Buchanan st., Alexandria.

Wife Hears Shots

The triple tragedy was witnessed by sound alone by the wife and mother, Mrs. F. Josephine Liggett, an expectant mother, as she sat in a downstairs living room.

Detective Inspector Russell Hawes, chief of detectives in Alexandria, said yesterday the presence of the lethal weapon, a .25-caliber Italian pistol, in the Liggett home was "as legal as the Constitution." The gun was not, and was not required to be, registered with police authorities, he said.

A check of firearm laws in the District and nearby localities showed a uniformity of local laws regulating the carrying of weapons and the sale or purchase of weapons. But weapons kept in a man's own home, police agreed, are subject only to that man's commonsense.

As one authority put it:

"Anyone who wants to can keep a gun in his house. If he's quick-tempered, that's his business, too. If he's got children around, and doesn't keep the gun in a safe place, that's his business, too."

Concealment Different

The carrying of concealed deadly weapons is another matter. In Alexandria, Hawes said, such permission is granted by Corporation Court Judge William P. Wools on a showing of need for protection. The applicants, he said, must have records free of arrests for crimes of violence or violations of narcotics laws, and show no mental deficiency. Similar qualifications prevail for a person purchasing a gun.

Alexandria laws, Chief Hawes said, protect the citizenry somewhat from quickly planned suicide or homicide by requiring a lapse of 72 hours in the sale and purchase of weapons. In the District, the time lapse is 48 hours, according to Police Lieut. Harry Blackman, chief of the special investigative squad which oversees firearm sales and gun-carrying permits.

Gun dealers in Alexandria, Arlington and the District are required by local laws to submit the name and address of the prospective gun purchaser to police authorities. Police check the purchaser's record and authorize the sale if he has met all qualifications. The dealer completes his obligation by recording the sale with police, listing the man's name, address, type of weapon sold and serial number of the weapon.

By reciprocity agreements between the departments, records of applicants for gun permits or purchases are checked by the three police departments, authorities said.

All said there is no law governing the compulsory registration of guns kept in private homes. Citizens, however, are urged to register such weapons with police, if only to speed their recovery in the event they are stolen, police said.

2 Agriculture Posts Filled By Truman

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday appointed Albert J. Loveland, 55, Iowa farmer, as Undersecretary of Agriculture and Elmer H. Wene, 56, New Jersey poultryman, as Assistant Secretary.

Wene

Wene represented his State in Congress for three terms and in 1945 was an adviser to former Secretary Clinton P. Anderson.

The appointments were made on a recess basis. When Congress convenes next January new nominations must be made subject to Senate confirmation.

Loveland succeeds former Undersecretary Norris E. Dodd, who recently resigned to take a post with the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Wene succeeds Charles F. Brannan, who stepped up to head the department upon the resignation of Anderson.

Temperance Tree Is Dedicated by Good Templars

The International Order of Good Templars yesterday dedicated a memorial temperance tree with bronze marker on the east lawn of the Capitol.

Participating in the ceremonies were Gordon H. Payne, Medina, N. Y., national chief templar and Raymond E. Hardy, Baltimore, grand chief templar of the Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia jurisdiction.

The Templars, who held their national meeting last week at Calvary Baptist Church, were organized in New York State in 1852 to work for temperance.

The memorial tree movement was initiated by Capt. Edward Page Gaston, a member of the local committee on arrangements, who conceived the idea after observing the historic Reformers Tree in Hyde Park, London.

Veterans Group Attracts 1500 To Uline Arena

More than 1500 persons attended a program sponsored by the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America at Uline Arena last night.

Paul Robeson and the Galbraith A. M. E. Zion Church Choir presented "Ballad for Americans" and excerpts from Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Winston Edwards, acting commander of the organization with headquarters at 925 U st. nw., said the concert was part of a campaign to raise $15,000 to build a service club for members.

Retired heavyweight champion Joe Louis, who was advertised as a speaker, did not appear.

Servicemen Invited To Moonlight Cruise

Servicemen of military establishments in the Greater Washington area will be guests tonight of congressional secretaries for a moonlight trip on the steamer Potomac.

The group, including servicemen stationed at Patuxent River, Indian Head and Andrews Field, Md., Dahlgren and Fort Myer, Va., and Walter Reed General Hospital here, will embark here at 8:30 p. m. The cruise is also open to the public.

200 Questioned But No Leads Develop

Police Still Trying to Solve Denekas Slaying

Like a stone hurled into a placid pond, the explosion which killed William A. Denekas 20 days ago set off ripples which touched every part of the Washington and nearby Virginia areas.

On June 7 the 30-year-old electrician left the Arlington home at which he roomed, turned on the ignition key of his sedan, and was killed instantly by a bomb explosion.

His slaying had all the earmarks of murder in the finest pulp thriller tradition. Denekas had an estranged wife, many "girl friends," and had been in known disputes with business associates.

As in any Sunday supplement murder story, police labeled the Denekas killing "a crime of passion." Arlington County offered a $500 reward for the slayer.

And four days before the blast, a radio program had described a similar auto bomb murder in the Washington area several years earlier.

But unlike detective fiction, the Denekas murder was almost completely without clews.

Arlington detectives thus far have questioned more than 200 friends of the slain man, and their friends. Almost no "leads" have developed.

After countless hours of probing, grilling and checking of alibis, Arlington Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard yesterday admitted: "At this time, we have absolutely no new leads."

Police are not even certain what type of a bomb was wired to the Nash sedan's distributor—whether dynamite, nitro or TNT.

Consultation with Army and District police explosives experts was of little help. The FBI, which now is studying bomb and wire fragments left after the blast, have not yet reported findings.

Taking another tack, police methodically fanned out their investigation to include friend after friend of Denekas—and he had many.

They talked to five youthful Arlington friends who went with Denekas to auto races in Winchester the day before he met his death. One of them, Miss Frances Conklin, 23, of 2205 North Fairfax dr., was his "blind date" for the day.

Police interrogated another "girl friend," who was with Denekas that same night (Sunday) until nearly 3 a. m.—divorcee Mrs. Myrtle Ennis of 3906 North Washington blvd.

Police theorize that the fatal bomb must have been placed in Denekas' auto between the time he arrived home about 3 a. m. that night, and dawn about 5 a. m.

Detectives talked several times to Denekas' estranged wife, Mrs. Helen Denekas, a waitress in a Falls Church restaurant.

And they questioned his landlady, Mrs. Lorena Strader, of 5837 N. 21st st., Arlington, herself separated from her husband, District Police Pvt. Frank Strader, jr., who was pounding a Georgetown beat until 8 a. m. the morning of the murder.

While police held Billy McDaniel, 32-year-old former partner of Denekas in a defunct neon sign business, one detective combed McDaniel's home town of Staunton, Va., checked and rechecked his alibi, and found it good.

They grilled Boyd F. Sims, 2207 S. 6th st., former employe of Denekas and McDaniel, and one of three complainants against the partners in a bad check charge.

Mrs. Ennis said Denekas had once told her he "had something" on somebody who feared him because of the knowledge. She said she did not know what the "something" or who the person was.

For nearly eight hours, police held a good friend of the slain man's wife, Streetcar Motorman Charles B. Dixon, and then released him after combing his car and home at 5946 N. 10th rd., Arlington.

Chief Woodyard said yesterday police still are watching "several people" questioned earlier in the case.

Police strongly doubt the death was a suicide. They point to the fact that Denekas, when he left the house for his car, was carrying with him a repaired lamp he meant to return to a client.

And, they add, "there are so many easier ways to kill yourself."

Two Arlington policemen still are assigned full time to the crime. Somewhe. . some day, they think they'll find the killer.

Area News in Brief

Man Held for Jury In Housebreaking

District police arrested a 22-year-old man in Matthew's Drugstore, 1257 S. Capitol st. early yesterday, after an alert neighbor saw him break the plate glass window with a brick.

Louis Muschetti of 1316 S. Capitol st., called police when he saw the man break into the store. Pvts. W. J. Nooman and H. D. Evans of the Fourth Precinct, responded immediately and found him still inside.

Booked as Harold Dorsey, 22, of 1243 1st st. sw., he was ordered held for grand jury action on a housebreaking charge. Judge Armond W. Scott set bond at $5000 after learning he was on parole for another housebreaking charge.

4 Tons of Food Condemned

Almost four tons of food were condemned last week by inspectors of the District Health Department in a check of 1653 establishments. Asparagus and lettuce were the two largest condemnations. Eight cases were taken to Municipal Court and ended with fines, forfeitures and personal bonds totaling $325.

Now on Daylight Time

Fairfax County officially went on daylight saving time at 11:01 a. m. yesterday. Although most county offices and all schools had been operating unofficially on fast time since the District adopted it May 2, the county board of supervisors had to advertise the daylight time ordinance four weeks before it became effective.

Patient's Kin Sought

Gallinger Hospital officials and District police are trying to locate relatives or friends of a man, identified only as John H. Moore, who suffered a stroke May 21 while selling papers at 7th st. and Market space nw.

Moore

Since having the stroke, the man has been unable to speak, hospital attendants said, although he understands what is said to him.

Anyone with information about Moore should contact Gallinger Hospital, where he is a patient, or the Police Homicide Squad.

Telephone Pioneers Hold Dinner

More than 600 members of the Telephone Pioneers of America attended their twenty-fifth annual dinner meeting at the Hotel Mayflower last night.

Among them was James R. Sands, 92, oldest member of the chapter, Alexander Graham Bell No. 15, and probably the oldest member in America.

Sands began his telephone career in 1897. In his early years he built the first private branch switchboard ever installed in the United States Capitol.

Sands retired from active service in 1928. At the time of his retirement he was superintendent of buildings.

Sands, who was honored with a luncheon on his birthday last Monday by fellow workers at the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., lives at 612 Longfellow st. nw. Since his wife's death several years ago he has been doing his own housework and cooking.

F. G. Macarow, vice president and general manager of the telephone company, was elected president of the chapter at the annual meeting preceding the dinner.

Other newly-elected officers include: William Fithian, vice president; Mrs. Alma Cowl, secretary; Frank W. S. Evans, treasurer; J. A. Petry, W. K. Norwood, C. W. Chaney, Miss M. Dickel, E. L. Florance, T. D. Dutton and R. W. Gardner, executive committee members.

A feature of the evening was the chapter's first hobby show. Plastic jewelry, a hand-made violin and other wood working, plastic jewelry, and collections of pistols and revolvers, postage stamps and china were among the displays.

Frederick Riebel, Jr.

Pittsburgh, June 26 (AP).—Frederick (Skip) Riebel, jr., of Miami Beach, Fla., died yesterday in a Pittsburgh hotel room while here to attend a convention of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

A graduate of Purdue University, Riebel, 64, was civilian assistant to Navy Secretary Forrestal during World War II. Later he was assigned by the Navy to presidency of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp., Johnsville, Pa. He retired shortly before the war ended.

He is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter. The body was taken to Indianapolis for burial.

Prince Georges Communities Vote Monday

Two Prince Georges County, Md., communities will hold town elections Monday. They are Brentwood and University Park.

William N. Mahaffey, Third Ward, and Benjamin Castle, Fourth Ward, the incumbents, are the only candidates for the two posts open on the Brentwood town council. No other candidates had filed by the June 14 deadline. Voters can write in, however. Election will be held from 1 p. m. to 8 p. m. in the Brentwood Firehouse.

Mayor James L. Russell, Treasurer William F. Bischof, and Councilmen George J. Boyce, First Ward, and J. Milton Stanford, Second Ward, do not come up for reelection until next year. Mrs. Marie T. Murphy and Mrs. Marguerite McLelland are supervisors of election.

No candidates had filed by the June 13 deadline for the posts of mayor, treasurer and two seats on the town council at University Park. Mayor T. Earle Bourne, Treasurer Henry R. Walls and Councilmen Harry D. Eisenhauer first ward, and Howard F. Mooney, third ward, said they would serve if elected by write-in vote, but that they are not candidates.

Councilman William Bowie, second ward; Albert B. Heagy, fourth, and Dr. Charles E. White, fifth, have another year to serve. Valerie F. Jenkins and E. Monroe Zentz are supervisors of the election, which will be held from 1 p. m. to 8 p. m. in the University Park Elementary School.

Benjamin F. Stauffer

Norfolk, Va., June 26 (AP).—Benjamin Franklin Stauffer, 73, a former chronicler for Admiral Dewey and a Navy veteran of 38 years' service, died here Friday of a heart attack.

Dr. R. L. Raiford, 67, Dies; Memorial Hospital Founder

Franklin, Va., June 26 (AP).—Dr. Rufus L. Raiford, 67, founder of Raiford Memorial Hospital here and prominent in Virginia medical circles, died last night in his sleep.

A native of Southampton County, Dr. Raiford came to Franklin in 1925 after nearly 20 years of practice as a "country doctor" in rural communities.

Dr. Raiford received his medical degree in 1906 from the University College of Medicine, which later became part of the Medical College of Virginia, in Richmond.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lora Katherine Burgess Raiford; two sons, Dr. Morgan Raiford of Philadelphia and Dr. Fletcher Raiford of Franklin, associated with his father in the hospital here; a foster son, Fred O. Ell of Richmond; two brothers, E. Jerome Raiford of Petersburg and E. Wister Raiford of Ivor; two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Hare of Holland and Mrs. Allen Neave of Guilford College, N. C.; five grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

Dr. Raiford founded the hospital in 1929 and was actively engaged in its operation until a year ago, when he retired.

He served a number of years as secretary of the Southside Medical Association, Southern Medical Association, Medical Society of Virginia and the Southampton County Medical Society.

He was a member of High Street Methodist Church.

County GOP Women Elect

Mrs. Wilton Wallace of Chevy Chase has been elected president of the Republican Women of Montgomery County to succeed Mrs. Mildred Smith of Silver Spring.

Other officers elected were: First vice president, Mrs. Walter C. Clarke, Silver Spring, second vice president, Mrs. Millward C. Taft, Takoma Park; third vice president, Mrs. Anders R. Lofstrand, Rockville; fourth vice president, Mrs. Leona Rush, Chevy Chase; recording secretary, Mrs. Merton English, Chevy Chase; corresponding secretary, Mrs. De Witt Hyde; assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frank Long, Kensington, and treasurer, Mrs. Howard Smith, Silver Spring.

Named as directors were Mrs. Mildred Smith, Miss Olive Kinsman, Burnt Mills, and Mrs. Gertrude Rusk, Kensington.

Jean B. De Chadenedes

New York, June 26 (AP).—Jean B. de Chadenedes, 64, retired Wall Street broker, was killed yesterday when he fell or jumped from a fifteenth-floor Park Avenue apartment.

He was a guest of Baron Waldemar von Sedtwitz, president of the American Contract Bridge League, at the time of the fatal plunge.

He is survived by four children. His eldest daughter, Caroline, is the wife of Kenneth MacLeish, son of Archibald MacLeish, poet and librarian of Congress.

W. A. Simpson, Retired Milk Dealer, Dies

William Aubrey Simpson, retired milk dealer and director of three business institutions here, died yesterday upon returning home from a friend's funeral. He was 81 years old.

Mr. Simpson, who started out peddling milk at the age of 9 and wound up as head of his own dairy and a director of three business institutions, was fatally stricken at 1 p. m. in his auto near his home, 4869 Colorado ave. nw.

Mr. Simpson was carried into his home and pronounced dead by a physician who arrived a little later. He was active up to the time of his death, his son, William F. Simpson, said.

Born in nearby Maryland, he was brought to Washington by his family when 3 years old. He quit public school in the fourth grade to help his father operate a farm on Walker's Hill, not far from where Good Hope Hill, se., now is.

After marrying the late Elizabeth C. Kuhnert of Washington in 1890, Mr. Simpson went into dairying on his own, starting out by making deliveries with a horse and wagon. He retired in 1929.

Upon the death of his first wife in 1942, Mr. Simpson married the following year Ellen Theresa Cochrane of Washington, who survives him.

Mr. Simpson was a director of the Metropolitan Building Association, the National Capital Insurance Co., and the National Capital Bank. He was a fourth-degree member of the Knights of Columbus and attended Sacred Heart Church.

Besides his wife, he leaves six sons, William F., Philip A., James C., Wilfred A., John A., and Dr. Robert Lee Simpson; and four daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Tastet, Mrs. Anne Hillyard, Mrs. Mary C. Green and Mrs. Helen M. McCarthy, all of Washington. He also leaves 43 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren.

Requiem mass will be said at 10 a. m. Monday in Sacred Heart Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Caudle, Mother of U. S. Attorney, Dies

Mrs. Susie Gooch Caudle, who lived here with her son, T. Lamar Caudle, jr., assistant attorney general, died Friday in Garfield Hospital after a week's illness. She was 72.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 11 a. m. in the First Baptist Church, Wadesboro, N. C.

Mrs. Caudle was the widow of T. Lamar Caudle, sr., former president of the North Carolina Bar Association, who died in 1929.

A native of Oxford, N. C., Mrs. Caudle was graduated from the old Oxford College there. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the First Baptist Church in Wadesboro.

Besides her son, with whom she lived at 2939 Newark st. nw., Mrs. Caudle leaves another son, Charles B. Caudle, an attorney on assignment to the war crimes trials in Tokyo; two daughters, Mrs. Stancil Smith of Alexandria and Mrs. R. L. Hardeson of Wadesboro; four sisters and four brothers.

Deafened People May Now Hear Clearly

Science has now made it possible for the deafened to hear faint sounds. It is a hearing device so small that it fits in the hand and enables thousands to enjoy sermons, music and friendly companionship. Accepted by the Council on Physical Medicine of the American Medical Association. This device does not require separate battery pack, battery wire, case or garment to bulge or weigh you down. The tone is clear and powerful. So made that you can adjust it yourself to suit your hearing as your hearing changes. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 6, 1450 West 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill., are so proud of their achievement that they will gladly send free descriptive booklet and explain how you may get a full demonstration of this remarkable hearing device in your own home without risking a penny. Stabbed Fireman Taken to Hospital; Carpenter Bonded

Herman Leckliter, 28, of 5506 Tilden rd., Sunnybrook, Bladensburg, Md., volunteer fireman, was in serious condition at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., yesterday as the result of stab wounds in the chest.

Prince Georges County Policemen James H. Burgess and William F. Little arrested Paul Wilson, 26, 231 Evans la., Alexandria, Va., and charged him with assault with intent to kill. Wilson, a carpenter, later was released on bond of $2500 for his appearance Thursday in Hyattsville Police Court for a preliminary hearing. Leckliter was stabbed four times in the chest, one wound piercing his lung, which partially collapsed, police said.

Wilson told Prince Georges County Detective Richard A. Pearson that he went to the trailer home of his estranged wife, Mrs. Peggy Wilson, at the National Trailer Court, College Park, Md., and saw Leckliter there. The Wilsons told Pearson they have a legal separation.

Lake Success, Long Island, June 26.—The preparatory commission for the International Refugee Organization estimated today that between 8 and 12 million persons—excluding several millions in Russia—are still missing in European countries as an aftermath of World War II.

D. C. Welfare Chief Explains Rise in Assistance Payments

District Welfare Director John W. Tramburg last night declared that his department would adhere to a District Commissioner's economy edict as closely as the law permits.

He made the statement in answer to seemingly contradictory moves in which the Board of Public Welfare on Friday approved increased grants to the District's needy the day following the Commissioners' ban on new or expanded services during the 1950 fiscal year.

Tramburg said the change in old age assistance, aid to dependent children and the blind resulted from recent Federal legislation increasing the grant levels which are paid from Federal funds matched by District dollars. He indicated the department had no alternative to such action since the new levels were set by Congress.

The welfare head said his department will make determined efforts to effect administrative savings in an attempt to offset the additional amounts flowing into grants.

This position seemed satisfactory to District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler who declared that the department could not "in any case exceed the allowances made by Congress," but possibly could effect some internal economies to offset the new costs.

'Grass Root' Base Urged for Cultural Ties

To be successful, our cultural relations with other nations must be grass root and not merely academic, a State Department official declared last night.

The speaker was Earl E. Dennis, chief of the State Department's Division of International Exchange of Persons. Addressing the silver jubilee banquet of Phi Delta Gamma, national fraternity for graduate women, at the Statler Hotel, he declared:

"Our cultural relationships with other nations until recently have been limited almost exclusively to the intelligentsia, the high-level academician, the ivory tower elite. Being a former college professor, I hasten to say such relationships are good. I also hasten to add they are not enough."

Dennis explained that the Department of State's cultural relations division's outstanding activities have been, the exchange of persons and the maintenance of cultural institutes, libraries and schools in foreign countries. These are carried on cooperatively with the governments in the various countries.

At present, approximately 43,000 adult students of English are enrolled in the classes offered by the cultural institutes throughout the world. In addition to the small libraries attached to the cultural centers, the Department of State maintains typical American public libraries in Mexico City, Managua, Nicaragua, and Montevideo, Uruguay, according to Dennis.

Dr. Dorothy Veon of Beta Chapter, George Washington University, served as toastmistress. Jean Moffatt, also of Beta Chapter, gave the invocation.

At the afternoon session a forum on "Women in Unusual Fields of Endeavor" was held. Speakers included Dr. Virginia O'Neil of Washington Alumnae Chapter, Miss Clara Fielder of Alpha, and Miss Helen Louise Trembley of Beta.

Globe-Girdling Pilot Going to Air Meeting

George Truman is scheduled to leave Schrons Airport, Greenbelt, Md., today at 8 a. m. on a 1100-mile nonstop flight to Minneapolis, Minn., where he will open the National Aeronautics Association meeting.

Truman will fly solo in his Piper Cub plane, in which he flew around the world.

Adventist Sees World Nearing Armageddon

Belief that the nations of the earth are now moving toward the "final conflict of all ages," was voiced last night by Elder W. R. French, dean of theology of the Washington Missionary College.

Speaking before the Seventh-day Adventist camp meeting in Takoma Park, he said, "I believe that Armageddon, as the Bible says, is the battle of the nations—the final clash between the nations of the East and the nations of the West."

"We are witnessing a federation of Mohammedan nations against the Jewish nations which are backed by America, Russia and England," he said. "Mohammedans for many years have looked forward to a holy war in which they will defend their holy places. According to their prediction, the signal for the real beginning of such a war will take place in Jerusalem."

Yesterday afternoon's service attended by nearly 5000 Adventists from 50 churches in Washington, Virginia and nearby Maryland, was highlighted by the ordination of six young men into the ministry by Elder D. A. Ochs, president of the Columbia Union Conference. They were: H. M. Dukes, Alexandria; Russell Vaughn, Strausburg; W. H. Barringham, Appalachia; C. O. Kinzer, Tazewell; W. E. Peeke, Marion and William Coffman, Pulaski, all of Virginia.

Today at 8 p. m. Elder E. F. Koch, Richmond, Va., will speak on "The Elijah Message for Our Time," in the Sligo Church, Carroll and Flower aves.

Penman, 91, Works Best At Night

In these days when shorthand, typewriting and other mechanical writing devices are adding more and more speed to the graphic arts, George T. Campbell of 1758 Lyman pl. ne. stands out like one of the solitary birds with which he embellishes his penmanship.

Campbell

For Campbell, who celebrated his ninety-first birthday yesterday, takes plenty of time when he practices the art of card writing, ornamental writing, flourishing and "speedball lettering." He has a diploma for each of these styles.

The old-style penman makes most of his fancy letters, ornamental designs and flourishes at night, working without aid of glasses.

Campbell's interest in penmanship, he said yesterday, began more than 70 years ago when he carried the mail by horse and buggy—and sometimes on foot—between Kablestown and Rippon, W. Va., across the State line from his native Berryville, Va. But it was not until about five years ago that he finally began to take courses with the Tevis School of Penmanship in Chillicothe, Ohio.

In the intervening 65 years or so, his principal occupation was that of sharpener. "Doctor of lawn mowers, scissors, saws, knives and hedge shears" is the way he described himself on his business cards, and he still does a little of this "medical" work now, he said.

But his pen hobby is his pride and joy now—especially speedball lettering in italic.

Montgomery, Prince Georges Zoning Conferences Called

Conferences to bring reinforcement of zoning ordinances within the Maryland-Washington Regional District in Montgomery and Prince Georgees Counties are to be started next month.

The conferences have been called by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, which has directed its general counsel, J. Bond Smith, to preside over the meetings.

At the same time the commission announced that the zoning enforcement officer for Montgomery County, Paul Taggart of Silver Spring, will be out of a job next June 15. Work of this officer was deemed no longer needed, since zoning ordinance violations must be prosecuted by State attorneys in both affected counties.

Members of the commission explained that the ordinance provisions had been relaxed during the period of the war emergency to permit "fullest possible utilization of living quarters" for warworkers.

This brought about a "large number of instances" in which there were violations of the ordinance. Continued violation, members of the commission feel, would work "permanent and irreparable injury" to "many communities" in the area in both counties.

Among those who will attend the conference called by the planning commission are boards of county commissioners of both counties, States' attorneys, mayor and council for each incorporated city or town within the district, boards of zoning appeals, trial magistrates, county health officers and county engineers.

The first conference is to be held July 13 at 2:30 p. m. in the hearing room of the Montgomery County Commissioners. The second is scheduled for 2:30 July 20 in the hearing room of the Prince Georges County commissioners.

Another Scorcher Due Today With High in Low 90s

Another scorcher with the temperature expected to move into the low 90s will be on the weather menu today.

The continued heat wave may be slightly tempered by showers during the afternoon. However, the Weather Bureau said today will be "mostly sunny."

Yesterday the mercury remained in the high 80s most of the afternoon, hitting a peak of 89 at 12:50 p. m. Low reading yesterday was 72 at 6:10 a. m.

Prince Georges Parents Identify Boy Killed in Va.

Charlottesville, Va., June 26 (AP). The Boy Scout who died shortly after he was discovered on the Southern Railway tracks near Covesville Friday was identified today as John Lee South, 15, of Brandywine, Prince Georges County, Md.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter South, identified the body at University Hospital here.

Trade Agreement Extension Signed

By The Associated Press

President Truman signed yesterday the one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act which Congress sent him in lieu of the three-year continuation the Administration sought.

The measure changes the procedure to give the Tariff Commission a bigger role in the negotiation of any new duty-reducing agreements which may be sought.

The State Department contended the change would wreck the 14-year-old program. Key congressional Republicans said it would do no such thing.

Truman Expresses 'Regret'

The measure would extend until June 30, 1949, the act which lapsed on June 12.

In a statement, the President expressed "regret" that Congress "has not seen fit to renew this authority for the customary three-year period."

"There is no valid reason for a one-year limitation which appears to cast some doubt upon our intentions for the future."

Criticizes New Procedure

The President also criticized what he called "a new, complicated, time-consuming and unnecessary procedure" for the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements. But he went on:

"It is so essential that the reciprocal agreements program should not lapse, that I have signed this act in spite of its serious defects.

"I will do my best to make the new procedures work. As a first step, I intend to proceed with plans for bringing other countries into the general agreement on tariffs and trade signed with 22 countries at Geneva in October, 1947."

'Gas' Dealers Say Oil Firms 'Pressure' Accessory Sales

By The Associated Press

George J. Burger, a director of the National Federation of Small Business, said yesterday that some big oil companies are forcing gasoline stations to sell certain types of auto accessories or risk being cut down on gasoline supply.

Burger told a House Small Business subcommittee that a claimed oil shortage was "instituted or created as an effective weapon in whipping dealers in line."

The subcommittee is checking into complaints which its chairman, Representative Ploeser (R., Mo.) said have been received from a number of independent oil distributors throughout the country.

Ploeser told reporters that distributors say some oil companies are attempting to eliminate distributors who balk at handling specified accessories.

The National Federation of Small Business is a Nation-wide organization of independent business men.

Burger said some oil company salesmen plugging certain accessories to the owners of independent stations tell them: "You want this lease again next year, don't you? Well, then, cooperate."

Burger said there is no "real shortage" of oil.

"What is taking place is discrimination in the distribution of oil supplies," he testified.

No Pressure Reported By Retailers Here

R. A. Herrick, exeutive director of the Retail Gasoline Dealers Association, representing 500 independent District filling stations, declared here yesterday that he knew of no case in which a local dealer was unable to obtain standard brand gasoline because of refusal to handle accessory products.

Allocations on a monthly basis have been more or less in effect here among most of the gasoline distribution companies since January 1, Herrick said, but the restrictions have been considerably eased since April 1.

Herrick pointed out that even with some allocations, the District dealers are getting 10 per cent more gasoline today than last year, ample enough to meet the local demand. A few of the larger retail outlets are operating on short hours in order to stay within their supply allocation, but these stations are "few and neligible in numbers," according to Herrick.

Missing Boy's Mother Reports Loss of $3000

Mrs. Ann Merchant, 42, of 2127 P st. nw., yesterday reported to police that $3000 in cash was missing from her home. The money, mainly in $5, $10 and $20 bills, she told police, disappeared sometime before last Monday.

On June 15, Mrs. Merchant, a widow, reported to the Police Missing Persons Bureau that her 15½-year-old son, Ronald, had left home without money or any more clothes than those he wore to school on May 14, the day she last saw him. She described him as 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 130 pounds, with brown hair parted on the side.

Registration Set For Summer Courses

Registration for Prince Georges County summer school will be held at Bladensburg High School from 9 a. m. to noon Tuesday and Wednesday, with classes scheduled to begin there July 6.

The summer sessions, which are for high school students, carry a $15 tuition fee charge for each course. A minimum enrollment of 10 students is necessary to set up any one course. The school is under the direction of the county board of education.

WINX Panel to Discuss New D. C. Legislation

Legislation affecting the District passed by the Eighteith Congress will be discussed by a panel of four Washingtonians on Station WINX's "District Roundtable" at 7:30 p. m. today.

Speakers are Sidney Sacks, assistant United States district attorney; William Hannon, attorney; George McNeil, former president of the D. C. Bar Association, and Leonard S. Melrod, attorney and moderator of the program.

3-Day Celebration to Begin Here Saturday, Marking Washington Monument's 100th Year

Washington will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the laying of the Washington Monument cornerstone with a three-day celebration beginning Saturday.

The Fourth of July weekend program will include a parade Saturday noon, followed by ceremonies at the Monument at which President Truman will speak; opening Watergate concert by the National Symphony Sunday night, and presentation of a cantata, "Cavalcade of America," and fireworks display at the Monument Monday night.

The parade will begin at 12 o'clock Saturday. Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey will be grand marshal.

Military units, patriotic and civic organizations and about 15 commercial floats will participate in the parade. The parade will form at 4th st. and Pennsylvania ave., go up the avenue to 15th st. and turn south to the Monument grounds, where it will pass in review before the President.

Marshall to View Parade

George C. Marshall, Secretary of State and first vice president of the Washington National Monument Society, will be among those in the reviewing stand with the President.

Prominent in the vanguard of the parade will be the famous Third Infantry Regiment, led by Col. James V. Cole.

The regiment sports 31 battle streamers on its colors. It received the nickname of "the Old Guard" in 1847 during the Mexican War, when it led American troops into Mexico City. At that time, Gen. Winfield Scott said to his staff, "Gentlemen, take off your hats to the Old Guard of the Army."

A sterling silver cup will be presented to the commercial organization whose float in the parade is judged best, by the Washington Monument Centennial Committee, Leon Chatelain, jr., committee chairman and president of the Washington Board of Trade, announced yesterday.

Speaks at 2 p. m.

At 2 p. m., after the memorial rites at the Monument, President Truman will speak. His address will be broadcast over Nation-wide radio facilities.

Opening events of the program will be described by Arthur Godfrey, radio star of WTOP and the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The second day of the celebration being Sunday, the holiday will be observed with religious services in the various churches. Sunday night the National Symphony will open its Watergate concert series with a program of American music at 8 p. m. Howard Mitchell will be guest conductor and Dorothy Maynor the featured soloist.

The celebration will again be centered at the Monument grounds Monday night, beginning with a band concert at 7:45 p. m. A spectacular cantata, "Cavalcade of America," and reading of the Declaration of Independence will follow, concluding with a fireworks display at 9:30 p. m.

Tickets on Sale

Tickets are now on sale for each night, entitling the bearer to a reserved chair on the Monument Grounds. Tickets are $1, including tax.

Tickets may be purchased at People's Drug Stores, hotels, Government Service snack stands, D. C. Information Center in the Star Building lobby. A trailer-booth ticket office will be in front of the District Building.

Also scheduled for Monday are all-day playground programs throughout the city.

One of the largest celebrations will be at Takoma Park playground, 4th and Van Buren sts. nw., where the program will run from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. Events include opening patriotic services, parade, track and swimming events, an evening dance and fireworks.

Barry Farms playground, Nichols ave. and Howard rd. se., long noted for its athletic activities, will observe the day as homecoming as well as a patriotic one.

Flag Display Asked

The three-day weekend has been proclaimed a period of commemoration by the District Commissioners. In their proclamation, the city fathers ask "that the flag of the United States of America be displayed at homes and other appropriate places from sunrise of July 3 until the morning of July 6."

Among the many organizations planning programs is the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants.

MRS. DOROTHY HELLER, of 2120 16th st. nw., displays the cup to be presented by the Washington Monument Centennial Committee to the local business firm entering the best float in the Independence Day Parade, July 3

Broyles Wins Soap Box Derby; Ashton Second

Jack Broyles, 15, of 1233 Madison st. nw., rode off with first honors in the Washington Soap Box Derby yesterday.

In his black, homemade racer, he sped down the 1000-foot course in 31.3 seconds.

Alfred Ashton, 12, of 2802 31st st. se., crossed the finish line a few inches behind Broyles to take second place.

Despite a burning sun, thousands of Washington residents crowded the course on Pennsylvania ave. between Branch and Alabama aves. se. to cheer on the racers. More than 150 boys participated in the seventh annual running of the Washington coaster derby.

Broyles, a graduate this year from Paul Junior High School, was presented a plaque. He will be given a trip, with all expenses paid, to Akron, Ohio, in August, where he will represent Washington in the National Soap Box Derby. He also will receive a bicycle and other sports equipment.

Ashton, a student of Kramer Junior High School, will receive a bicycle. Both boys participated in the derby here last year.

Winners of the various heats, held in the day-long affair, will receive medals at a presentation ceremony at the Commerce Department Monday night.

Business Outlook

By J. A. Livingston

Problems: Inflation and Foreign Trade

Philadelphia, June 26.—Every speaker at the Republican National Convention here was sure Thomas E. Dewey had a "date with destiny." Less-partial observers could be sure of one thing: If Dewey wins at the polls November 2, he'll need hard economic advice and plenty of political patience. Expediency won't do.

Livingston

Two basic problems confront the next President:

1. Inflation; he has a struggle with rising living costs.

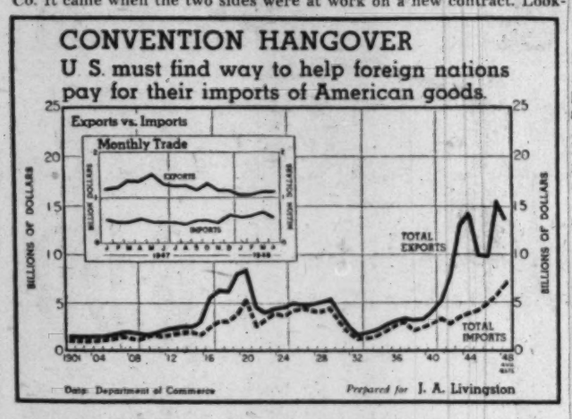
2. Foreign Trade; he must change the American way in international affairs so that foreign countries can pay for goods they buy from us. That requires a reorientation of United States trade tradition.

Neither problem is a light task. And how they are met will determine, in large part, our ultimate relations with Soviet Russia.

While candidates for the Republican nomination were sweating the voting out in their hotel rooms and while delegates on the floor of the convention hall were seething with suspense, ill-temper, and perspiration under the klieg lights, a little item came over the press wires, unheeded but politically portentous.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics index of consumer prices reached a new high of 170.5 on May 15—up 1.2 points over mid-April. That 1.2-point rise was of broad significance to all labor and of immediate import to 225,000 General Motors workers. For every 1.14-point advance in the index, GM wage earners are entitled to a 1-cent-an-hour boost under the recently signed wage agreement. Wage adjustments are made each quarter.

The cost-of-living increase undoubtedly had an immediate effect on negotiations between the United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. It came when the two sides were at work on a new contract. Looking farther ahead, the rise in living costs, if it persists, will become a concern of the new President after inauguration January 20. For, then, labor will be readying demands for the fourth postwar round of wage boosts in the spring of 1949.



What Will Steel Do?

The outlook for the household dollar is anything but good. Prospects are for higher coal prices and a general boost in industrial prices. Railroad unions are hoping for a cost-of-living boost soon, which would force another rise in freight rates and spread throughout the price structure.

Not only that, but the steel industry, which refused to raise both wages and prices earlier this year, may find it can't afford a stand-pat policy. Last year, U. S. Steel treated John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, far more favorably than his rival and former boon companion, Philip Murray, head of the United Steelworkers. Big Steel can hardly repeat in '48 and hope for good industrial relations with the steel workers. Therefore, Big Steel may reopen the wage contract voluntarily. And if steel wages go up, prices will follow.

Best news for the consumer comes from the farm belt. Though the wheat crop won't run as high as last year's 1,365,000,000 bushels, it will be the second largest on record, around 1,200,000,000. Corn seems to be coming along well. And reports from abroad indicate that foreign agriculture is finally coming back. Ultimately they may lead to a decrease in food costs and temper cost-of-living wage demands next spring.

Wharton's Wish

The issue which will dominate the next four presidential years is foreign trade. Traditionally, the Republican Party has favored high tariffs, arguing that imports stunt industry and do workers out of jobs. Indeed, Joseph Wharton founded the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania because young men and women of the 1880s were so poorly educated as to believe in low tariffs. He wanted them to learn better!

For years, the United States has exported more than it imported. (See chart.) That suited the needs of a youthful Nation, whose principal industry was agriculture and which borrowed money from the British, the Dutch, the French, to finance railroads, factories, and other improvements. Exports were necessary to pay the interest on the external debt.

But now the United States is no longer a debtor Nation. We're the world's great creditor Nation. We must somehow increase our purchases of goods and services abroad. Fortunately, we may have no choice. We're running low on raw materials—iron ore, crude petroleum, lumber, wood pulp, nonferrous metals.

As a great manufacturing Nation, catering to a high standard of living, we'll undoubtedly increase such imports. We may also find that as our meat consumption rises, it becomes profitable to import feed grains to fatten cattle. What's more, the dollar is so potent abroad—it makes living for Americans so cheap—that foreign travel may increase, again augmenting the supply of dollars in Europe, South America and other countries.

And so we may manage to reorient our economy—to buy more goods and services so that other countries can buy here. That will help western European countries recover economically. Then western European governments will be more stable and the threat of communism will be set back. That will help the next President. But he'll have to fight the high-tariff bloc in Congress. A creditor Nation, such as we, cannot afford a high-tariff policy. Indicating the uptrend in United States economic literacy, the Wharton School no longer teaches in its founder's image.

Pepco Net In May Drops; Revenue Gains

Potomac Electric Power Co. reports net income of $141,452 for May, a decrease of $44,106 from the corresponding item last year. Operating revenues for the month increased $297,312 to $2,377,940. Expenses and deductions totaled $2,326,488, an increase of $341,419 over last year.

Net income for the first five months of 1948 totaled $1,193,317, a decrease of $198,400 from 1947. Operating revenues in that period aggregated $12,629,273, an increase of $1,741,004. Expenses and deductions totaled $11,435,955 which was $1,939,405 greater than last year.

ODD LOTS: Stockett - Fiske Co., 919 E st. nw., expects the remodeling of its building to be completed about October 1 . . . Sixteen representatives of the P. D. Sleeper general agency of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., will attend a company meeting at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., from July 7 to 10 . . . The American Foundrymen's Association has voted to change its name to the American Foundrymen's Society.

American Airlines: John F. Philipp, of 819 S. Royal Street, Alexandria, Va., has been appointed a Washington sales representative for American Airlines, it was announced yesterday by Herbert D. Ford, district sales manager.

Philipp

A native of New York, Philipp has been with the company for 11 years. He started his career with American as a reservations agent in New York in 1937, after which he was stationed in Los Angeles and then Montreal.

Prior to joining the Army in 1942, he was assigned to the Washington sales office. In July, 1942, he became a lieutenant in the Air Transport Command as project officer for the India China Division under General George. Returning to America in 1946 after attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel, he was supervisor of passenger sales in Chicago before his new assignment.

MORE AWARDS: Sixteen members of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association recently received merit awards "for valuable contributions to the association in time and effort" during the past year. Recipients were: W. Neal McCord, W. Sherwood Baker, Charles Haycraft, Edward H. VonDeck, H. Cochran Fisher, Albert L. Neveux, jr., Chester R. Jones, Joseph A. Marr, William J. McCausland, John Marsh, John L. McElfresh, Charles P. Rice, Raymond Dufour, Charles Suter, Charles K. Reid and George A. Hatzes.

POLICY TREND: Rising living costs have led the Texas Co. to boost the monthly checks to some of its retired employes. "We recognize that living costs have increased considerably since the Texaco pension plan went into effect in 1937," the company says. "Our active employes have received several cost-of-living increases over the past few years, and we feel that our pensioners, living on fixed incomes, also deserve consideration." The new pension scale will set a minimum of $75 a month for those retired after 20 years' service, and $100 for those retired after 25 years or more.

COSTS: Distribution costs are rising with expanded selling, according to Howard C. Greer, vice president of Kingan & Co., Indianapolis meat packers. He told the annual meeting of the National Association of Cost Accountants that industry is not making proper use of recently improved techniques for distribution cost analysis. The costs of all distribution steps must be isolated before they can be brought under control, Greer said.

EARNINGS: The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's net income for May was $1,962,264, a $741,987 increase compared with May 1947, the company reported today. May gross revenues were $35,559,914 and operating expenses $28,352,645. Operations for the five months of 1948 brought a net income of $4,878,983, compared with last year's $4,021,420. Southern Railway Co. reported net income of $1,668,806 for May compared with $1,089,066 last year. Net income for the first five months of 1948 totaled $6,880,565 against $5,293,954 in 1947. Lansburgh's Expansion Plan To Cost $500,000

Lansburgh & Bro., downtown department store, will launch a half-million-dollar improvement and expansion program to be completed by the latter part of this year, according to Ralph L. Goldsmith, vice president and general manager of the store. The improvements involve Lansburgh Central Warehouse at South Capitol and P sts. to which a floor will be added, the construction of an additional building for warehouse purposes, and an enlargement of the downstairs store seling area. This latter will be accomplished by converting present stock room area into selling space.

Mr. Goldsmith announced that the construction contract had been awarded to James L. Parson, jr., and that the firm of de Young, Moscowitz and Rosenberg had been appointed to handle the architecture and engineering.

Real Estate Financing Continues at Peak Level

Real estate financing in the Nation continued at a peak level during April when about 994 million dollars of nonfarm mortgages were recorded, according to estimates released by the Home Loan Bank Board. The figures are confined to recorded mortgages of $20,000 or less.

Reflecting a seasonal rise of 4 per cent over March, this volume is 6 per cent above the figure for April, 1947. For the first four months of this year the total of $3,685,000,000 in estimated real estate financing represented an 8 per cent increase over the same months of 1947.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—After another session of slowly dropping prices, wheat wound up today not far above the Government loan level here. Corn and oats sank with wheat in early dealings, but rallied sharply toward the close. Corn ended mixed while oats were mostly higher.

In the cash market the sharp break in oats prices continued. Premiums at which oats are selling over the July future were drastically slashed. Losses in the spot trade ranged from 1 to 7 cents a bushel. Cash dealers reported buying 32,000 bushels on a to-arrive basis.

Wheat futures closed 1½ to 1¾ lower; July 2.30½@2.30⅝. Corn was ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, July 2.21½@2.21⅝. Oats were ⅛ to ½ higher, July 92¾@92⅞, and soybeans ¾ lower to ⅛ higher, July 4.09½.

Hedging from the Southwest as the harvest expanded was a factor in the easiness of wheat. More important, however, was lack of buying interest. But some traders felt the bread cereal was due for more support. They pointed out the Government interim loan level here for No. 1 hard wheat is 2.25.

Wheat also weakened on announcement of lower August export allocations, although this confirmed trade expectations. August allocations totaled 37,295 bushels against 40,707,000 for July. Reports in flour circles said both Belgium and Norway were asking for offers on their August allocations of flour.

The sharp break in oats prices continued in the cash market; No. 1 white sold as low as 1.00 a bushel; the same grade brought as high as 1.11½ yesterday and 1.24 last weekend. Other grades also were down sharply for the week as demand dried up.

A good part of the break has been based upon Midwestern rains this week, traders said.

Inflation Fight Threatening At Mid-Year

New York, June 26 (AP).—The public is fighting a running battle against inflation as 1948 enters its second half.

The first six months had just about everything necessary to make them among the most memorable and important in the Nation's peacetime economic hist. .

There was a sharp drop in commodity prices in February that had economists believing inflation might be halted. And then a rise that carried them almost to prebreak peaks.

Basic industries refused wage hikes and reduced some prices for a while. Then, President Truman's rearmament program came along in March, inflation continued, prices increased, wages started up again.

The New York Stock Exchange languished in the doldrums for days on end. But a spectacular advance in May carried the price level to the highest in 21 mon'

Now in High Gear

Now, at mid-year, the Nation's economy is in high gear.

A third round of wage increases is well underway. Prices—both consumer and industrial—are moving toward earlier peaks or above them.

Construction costs climb as building booms. The home buyer has a bigger selection to choose from. But houses are costing him more and mortgage money is tighter.

Everyone appears to be on a buying spree—mostly for automobiles, homes, food and gasoline, the Commerce Department says.

And more retail sales are on the cuff.

The Federal Reserve Board says consumers are using more of their savings, and estimates about one-fourth of consumers will spend beyond their income this year.

Generally, union labor has kept up with the dizzy chase of wages and prices. General Motors broke the wage line and others granted increases of around 8 to 10 per cent.

But the white collar workers have fallen behind and the fixed income group are going into debt. Management hesitates to add to its fixed costs, wondering how long the boom will last.

High Employment

Increased production has brought an almost record employment level and some industrialists fear a labor shortage by fall. Passage of the draft bill by Congress will have a tightening effect on the already tight labor market.

Behind the stepped-up spending and increased production lie:

The wage hikes; lowered taxes, which leave more take-home pay; the rearmament program; and the European recovery program.

Most economists and businessmen are cautious and at variance in their predictions for the remainder of 1948.

Many are unrestrained in their optimism. Some feel a necessary readjustment of the inflationary spiral must be near at hand.

There are industrialists who are worried over the effects of steadily rising costs on their break-even point—the dividing line between profit and loss. They say only a small decline in unit volume would throw them into the red.

One thing seems certain—the supply will not catch up with the demand this year.

Industry reports record profits, sales and dividends. To meet the demands for their products most industries are expanding their facilities. But, like the home owner, the industrialist is finding expansion costs higher than originally planned.

Savings Needed For Trade Risks, Banker Declares

Poland Spring, Me., June 26 (AP). The president of the American Bankers Association said today there is "a distinct threat to our form of economy" because individuals are not encouraged to risk savings reserves in business.

"Business and industry more and more must rely upon their own profits for their capitalization," Joseph M. Dodge of Detroit, Mich., said in an address prepared for the Maine Bankers Association.

"This . . . favors the most strongly established concerns against smaller or new enterprises . . ."

Overall savings accumulations have dropped by four billion dollars, he said, adding this was serious because the savings of the American people "have been the source of their security."

"There are wails about the high cost of living or the inflation or the taxes or the acts of city, State or national government—and no realization of the fact that it is expenditure and debt which are the sources of the trouble," Dodge said.

Refined Sugar Scores First Rise Since Control End

New York, June 26 (AP).—The first advance in refined sugar prices by a major refiner since the industry was decontrolled last year was announced today by California & Hawaiian Sugar Refining Corp.

The firm advanced its price of refined sugar to 7.65 cents a pound, effective at the close of business Monday. This is 15 points above its price on the Pacific Coast and 25 points higher than in other marketing areas extending to Chicago.

When sugar was decontrolled, the ceiling price was 8.40 cents a pound. Prices drifted lower from that level but recent strength in raw sugars, if maintained, indicates a reversal of that trend. Currently Eastern refiners are selling at 7½ cents a pound.

Monetary Fund Issues News Digest

The International Monetary Fund has just released the first public issue of a digest of economic and financial news of international significance. The material in the digest has been gathered heretofore for the use of the Fund but it has received so many requests for copies that it has been decided to distribute a few copies publicly.

The current issue contains a discussion of Argentine trade relations, and items concerning trade between the United Kingdom and Eire, the sterling-dollar problem, French prices, currency reform for western Germany, developments in the Middle East and Far East, trade between Canada and the United States and Latin-American events.

Naval Research Laboratory To Celebrate 25th Birthday

The Naval Research Laboratory at Bellevue, D. C., which pioneered in the development of radar, will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary in ceremonies to be held at the laboratory at 2 p. m. Friday.

The first radar set used in this country was developed at the laboratory by Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor. Scientists there also had a hand in the development of the atomic bomb and worked out an electrical welding process and new methods of casting metals which greatly speeded up construction and repair of ships during the war. The work done at the Bellevue laboratory on underwater sound was another important World War II contribution.

The laboratory was formally commissioned in 1923 by Theodore Roosevelt, jr., to improve the safety and efficiency of the fleet by research into Navy problems.

Ceremonies on Friday will include addresses by Capt. H. A. Schade, USN, Director of the Naval Research Laboratory; John Nicholas Brown, Assistant Secretary of Navy for Air; Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations; Dr. William V. Houston, president of the Rice Institute.

Awards will be presented to 25-year employes of the laboratory, and unclassified work and equipment will be open for inspection afterwards.

Cruiser Worchester Commissioned by Navy

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP).—The cruiser Worcester, a mighty, new warship embodying major changes in United States naval gunnery and design was commissioned here today.

Classed as a "light" cruiser because her main battery guns are smaller than eight inches, the Worchester is bigger than many "heavy" cruisers. The Navy said she is 17,000 gross tons displacement and 668 feet long.

Her commander is Capt. T. B. Dugan of Washington.

Time Bomb Kills One

Salonika, June 26 (AP).—A time bomb exploded in a jeep on the main street here today, killing one person and wounding six. Police blamed it on Communists.

Gravy Plane Due Sept. 1 For Postoffice

The United States Postoffice Department is getting on a gravy plane come September 1.

That is when the department is scheduled to inaugurate its air delivery service for parcel post. Whether the service catches on immediately or not, the Postoffice Department doesn't stand to lose.

For, under the 1938 CAA Act, the Postoffice Department has to pay the airlines enough revenue to keep an air transportation system in effect, in the interest of national defense. And up until now, the department has been paying for airline space it hasn't been using.

The general public will benefit as well, for the rates the department proposes to charge for the service are lower than minimums now in effect for commercial air express.

Inauguration of the service still awaits President Truman's signature on the Congress-approved bill, expected by July 1.

The new service sets up eight zones for air parcel post, with rates rising from 55 cents a pound for distances up to 150 miles to 80 cents a pound for distances within the continental United States. The rate remains at 80 cents a pound between the United States possessions and between those possessions and the United States.

The new service will mean a substantial saving in time for its users—from one to six days. Rates for regular parcel post are 8 to 16 cents a pound depending on distance.

The Postoffice Department estimates it now buys about 12 million dollars worth of space it does not use on airlines. Most of its payments to lines are made in ton-miles, on a decreasing scale with increasing use. If the new service is extensively used, the department may be able to reduce its air postal rates to the public.

Suicide Leap Victim's Kin Being Sought

A woman who was drowned Friday in the Anacostia River after leaping from the Eleventh Street Bridge was identified yesterday as Mrs. Mary Bowman, 50, whose last address was 482 L st. sw.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Police found what at first appeared to be numbers slips in the victim's pocketbook. They turned out to be telephone numbers. One number was that of a friend, Robert McLean of 61 O st. sw., who identified the body at the morgue.

Another number was that of Mrs. William J. Gatton of 357 Parkland pl. se., who told police Mrs. Bowman had worked for her as a maid for about 10 years.

Mrs. Gatton said Mrs. Bowman came to her home Friday, informed her she had been evicted from her room, and departed, saying:

"Nobody will have to worry about where I sleep tonight. I am making my bed in the Potomac."

Police are trying to locate Mrs. Bowman's husband, believed to be in Washington, and a daughter in New York.

Bradley, Spaatz Sure Of Full Pay, 4-Star Rank

By The Associated Press

Retirement at full pay with the rank of four-star general was assured yesterday for Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, and Gen. Carl Spaatz of the Air Force.

The authorization is contained in a law signed by President Truman.

The measure does not mention either of the top World War II leaders by name, but it pins down their identities without question.

Spaatz is now on technical leave and is expected to announce his retirement officially within a week. He was recently succeeded by Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg as Air Force Chief of Staff.

VD Campaign To Last a Year Is Scheduled

A conference to plan phases of a year-long drive against gonorrhea will be held by health officials Monday at 10 a. m. in the Municipal Center, room 5023, Dr. S. Ross Taggart, director of the Health Department's Venereal Disease Bureau announced yesterday.

Plans for distribution of information to the public about the menacing increase in the gonorrhea rate in the District, how to prevent and cure the disease, will be discussed.

Invited to attend are representatives of restaurants and taverns, drug and liquor dealers, hotels and rooming house operators, barbers, taxi groups, radio stations and newspapers.

Speakers will include Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, Dr. Theodore Bauer, director of the venereal disease division of the Public Health Service, and Dr. Taggart.

Rome, Italy, June 26 (U.P.).—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that the bilateral agreement between the United States and Italy under which this country may participate in the European Recovery Program will be signed here Tuesday, two days ahead of the July 3 deadline.

2 Charged With Forging Inspections

Two men yesterday were brought before Arlington County Court on charges of forging official Virginia State auto inspection stickers. They were arrested by an alert Arlington police private.

Arlington law officials said they were working on similar cases in cooperation with Virginia State Police.

In court yesterday were Charles S. Barbour, 35, of 1611 S. 13th st., and Booker T. Henderson, 26, 3446 S. 22nd st., both of Arlington. In addition to the forgery charge, Barbour also is accused of selling one forged sticker.

Barbour was apprehended Thursday after Pvt. Russell Runyon noticed an inspection sticker on a car he knew "could never pass inspection." The driver admitted "a man named Charlie" sold it to him, Runyon said.

Runyon later picked up Henderson, he added, when he stopped the suspect on another matter and noticed by its serial number that the sticker on Henderson's car had been stolen.

Both Henderson and Barbour forged names of inspection station managers on the stolen stickers, police said. Both cases were continued until July 14 in Arlington County Court.

Navy Fliers in Crash Are Presumed Lost

Norfolk, Va., June 26 (AP).—Three Navy fliers were missing and presumed lost today after the reported crash of a torpedo bomber last night about 20 miles east of Chesapeake Lightship.

The crash was reported to Fifth Naval District headquarters here by an accompanying plane during a routine flight. The plane was assigned to Squadron VA3E and was based on the carrier Mindora.

Bucharest, June 26 (AP).—A Foreign Affairs Ministry spokesman said tonight the Romanian government has rejected a Greek government demand for negotiations on repatriation of Greek children in Romania.

People's Party Of Connecticut Backs Liberals

Hartford, Conn., June 26 (U.P.).—The People's Party of Connecticut, supporters of Henry A. Wallace, pledged at its nominating convention today to support candidates for Congress who will "stand for peace, work against the Taft-Hartley Act, fight for civil liberties, for housing, for progressive tax legislation."

Theodore I. Koskoff, chairman of the political committee, told the convention delegates that "if liberal candidates are not put forward by any other party, our candidates stand pledged to fight to win."

However, he said, "in accepting their nominations from the People's Party, our candidates stand pledged to withdraw in order to support any candidate from the old parties who bases his program on the people's need for peace, security and civil rights."

Currency Values Collapse in Shanghai

Shanghai, June 26 (AP).—Shanghai was in the midst of a general collapse of currency values today. At one time this morning, the Chinese yuan dropped to a new low of five million to $1. The official rate is 474,000 to $1.

The collapse was blamed on civil war reverses and continued flooding of printing press money by the government, which can't come within 80 per cent of balancing its budget.

Jewish Congress Gets Palestine Question

Montreux, Switzerland, June 26 (AP).—The World Jewish Congress will open a 10-day session Sunday, during which delegates from 64 countries will discuss the status of Palestine and the relationship of Jews to the new state of Israel.

The 40-member United States delegation is headed by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the world body and also president of the American Jewish Congress. He and Dr. Nahum Goldmann of New York, chairman of the congress executive committee, were among the early arrivals.

IS THERE A BETTER WAY TO PICK A NOMINEE?

TENSE AND TIRED—Page girls at the Republican National Convention found it tiring. The best place to rest was in the aisles. Some of the neighboring delegates, even on the first night seemed a little on thebeaten-up side, too!

BEATING THE DRUMS—Boosting the candidacy of Gov. Dewey, this fife and drum trio in colonial costume invaded headquarters of Senator Taft. The question is asked: Is all this folderol appropriate to the serious business at hand?

Hard To Stay Rational Amid Din, Vaudeville

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—"There must be a better way to pick a presidential nominee."

This exclamation was on the lips of most of the delegates at the 1948 Republican convention as weary and perspiring men and women forced themselves to carry on the public and not-so-public tasks of picking the winner.

Convention oratory is 99.9 per cent soap. Only talents of avoidance amounting to genius, however, could keep a few words of profound truth from finding their way into such a flood of oratory as poured through the microphones at Philadelphia. The speakers did utter some great truths, in spite of themselves. Among other things they said the convention would make decisions vital to the future of America and the world.

Should vital decisions be made in a gathering that is a cross between a public circus and a private secret society? No democratic people would for a moment tolerate the conduct of its legislative business in a parliament constituted as are the gatherings where Americans pick their executives.

Vital Choices in Balance

IS IT FAIR to ask our public men to make choices vital to themselves, to the country and to the world while they are oppressed by a bedlam of noise, lack of sleep, clamor of a mob, and jostling of favor seekers? Is it wise to ask men who will be required to take on the dignity of high office and the solemn obligations of gravest public duty to cavort like vaudeville performers before the visible and invisible convention audiences?

These sober questions were being asked by thoughtful delegates as the convention adjourned.

Maybe their anxious questions reflected only a natural weariness. Probably they will think better of conventions next week, or next month. If history is a guide, more than half of them will think well enough of conventions to become delegates again in 1952. By then they will have had time enough to forget the noise, heat, confusion, disorganization and disappointment.

Whatever the delegates think, the political convention is not likely to vanish from American life. It has been a part of the political system since 1830 and will probably continue. If it isn't a good way to pick the nominees, no-one so far as suggested a better way with any practical chance of adoption. It seems a better device than that originally followed in the United States. It has the virtue of years of precedent and tradition that afford some assurance against flagrant disregard of the rank and file will.

The dreary delegates might better turn their attention to improving the convention system. The structure of the convention system has had little critical appraisal for a long time. The whole machinery of nomination probably needs to be examined and studied. For all its faults, it has elevated able men into the presidency. It seldom has produced candidates patently unfit or obviously out of harmony with the will of the party.

Process Needs Study

THE PROCESS of nomination, nonetheless, probably could stand examination. It needs study in two areas. One is the area of preconvention process. The other is the institution of the party convention itself.

Delegates who gathered at Philadelphia got their authority by most diverse means. The manner of their selection was a matter of determination by State governments, in some cases, and solely by party leaders in other cases. The selection, in a few States, was not much more formal than that of 1856 when like-minded Republicans gathered as volunteers to nominate Fremont as the candidate of the self-appointed members.

Shouldn't there be some effort to give uniformity to the system of selection? Meetings such as the Wallace convention, still to come, exhibit even less order and regularity. This may be leaving to sheer chance and to the wishes of a few self-chosen people more power than ought to repose in semivolunteer aggregations in a modern world, where there are so many forces eager to seize democratic machinery to achieve undemocratic ends.

The operation of the convention itself, also, needs to be studied. The convention of a political party should be a great deliberative conclave for the perfection of a platform and the choice of a nominee. That it be adequately housed, provided with all the facilities for conference and deliberation, furnished all the means of communication is of the most importance. It would be strange indeed to have each Congress convene in extemporized quarters in a different city. It is just as strange to bring convention delegates to a different city each four years to carry on their functions in disorder and confusion of a strange and improvised facility.

It is in the spirit of American political ideals to have the party subordinated between election campaigns. It would be inconsistent with them to make the organization of a party more grandiose, with permanent headquarters accommodating delegates, great regular meeting places and the paraphernalia and trappings of party governments such as Europe has known. There is still a lingering distrust of "party" in the United States The public, beyond doubt, would recoil at any tendency to establish "party" government in this sense.

Yet, if party machinery is to be tolerated, there is a case to be made out for having it function efficiently. Convention facilities should be adequate to the performance of convention work. It is too bad

Venereal Rate Here Six Times That of 1941

By John London
Post Reporter

WASHINGTON is losing a critical battle of health to one of mankind's most ancient and persistent enemies—gonorrhea.

Health officials confess they are alarmed at the steadily increasing number of gonorrhea victims here in the Nation's Capital, which last year amounted to 12,934—twice as many as in 1945; six times as numerous as in 1941.

And officials suspect there are at least another 25,000 unreported victims "floating" about the city.

To indicate the seriousness of this venereal disease menace, authorities point out that the reported cases alone represent:

Some 5.41 times the national rate of gonorrhea per 100,000 population.

Three and four times the number of cases in cities of comparable population, like St. Louis, Baltimore and Cleveland.

Three times the city's 1947 number of reported syphilis cases. Surprisingly, syphilis, the other main venereal disease, has remained relatively stable in the District as gonorrhea has become rampant.

Infects 20 Per Cent More

FURTHER, gonorrhea infected 20 per cent more persons than the next 10 leading communicable diseases combined, including syphilis. Ironically, the gonorrhea rate is soaring here when physicians are better equipped than ever before to kill the germ.

One swift, painless injection of 300,000 units of penicillin is effective in nine cases out of ten, while the tenth case usually is cured by a repeated dose. For the few individuals who have penicillin reactions, streptomycin is effective.

Which leads authorities to say that all that is needed to liquidate this crippling sex disease is public understanding and the active support of every citizen.

Therefore, health experts will sound the tocsin for a year-long counterattack on July 1.

Weapons will be 450,000 informative pamphlets and free distribution of the magic cure, penicillin, to doctors who are being urged to enlist in the campaign. Enough penicillin will be available, initially, for 17,000 "shots."

Directing the drive will be Dr. S. Ross Taggart, chief of the Venereal Disease Bureau of the District Health Department. Coordinators will be experts on loan from the United States Public Health Service, Preston R. Fish, program development specialist, and Edward J. Cunningham, health program representative.

Held Too Lightly

ONE REASON for the rise in gonorrhea, Dr. Taggart believes, is many people still jocularly regard gonorrhea as "no more serious than a cold in the head." Actually, gonorrhea, a bane of mankind for more than 5000 years, can be viciously crippling.

Though rarely fatal, it can poison the system, and frequently causes sterility, by scarring and closing the passages through which spermatazoa or ova must pass for fertilization.

It can cause blindness in newborn babies and in adults. Also it may disable the body's joints and damage valves in the heart.

Doctors diagnose gonorrhea by smear and culture. Unfortunately, there is no satisfactory blood test for gonorrhea as there is in syphilis. The public's misconceptions about gonorrhea are legion. Doctors never cease to be amazed by such questions as:

"Isn't it caused by strain, you know, lifting heavy objects?"

The answer is: gonorrhea is transmitted

Battle for White House Will Be 'All Out'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—A spirited campaign for the Presidency lies ahead. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, chosen by the Republicans this week as their 1948 standard bearer, is prepared to make his first all-out battle to reach the White House. His campaign in '44 could not be called that, vigorous though it was toward the end.

The war was on that year, unity was the watchword, and Dewey necessarily had to restrain his talent as a "prosecutor." His rival, the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, added to Dewey's difficulties by playing up his own role as commander in chief.

Dewey is assuming that his opponent this year will be President Harry S. Truman. Neither he nor anybody in his camp can see the dump-Truman forces getting anywhere when the Democrats hold their own convention here three weeks hence.

Well, then, how will Dewey proceed in his campaign against the President?

One thing is certain: he will not start out, as Clare Boothe Luce did the other night, by taking it for granted that Mr. Truman is a "gone goose." The New York Governor isn't that kind of a man.

But even if he were, it isn't likely that Mr. Truman would allow him to sit out the campaign, thinking he could coast to victory. The Chief Executive is prepared to wage one of the most terrific political battles this country has ever seen and there is going to be nothing polite about it. His recent cross-country tour was just one of several he is likely to take before the balloting comes in November.

Why the Dismal Outlook?

THE really amazing thing about the current political situation is that Mr. Truman's political stock is so low, and that so few analyses give him any chance to win.

At least, it is amazing when viewed against past political history and dogma.

NOMINEE THOMAS E. DEWEY
. . . free to use his talent as "prosecutor"

Prosperity, it used to be argued, absorbed all criticism. It was contended, therefore, that no President was likely to be removed by the voters when times were good.

Why is it, then, that the outlook for the Democrats is so dismal at this stage?

There are two chief reasons, aside from the fact that the Democrats have had administrative control for nearly 16 years. They are:

1. The widespread feeling, assiduously fanned by the Republicans, that Mr. Truman is "not big enough for the job." (Mr. Truman doesn't think any man is.)

2. The serious dissension in party ranks, as demonstrated this year by Henry Wallace's bolt and the South's rebellion.

Governor Dewey, when he starts barnstorming, is going to offer voters competence and efficiency in Government if they put him in the White House. Behind that pledge will be his record as Chief Executive of the largest State of the Union.

He will also emphasize the harmony that exists in the GOP and contrast it to the discord in the party of Jefferson and Jackson.

The 46-year-old New Yorker is in excellent shape, physically and spiritually, as he faces up to the task ahead. Just when he will launch his campaign is something yet to be decided. Ordinarily, a candidate waits until after Labor Day, but the Dewey people say now that the jump-off date will depend on what the opposition does.

Two Men Utterly Different

THIS reporter has travelled with both President Truman and Governor Dewey. He has also seen them together, the last time in a Fifth Avenue reviewing stand watching New York's Irish march past in a St. Patrick's Day parade.

The two men are utterly different in almost every respect, and this despite the fact that both started out in small towns in the Midwest corn belt.

Governor Dewey does not possess what is known as a "winning personality." A very smart fellow, he is well aware of this. He seemed to have it in mind here the other day when, in reply to a reporter's question, he listed the assets of his big running mate from California, Gov. Earl Warren. Well near the top of characteristics he mentioned the "warmth" of Warren's personality.

Dewey's aides not only admire him for his IQ and his administrative skill, but they insist he's "a good guy."

The New Yorker is acknowledged to have the best voice in American politics today, although there are people who don't like it.

He wears the very best of clothes, and is as neat as the proverbial pin. His suits are tailormade, and, allowing for inflation, each must cost close to $200.

The New York Governor is a superb organizer, and you are not likely to see his 1948 campaign marred by blunders.

It's "Hi, Harry"

TURNING to President Truman, he is, of course, one of the friendliest of men. The crowds on his recent Western trip seemed to sense this and instinctively greeted him with a "Hi, Harry."

He is not to be mentioned in the same breath with Governor Dewey when it comes to oratory. In the big speeches—the ones that have to be read from a manuscript—Dewey will make him look bad. The off-the-cuff kind are something else. Mr. Truman,

Rebel Parties Fill Role of 'Blue Tail Fly'

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

IF Henry A. Wallace receives the five million votes predicted for him by that canny political prophet, James A. Farley, the Progressive Party leader will have accomplished something no other comparable third party candidate has.

Bolstered by Midwestern and Western farmers who felt they had been denied a fair share of the newly-returned prosperity of 1924, and by a large segment of labor, Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, running as a Progressive, polled 4,822,856 popular votes and 13 electoral votes in that year.

Next biggest third party vote was polled by Theodore Roosevelt, who with Hiram Johnson as his running mate in a "trust-busting" program in 1912, received 4,126,020 popular votes and 88 electoral ballots as the Progressive Party (Bull Moose) candidate.

Resemblance Ends

ALTHOUGH the Wallace movement, in common with similar movements in the past, uses "Wall Street" and "the bankers" as whipping boys, here the resemblance ceases.

For the old-time third parties, with the possible exception of the Socialists (never strong enough to be a real third party) focussed on domestic issues. There was never a hint of a foreign or international tieup.

LaFollette called for public ownership of water power, railways and strict public control of all natural resources; recognition of agriculture as a basic industry and limitation of the power of the Supreme Court to nullify legislation.

This latter plank was seized upon by his major-party opponents, Republican Calvin Coolidge and Democrat James Davis, who charged that it would destroy safeguards of minority groups and put them at the mercy of the majority.

Progressive Forerunners

ROUGH Rider Roosevelt's "Progressive" platform of 1912 was considerably to the right of LaFollette's, but many of its planks were in advance of the social and economic thought of that time.

It urged women's suffrage, lower tariff, a ban on child labor, a minimum wage and an 8-hour day.

Many of the ideas of Roosevelt and LaFollette stemmed directly from the Populist (or Peoples) Party of the late '80s and '90s, the forerunner of modern progressive movements.

Oddly, the same mystic semi-religious overtones, noticeable in the Wallace movement with the call for "Gideon's Army" to begin the march, typified the Populist, and to a lesser extent, the Bull Moose, movements.

Just as Wallace meetings resound to the voices of his cohorts, led by Paul Robeson, singing "We'll All Join Gideon's Army" to the tune of "The Oldtime Religion," so did hymns mingle with blasts at "Wall Street monopolists" as the Populists gathered their forces.

National Ownership

A contemporary writer described the Populist movement thus: "It was a religious revival, a Pentecost of politics . . . They . . . had heard the word and could preach the gospel of Populism . . ."

This "gospel" included demands for national ownership of all means of communication and transportation; a graduated income tax; a paper money based on the entire wealth and population of the country, not redeemable in any specific commodity (such as gold) but full legal tender for debts, taxes and public dues; free coinage of silver and gold at a 16-1 ratio (16 units of silver to be worth one unit of gold) until a currency system could be established; and a denouncement of "government by injunction."

Roosevelt's "Bull Moose" supporters, inspired by their leader's statement "We stand at Armageddon and we battle for the Lord", went into action with all the fervor reminiscent of the Populists. Their favorite campaign song, too, had a religious connotation: "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Populism was an outgrowth of the Greenback Party and a number of smaller organizations.

The Greenbackers, formed in post Civil War days, favored inflation by the issuance of more paper money. As "hard money" became scarcer, men who had mortgaged farms and other debtors realized that with dollars become dearer, they had to pay their debts with money that had a higher valuation than the sums they borrowed.

Thus they started a hue and cry for the Government to start printing presses rolling out a flood of currency to fill their empty

WORLD AFFAIRS

Occupied Areas Torn Two Ways

By Robert N. Cool

A NEW PHASE is beginning in Germany and Korea—two countries which have been occupied jointly since the war by Russia and the West.

Military occupation is giving way to native, civilian governments, set up to carry the ball for the respective sponsors.

Since no effective cooperation was achieved on the military-occupation level during the past three years, each of the disputed countries is spawning two regimes: One for its Russian-held zone and one for the Western.

Germany and Korea are 6000 miles apart, but the pattern is strikingly similar. Nor is it much affected by the fact that one is a defeated former enemy power, while the other is classified as a friendly territory freed from the clutches of Japan. In each case the East-West rivalry of the victors has largely determined its postwar development.

Meets Violent Opposition

IN THE case of Germany the people of the American, British and French occupation zones will elect a constituent assembly so that a western German government can start functioning early next year.

Designed to swing western German resources behind the European Recovery Program and to solidify the barrier against communism, the plan has met violent opposition in Russia and among German Communists.

As things now are shaping up, west Germany will have a population of about 45 million and an area of 95,000 square miles. East of the Elbe the Soviet zone has only 17 million inhabitants and 46,000 square miles of territory. Berlin will continue to be jointly occupied under the plan, though it lies deep within the Russian area.

Complications Seen

IT IS LIKELY that any Russian-inspired drive for German unity would run into complications over the question of that part of the third Reich which was taken by Poland in return for land on its western borders which Poland ceded to the Soviet Union. Prewar East Prussia also was divided between Poland and Russia.

In Korea the Russian occupation zone north of the 36th parallel has most of the factories and power resources, while the U. S.-held southern region is chiefly agricultural.

After elections in the south on May 10, Korean national assembly is about to function. The Russians wouldn't let the election extend to their zone, but nominally the north is included in the new U. S.-sponsored government.

Since then both the United States and Russia have spoken of reducing their occupation forces on the peninsula.

Under the circumstances, even in Korea, withdrawal probably would invite civil war.

Duck Doesn't Quack

Bangkok, Siam, June 26 (AP).—Narcotics agents discovered a new trick of dope smugglers here.

A passenger disembarked from a vessel from China carrying a cage full of ducks. An alert inspector noticed one duck wasn't quacking or moving about. It was stuffed—with opium.

Finn Ballot Won't Alter Her Policy

By Anne M. Snellman

HELSINKI, June 26 (AP).—Finland, the only one of Russia's western border nations still holding free, secret and unrestricted elections, will elect a new 200-member Parliament July 1 and 2.

Whatever the results of the elections, however, Finland's foreign political policy course already is determined. President Paasikivi made that plain when he said: "Finland can never pursue a policy directly against the Soviet Union."

The Communists, through the Popular Democratic Union, are trying to capitalize on this principle. Prime Minister Mauno Pekkala said in a recent speech that the elections were of foreign political character and that the people by casting their votes will say yes or no to the present policy. The leftist press claims that those who do not vote with the Popular Democrats in effect are voting "no."

Claim No Third Way

THE Communists, and the Popular Democrats generally, say the issue is "popular democracy or reaction." They claim there is no third way.

The Social Democrats claim to be representatives of exactly this "third way"—western socialism. Many voters dissatisfied with the conservative policies of the Liberal Progressive Party are expected to support the Social Democrats.

Both the Popular Democrats and the Social Democrats propose to raise the standard of living for workers, the Popular Democrats with side glances to the Soviet Union.

On the right is the conservative rally, the industrialists' traditionally conservative party. Its strongest rival for the big landowners' votes is the Agrarian Party in the center. There is a bitter fight between these two groups.

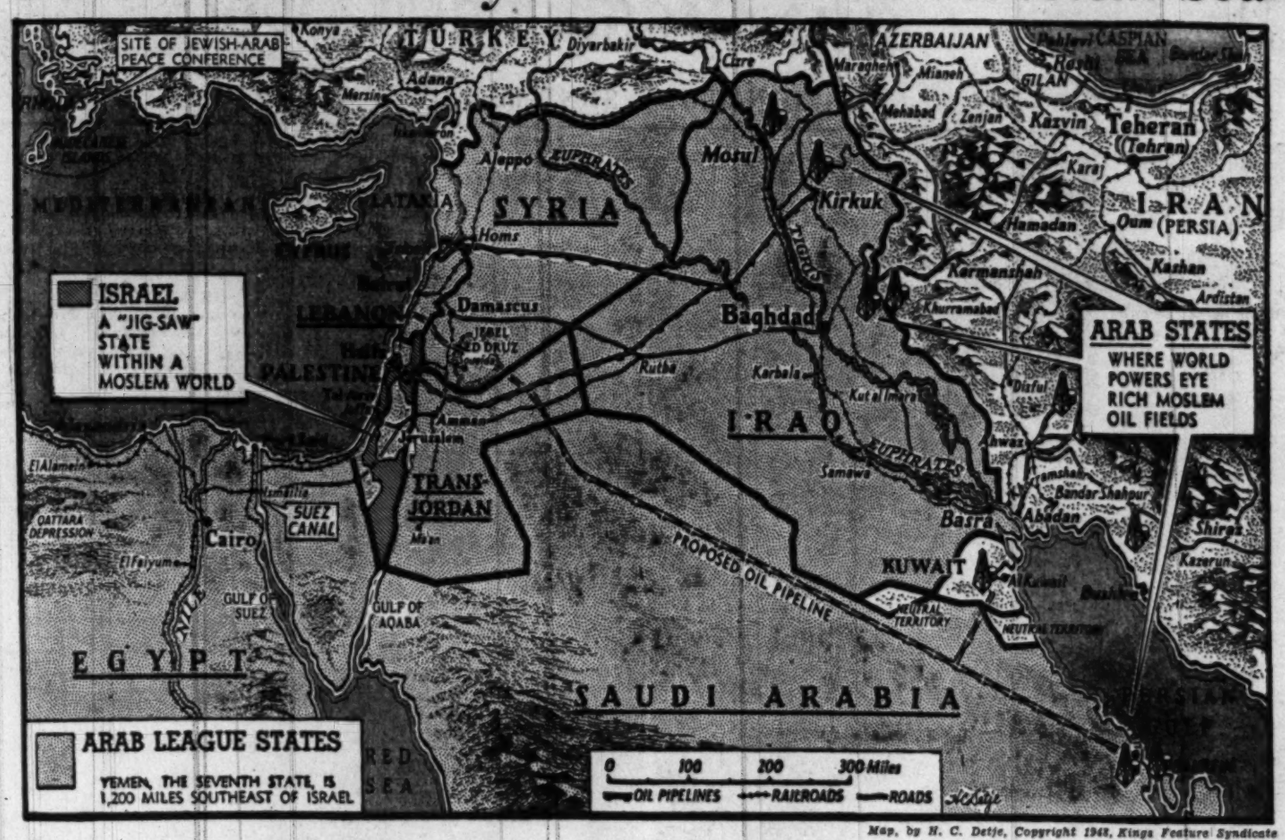
With the Agrarians in the center is the Swedish People's Party, both fighting the extreme right as well as the extreme left. They are conglomerates of widely varied political views, kept together by at least one common interest in each party: the Agrarians by their interest in farming, the Swedish People's Party by their Swedish mother tongue.

Popular Democrats Strong

ALSO in the center party alignment is the small Progressive Party, which at present has nine deputies.

The strongest group at present is the Popular Democrats, which expects to lose anywhere between 5 and 11 seats of their 51 seats.

Palestine Is a Tiny Island in a Vast Moslem Sea



Map, by H. C. Detje, Copyright 1948, Kings Feature Syndicate

SMALL, as men measure physical space, but tremendous as men measure spiritual power, Palestine is a Judaic and Christian stranger, alone and unafraid, in a huge Moslem world. Its 900 square miles (slightly larger than Wales) have been the bloody stage of battle time and time again.

Today, as a troubled truce has been imposed on the little land, the seven surrounding Arab League nations regard it with hate, and the world with alarm.

Since the great Jewish commander Joshua conquered Canaan, Palestine has been a place of clashing faiths or hostile interests. After Joshua came the civil and foreign wars and then, after a period of greatness, came the Roman legions; and came also the birth and crucifixion of Christ.

The prophet Mohammed joined the tribal units of Arabia into a fanatical union and his flaming followers once more visited death and agony on Palestine. The violent response to this was the Crusades (1096 to 1291), marked by Christian zeal and corrupted by famine and vice.

Turks, and Palestine literally ceased to have a history as a geographical entity until the 19th century.

Finally in 1917 came the British. And now, out of dreams and courage and endurance, has been created the new nation of Israel. The situation is further confused by the interests of great powers, and one of the chief reasons for the interest is oil.

Oil is the reason British policy is cautious to the recognition of Israel, and why the British insist United States interests are identical with theirs.

Hawaii, Alaska Move Nearer To Statehood

CONGRESS has been considering the admission of both Hawaii and Alaska to Statehood, while the Soviet Union is stepping up its development of Siberia.

These moves reflect a new military orientation, by which the Pacific becomes the ocean to be most carefully watched. It separates the United States and Russia where these super-powers directly face each other, and across the Arctic wastes of the North Pacific lies the shortest aircraft and rocket route between the "two worlds."

Though invective may be hurled in greatest volume across the Atlantic, with Europe a noisy middle ground, United States defense experts look to the Northwest when anyone mentions a possible air war of tomorrow.

For the first time a House of Representatives committee, after extensive hearings, has recommended that Alaska be admitted as a State. This step was urged upon Congress by President Truman. He also advocated Statehood for Hawaii.

The President's program for making Alaska a "strong partner" in the Union included a request for swift action to improve air, sea and land transportation. Inadequate and expensive shipping to the Northern outpost has been blamed for keeping out settlers.

Military strengthening of Alaska has been going on for some time, chiefly in the field of air power. One of the biggest United States airfields is being built at Mile 26, near Fairbanks, and a vast defense program designed to intercept transpolar air attack has been projected.

Meanwhile Alaska's natural resources and economic possibilities are luring more settlers. Statehood would improve things considerably, its proponents say. Currently Alaska, which is twice the size of Texas, has a population of about 60,000 whites and 30,000 Eskimos and Indians.

Hawaii, a companion outpost of American continental defense, is closer to Statehood. The House of Representatives recently approved a bill making Hawaii the forty-ninth State, but the Senate put it aside.

Manuilsky Is Back, So Look For Fireworks

By Francis W. Carpenter

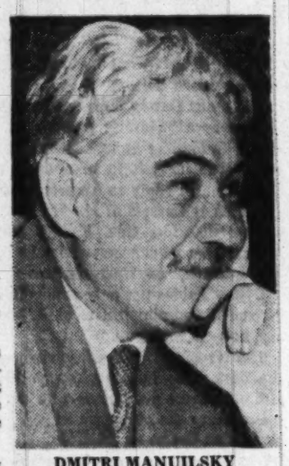
LAKE SUCCESS, June 26 (AP).—A smiling, old-tie Bolshevik will take the helm of the United Nations Security Council during July.

He is Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, Foreign Minister of the Soviet Ukraine and one of the most colorful delegates ever to sit in U. N. councils.

Manuilsky arrived from the Ukraine this month, discreetly silent as far as the public was concerned. But delegates and observers familiar with Manuilsky's table tactics predict fireworks may be expected.

Short, gray-haired and 65 years old, Manuilsky has lived a turbulent life. At an age when most men are ready to settle down, the Ukrainian delegate shows little sign of slowing up.

During the 1946 U. N. Assembly in New York he suffered a heart attack. He had to relinquish chairmanship of the extremely important political committee of the Assembly just when it was seeking agreement on an arms limitation proposal offered by Manuilsky's old friend, V. M. Molotov, Foreign Minister of Soviet Russia.



DMITRI MANUILSKY
. . . has lived a turbulent life

Clashed With Evatt

BUT Manuilsky was back at the 1947 Assembly in his usual form. He topped that Assembly with a heated verbal clash with Herbert V. Evatt, Australian foreign minister. They made up later and parted on good personal terms.

Manuilsky's biographies show that he first became known as an agitator in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), Russia. He was exiled to Kiev in 1906 for his part in the Kronstadt mutiny in St. Petersburg. He escaped Russia in 1907 and remained away until 1917.

During most of his exile outside of Russia, he lived in France. Now he speaks French with the best Parisian diplomat.

He rejoined the Bolsheviks in Russia in 1917. For years he has been in the inner circles of the Communist Party. He became secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Ukraine in 1921.

Manuilsky was head of the Comintern from 1924 until 1943, directing its activities in various countries around the world. He was awarded the Order of Lenin in 1943.

Speaks Frankly to Stalin

THE Ukrainian is credited in informed circles here with being one of the few men in Russia who can speak quite frankly with Premier Josef Stalin. This relationship, it is said, goes back to the early days of the Communist Party in Russia when Stalin and Manuilsky were working for the revolutionary cause.

He came to the Security Council especially for the term as chairman. The Council rotates that post each month among the 11 delegates by English alphabetical order. The Ukraine became a Council member last January 1, but Manuilsky designated Vassily A. Tarasenko as his deputy. Tarasenko will remain with the delegation as principal advsior to Manuilsky during the July term.

China's Wheat Plentiful, Yet Labor's Short

PEIPING, June 26 (AP).—North China is enjoying its best wheat crop in many years, but there are not enough hands to harvest it.

This paradox in an overpopulated country is due to conscription of many able-bodied farmers and the flight of many more to escape induction into the army.

Gen. Fu Tso-yi, government commander for North China, has decided to use some of his troops to help with the harvest, but many people think this action may have come too late to save much of the crop.

Wheat—not rice—is the mainstay of North China, but there is not enough to go around.

The United States China Relief Mission imports wheat, but the American taxpayer takes a beating on it. To buy and import a ton of United States wheat costs about $200 a ton. It is sold here for $60 a ton, the proceeds going to finance various welfare projects.

The low price is intended to help hold down inflation. Also, if it were any higher, people could not afford it.

Prices of other commodities have risen sharply, nevertheless. The spectacular slump in Chinese currency, especially in the past week, has hit the Chinese equivalent of the white-collar class very hard. Rent and a bit of food are all a salaried person can pay for.

Farmers, shopkeepers and rickshaw coolies are better off. They charge more as their costs rise. The average rickshaw coolie makes more money than a school teacher.

Banks and business houses have had to add extra strings of beads to their abacuses to keep pace with larger sums. Airlines have hired employes whose sole duty is to count the billions of Chinese dollars taken in each day.

Even heaven is affected by inflation. "Joss money," burned at funerals for use of the dead in the next world, is now printed at face values as high as 100 billion dollars.

An American studying Chinese complained to his tutor that he was not getting anywhere with the language, as "all I can talk about in Chinese is high prices."

"Well," replied the tutor, "that's all we Chinese talk about."

The commonest phrase in Pejping today is "chien pu chih chien," or "money isn't worth money."

Russian Tank Drivers Quit to Run Combines

Moscow, June 26 (AP).—Many a Soviet tank driver has returned to the countryside and "beaten his tank into a combine." Tass recently reported that particularly large numbers of former tank drivers and military chauffeurs are taking special courses for the training of combine operators.

In 11 schools in this center alone, said the Soviet news agency, about 1400 collective farmers and former veterans are learning to operate combines.

British Lords Ponder Repeal of 'Spent' Laws

By Richard Tompkins

LONDON, June 26 (AP).—Under ancient English law, widows might "bequeath the corn of their lands," but a woman's dower was "forfeited by elopement with an adulterer."

These are among scores of archaic, dead and "spent" enactments which the House of Lords is expected to repeal, to clear the way for a revised edition of Britain's statute books.

The bill, which would weed out the obsolete laws, was presented in the House of Lords May 27 by Lord Jowitt, the Lord Chancellor.

Some 30 statute law revision bills were passed between 1861 and 1898 and the present bill starts the process of expurgation afresh. It covers the period from 1235 to 1800.

Bridge Toll 'Spent'

AMONG the measures marked for deletion is an act of George III for "laying a toll upon all horses and carriages passing on a Sunday over Blackfriars Bridge." This law is declared "spent" and the "city remembrancer agrees." The present bridge dates from 1869.

Another act of George III, also 'spent,' enabled one Thomas Macklin "to dispose of his collection of modern paintings by way of chance—(lottery, to depend on the drawings in the next state lottery, sanctioned notwithstanding the lottery laws)."

An act of Edward II provided that "no one be molested for the death of Piers de Gaveston" and that "none be molested for the return of Piers de Gaveston."

For the naturalization of the children of three Englishmen who had married overseas there was an act in the reign of Henry VIII "for making free and to putt in the nature of mere Englishmen certayne children begotten and born byyonde the sea."

The statute revision bill cites this one of Queen Elizabeth's time: "An acte agaynste the bringing in and putting in execution of bulls and other instruments from the sea of Rome."

To Banish Vagrants

THIS one is recorded in the time of William III: "An act for the more effectuall punishment of vagrants and sending them wither by law they ought to be sent."

George I had a law "for continuing the duty of two pennies Scots . . . on every pint of ale . . . sold within the city of Edinburgh." This was followed by similar acts to cover numerous other towns in Scotland.

The "frivolous arrests act" of George I is another facing repeal. In George II's reign there was "an act to explain and amend an act . . . to prevent the misbehavior of the drivers of carts in the streets of London."

George III had "an act for watering Piccadilly."

In the reign of Edward VI, this went on the books: "An acte for the declaracion of a statute made for the marriage of priestes and for the legittimacian of their children."

Inflation Hits Bail Business, Germans Stay in Clinker

FRANKFURT, (AP).—Few Germans go free on bail while awaiting trial these days. "They'll jump bail if you turn them loose," a German prosecutor explained. "This money we have here now has so little value and there's so much of it in circulation that even a big amount of bail does no good."

"Besides," he added, "so many of our criminals belong to the big floating population of homeless wanderers left by the war."

There is no habeas corpus proceeding in Germany. German law permits refusal of bail in any case where there is danger that a prisoner might flee or that he might destroy evidence.

However, German law does require that a prisoner can compel a hearing every two months to decide whether his continued imprisonment is justified. Besides that, American military government keeps a close check on the dockets to see if there are abuses.

As War Reserve

Experts Say We Need 5000 Cargo Planes

By James J. Strebig

Associated Press Aviation Reporter.

BECAUSE a tremendous air cargo fleet will be needed in any future war, military and civilian transport experts have been wrestling with the problems of an adequate peacetime reserve pool.

Thus far they have not announced a figure as finally accepted, but testimony before the President's Air Policy Commission indicated 4000 or 5000 transport planes are desirable. The entire American transport fleet in scheduled operations now is about 1000 aircraft.

The military interest is primarily in a long-range, four-engine plane at least as large as the Douglas DC-6 or the Lockheed Constellation. The initial cost of a fleet of 4000 planes of that size would be well over 4 billion dollars. The annual operating cost would be several billion dollars more if the planes were kept busy.

60 Times as Much Cargo

ASSUMING the planes were flown an average of eight hours a day five days a week, with one in 10 on the ground for maintenance, the available lift or working capacity would be 33 billion ton-miles a year. A ton-mile means the movement of 2,000 pounds one mile.

That is more than 60 times as much air cargo as was carried by United States air operators last year and four times as much as the less-than-carlot freight carried by rail.

A 4000-plane fleet flying 40 hours a week would burn 2,750,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year, or 10 times as much as this country's airlines used last year. In the face of a threatened petroleum shortage, the extra burden would be unwelcome.

The Civil Aeronautics Board told the President's commission that a 1000-plane cargo fleet could handle 4700 times as much cargo as was carried in 1946 by the existing commercial fleet, mostly passenger planes. The operating cost would be "virtually prohibitive," the board said.

But in the face of that, several witnesses suggested the need of 5000 transport planes as an operating reserve for military emergency needs. (To the military a "transport plane" is one that can double as a cargo or troop carrier.)

Most airline officials were inclined to be more conservative, with suggestions of 200 to 500 planes in the reserve pool.

Fleet Was 365 Planes

WHEN the Japs struck, the Nation's domestic air fleet was about 365 planes. The military took half of them as the nucleus for organizing its own air transport services. Eventually about 16,000 transports of 25,000 pounds or more gross weight were built for the military.

The military air transport service (MATS), which does all of the hauling for the Army, Air Force and Navy, operates only 300 planes in transport service today.

Two problems arise in having transports ready in sufficient quantity for initial demands: (1) design of a plane usable by civil operators pending its call to military service and (2) keeping the fleet modern.

The first is a problem because military transports require "beefing up" beyond civil needs. The Fairchild C-82 packet is an example. It has 3000 pounds of weight built into it solely to meet Air Force demands. That extra weight makes it unsatisfactory for a commercial operator.

On the second point, storing or continuing to operate World War II transports would leave the military far behind the best planes available. Since V-J Day the airlines have put into service planes which are much faster and larger than the wartime workhorses.

Still another and more complicated phase of operating a large enough peacetime cargo fleet is the Nation's airport and airway systems. This already is overloaded in bad weather. It is being modernized, but the job will require 15 years and cost more than one billion dollars.

'Hill City' Cuts Delinquency Bills

A child can join Hill City for 15 cents a year. Here the "officials" of the youth government are shown at their desks.

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP).—Children in Pittsburgh's "city within a city" are saving the big folks about $25,000 a year.

They do it by reducing false fire alarms and by curbing juvenile delinquency in other ways.

"Hill City," as the project is known, is nestled deep in Pittsburgh's predominantly Negro hill district—referred to in sociological reports as a "blighted area."

Governed by the youth of the district, under the supervision of Howard C. McKinney, founder of the agency, the "city" has its own mayor, council, judges, district attorney, police and a counterpart of every department and bureau in Pittsburgh's municipal government.

City officials say the self-government process has worked well. For instance, in addition to the $25,000 saved by the reduction in false alarms, shoplifting in Pittsburgh stores has been reduced about 63 per cent, McKinney says. Gang activities have been cut 96 per cent, he adds proudly, and vandalism more than 60 per cent.

McKinney, a former city detective and a University of Pittsburgh graduate, says the main purpose of Hill City is "to make the children feel they are not outcasts of society and that America offers them a future even though they are Negroes."

Any neighborhood child can join Hill City for 15 cents a year. No other charges are made. When entertainment is given, admission is never with money, but by some article of food, however small and cheap.

If a youngster doesn't care to join Hill City officialdom, he can spend his free moments in the workshop.

"Much of our success in the past was due to shop work," McKinney said. "By the same means, we were able to raise the living standards in homes with the chairs, tables and other items the children made and took home."

Mrs. Eunice W. Cook, assistant to McKinney, aids family hygiene by teaching youngsters home nursing.

Clintwood Elects Only Women

By Herb Little

CLINTWOOD, Va., June 26 (AP).—The ladies take over Clintwood next September 1 and, come good or bad, the men should keep their peace. Most of them voted for it.

This town of 2200 has never before had a woman in its government. But on June 8, it went feminine in a big way and voted women into all six of its elective offices.

Although none of the present government sought reelection, there were five men on the ticket—one for mayor and four for council. All were badly beaten.

Here is the lineup of Virginia's first all-female town government:

Mayor—Mrs. Minnie (Sis) Miller, widow of a lumberman and mother of two sons. She won by a vote of 264 to 99.

Councilwomen:

MRS. BEUNA C. SMITH, teacher in Dickenson County schools for more than 20 years and mother of two children. Her husband, now retired, was clerk of the local draft board during the war.

Mrs. Marian Shortt, former bank teller and now business manager of the local telephone office. She is the wife of a garage operator and is the youngest of the women elected.

Mrs. Ida Cunningham, another veteran of two decades of school teaching.

Mrs. Ferne Skeen, nurse and wife of a coal operator.

Mrs. Kate Friend, social worker and wife of the foreman of a State highway crew.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Friend are grandmothers. None of the women has ever run for office before and none of their husbands has ever been in the town government.

A group of leading citizens persuaded the six women to run for office. One of the women explained:

"They felt there was a need for a change. The men in our government have been competent, but they have also been businessmen and haven't had enough time to give to the town."

As women will be, they were very thorough about it. In their campaign, they called in a group on virtually every voter in Clintwood.

It Was Surprising

BUT even at that their big margin of victory was more than they expected. Mrs. Shortt said, "We surprised everyone including ourselves. We certainly didn't expect a landslide like that."

And Mrs. Miller, the mayor-elect, said, "We're just now getting over the shock."

As for the men of the town, Mrs. Miller remarked:

"Some of them were pleased and some weren't, but I think they'll all be behind us."

Between now and September, the six plan to sit in on council meetings here and in nearby towns to see how things work and perhaps to get some new ideas.

Mrs. Shortt explained the group's program for Clintwood as "clean-up and fix-up."

Half Century Brings Changes In Medicine

DR. ROBERT V. PALMER
. . . sometimes makes his calls by jeep

By Verna Phillips Slingluff

THE year was 1895. A young man walked down the steps from the Medical School of Maryland University. From that time to this Dr. Robert V. Palmer has been one of the busiest and best-loved doctors in the Nation. St. Marys County, Maryland, thinks so anyway.

Born of a Scotch father and an English mother, Palmer early made up his mind to become a country doctor. Upon application for admission to the medical school, he was asked to show his credentials.

"I showed them my diploma from Charlotte Hall.

"That was all I had to do and to show you how much regard was held for Charlotte Hall (oldest military school in the United States), I was one out of only two in 175 who did not have to take an entrance examination," he says.

"In those days any young man could apply for admission to medical school. Of course, those with the highest academic records were accepted and a two-year course was required for a degree of doctor of medicine. I was one of the first to take a three-year course. No State board examinations were required to practice medicine and if a farmer decided to become a doctor, he studied until he felt he knew as much as the next one and then hung out his shingle. Now, as you know, physicians must study eight years or more after a high school diploma at a cost of not less than $20,000," the old man said.

"But with all the study and all the lectures in the field of medicine there is nothing more valuable than actual experience," he went on.

First in Country

"I was the first physician in St. Marys County to apply for a license to practice medicine and when I did so, the clerk of the court did not know what to do with me.

"When I arrived at Bushwood Wharf to hang out my shingle, I had two calls awaiting me. My buggy had already been stopped twice. On my return, I found a messenger from Dr. Pinkney Blackistone asking me to attend him. It had been reported to me that on hearing of my intention to practice medicine, the old gentleman had remarked, 'Young Palmer is coming back and try to kill us all.' At the bedside of the ill man, I jokingly said, 'Now, sir, is my chance to kill you.'"

This reporter asked Dr. Palmer what he thought when his streamed-lined colleagues referred to him as old fashioned, slow to accept new drugs and new methods of treatment.

"I do use the new drugs after they have been proven safe and effective. I am perhaps old-fashioned in that I furnish the medicines I prescribe. I advise home treatment whenever possible as I feel that my patients get more attention at home. Then, too, the nearest hospital is a distance of 15 miles, too far for me to keep an eye on them," the old gentleman said.

"I do send patients there, though," he added.

Noted for his pill-cure treatment, Dr. Palmer said he did administer medications by hypodermic when he desired quick results.

"One time I had an urgent call to see a giant of a man who had been drinking. He had run his family away from home and three husky fellows were trying to subdue him. I saw at once that nothing short of a lethal dose would calm him down. We chased him around the room for a while and finally I shot him right where his mother once walloped him."

Mostly Liquids

LIQUID medicines were all that were in use when Dr. Palmer started to practice 52 years ago. If a patient didn't like the taste of the liquid, the doctor would often ask for some dough and roll the powdered drug inside and the patient would swallow it. Then gelatin capsules came into existence.

"Senna is an old drug, which we used to prescribe as a laxative. Castor oil is old and still the best in many cases. Another very old drug is tincture of veratum virdie, used as a sedative. Acetic acid (also a tincture) was used to remove warts and I used it in the treatment of burns long before modern men started advocating its use as such," he said.

Chubby and jovial, the 77-year-old man of medicine looks a lot like Kris Kringle. No matter what the call, an impoverished Negro family, an unwed mother, tenant or land owner, Dr. Palmer never refuses.

The horse-and-buggy days were not so bad, the doctor said, and he told of having to ride a jeep into one farm this past winter. He usually travels by automobile and drives it himself.

Pointing out the great need for doctors and nurses in St. Mary's County, the doctor explained that the few young physicians who were lured to small towns found themselves flooded with work and did not find it necessary to practice general medicine or make home visits.

Leonardtown, the stop-gap for traffic between the Navy's large air base and Washington and Baltimore and increasing rapidly in population and business enterprises, has attracted only two "new" physicians. More people, more money and very little if any competition provide a lucrative field for medical practice.

He'd Go, Though

A CITY SLICKER would be amazed and perhaps think he was in one of Peoples Drug Stores if he could peep into the doctor's office at Infield, Md. Great bottles of drugs line the shelves from floor to ceiling, some old, many new.

In his ability to remember names, Dr. Palmer is surpassed only perhaps by Big Jim Farley.

Recently after his fiftieth year as a member of the American Medical Association, Dr. Palmer received a card engraved in gold from that group saying he would no longer have to pay annual dues and that all banquets, entertainments, etc., would be gratis.

"I guess they figured I was too old to trek across the country to their shindigs.

"I'd go though," he added gravely, "if I weren't so busy."

Many Who Have Hobbies Dislike Jobs

By William J. Conway

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP).—Many workers who have hobbies don't like their jobs.

That's the opinion of a psychologist, Dr. P. S. Shurrager of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

He splits the millions of working hobbyists into three groups. The first are those who are "underplaced." Their work is too easy for them. They don't make full use of their ability on the job. So they turn to a hobby to satisfy a yen to do something. Thus a man or woman on an assembly line may go in for making furniture or sewing in their spare time.

In the second class are the "overpaced." They don't measure up to their positions. They have to stretch their aptitudes to try and make up the difference. These folks—usually office workers and supervisors—find a hobby to relieve the daily strain.

Then there are those who are so much in the right spot that their work is their hobby. Such as reporters who write books, photographers who take cameras with them on vacations or science teachers who have laboratories in their homes.

"All the specific components of intelligence that go to make up a man should be studied," he says. "If he is put in a place that fits his exact aptitudes, he is satisfied.

"Men are most happy doing the things they do well and like to do.

"Management ought to look into their employes' hobbies to see if it can't use their abilities and interests."

Dr. Shurrager thinks hobbies are fine for workers if they don't think about them too much on company time.

Day by Day Accounting

Closing U. S. Books Not an Easy Chore

By Charles Molony

"CLOSING THE BOOKS," on the Government's fiscal year ending Wednesday (June 30) sounds simpler than it really is. The Treasury, in a remarkable job of routine accounting, tallies receipts and expenditures day by day throughout the year and keeps a cumulative total.

To close the books, therefor, it will need only to tote up the June 30 receipts—a more formidable task than it sounds—and tack 'em onto the tallies it made the day before.

The total it gets this time will go down in the records permanently as the outcome of a year's budget operations.

Could you "rig" a budget balance by some year-end jiggling of the books?

The experts' answer is a qualified yes. You could artificially swell or shrink the figures by some delaying or speeding entries, but the amount would be tiny against the totals.

The best guarantee that the bookkeepers won't jiggle the entries is that they're Government career men whose jobs are independent of the party in power—experts with high standing in their profession.

Congress Fixes Method

CONGRESS, however, can easily and legally "rig" the books by fixing the method which the bookkeepers must follow in entering budget items.

That, in fact, was exactly the point behind the proposal to charge three billion dollars to this year's budget expenditures for European Recovery Program. Actual spending that won't take place until next fiscal year.

An extra three billion dollars recorded as "spent" this year would merely reduce a surplus that Treasury Secretary Snyder says will exceed seven billion dollars. But on next year's books it might turn a deficit into a "balanced budget."

Take the so-called GI terminal leave bonds. The budget books last year charged the amount of the bonds to "expenditures" when the bonds were mailed out, even though no bonds could be cashed at first.

This fiscal year, when the Government was passing out cash on the bonds, it didn't have to make further budget entries because the bonds were already "paid off" as far as the budget went.

That doesn't mean the cash transactions aren't recorded. The Treasury keeps its cash balance tallied to the penny every 24 working hours with a printed statement it issues daily on Government finances.

Treasury experts are constantly trying to cut down on delays in recording financial operations of the Government.

On Slow-Entry Basis

UP UNTIL two years ago, no money the Government paid out by check was charged to expenditures until the checks were cashed, but only the armed forces are still on this slow-entry basis.

Some delays can't be overcome. For instance, withholding tax deductions from pay checks during this month won't show up on this fiscal year's tax collections. The law gives the employer until July 31 to turn in the money.

Spending isn't always strictly up to date either. For various reasons, some agencies don't report their spending day by day, but at the end of each month. The armed forces get a special leeway under appropriations laws.

Substitute For Hipbone Developed

A NEW plastic-and-steel substitute for part of the human hip bone has been developed by a Columbia University surgeon.

It looks something like a sawed-off version of a drum major's baton. It has a ball-like top made of a resinous plastic material (leucite). Attached to this is a hollow stainless steel tube about a foot long.

When part of a hipbone is removed to treat a diseased condition, the plastic top piece fits into the hip socket.

The steel tube substitutes for the missing part of the bone shaft. The free end of the tube is inserted in the "marrow canal" running through the remaining part of the shaft. This locks the steel part in place. Gradually tissue grows around the tube.

Dr. Stephen S. Hudak showed it at a scientific meeting sponsored by the Office of Naval Research. He said it still is experimental but that he had used it in three operations.

One case treated was a former aerial navigator who had been bedridden for three years with arthritis that stiffened his spine and affected both hips.

After part of one hipbone was removed and the plastic substitute was placed, Hudack said, the man could walk with the aid of crutches and move the treated leg through a 30-degree angle forward and back. Previously he had no motion in it.

About six inches of bone was removed.

The technique also was used for a woman who had a cancerous hipbone and for a man whose hip was beginning to soften and waste away at the top end—a condition "probably caused by injury to blood vessels."

Colleges Plan Field Trips For Summer

By David T. Marke

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP).—Classrooms and laboratories on wheels will roam the countryside this summer as higher education takes to the road.

Field trips are being planned by colleges and universities for classes in geology, geography, home economics, mining and forestry. History and political science groups will visit legislative, executive and judicial bodies of Federal, State and local governments. They will cover historic sites, monuments and museums.

Sociology students will explore the homes and places where different races and ministry groups congregate. Other groups will take to the field to study a combination of these.

Will Live Outdoors

THESE students will travel by bus, truck and car. For the most part they will live in the field. For example, the general field course students in botany and zoology at West Virginia University will travel by university bus, exploring West Virginia and studying the Appalachian fauna and flora.

Among the summer study trips for college students in geology will be Emory University's rolling laboratory, roughing it in the glacial regions of Wisconsin. For five weeks they will hunt for fossils and dig with pick and shovel for samples of the geologic structure of the terrain.

Geology students from New York University will explore Cumberland Gap, Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. Fellow geologists from Columbia University will camp out with their own equipment in the Catskills, Colorado, Arizona, Wyoming and Mexico. Cornell's students will roam northern Pennsylvania and explore the sand dunes of Lake Ontario.

Washington College of Education, Eastern, Wash., will offer a multiple purpose field trip. Students will study geology, eography, nature study, conservation, sociology and land planning. The problems of housing and of living in construction camps and in a developing region will be tackled.

Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, will offer college students a sociology course in the area of intercultural relations. For four weeks the embryo sociologists will study isolated communities where the effects of the school upon the people, the natural and social habitat, community organizations, folkways, political organizations, and the effects of industrialization upon the community will be observed. They will roam through the Toe River Valley and adjacent areas in North Carolina and Tennessee.

To Study TVA Project

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY also will run a sociology field course to study the TVA from Knoxville to Florence, Ala., State Teachers College, Montclair, N. J., plans a 12-day field study excursion to New England, Quebec, Lake Chamberlain and the Hudson Valley. Their longest tour will be a transcontinental summer field course which will extend for 12,800 miles and last 62 days. This will be concerned primarily with regions and localities of geographic and historic importance.

The school of education at Indiana University will sponsor a cultural and educational tour to Mexico for credit. Ball State Teachers College, Indiana, will have two travel courses: A 4000-mile-trip covering eastern United States and Canada; a 6000-mile-trip to Mexico. Illinois State Normal University will offer a 6000-mile history and geography tour for credit.

Among other colleges which offer field courses are: Fresno State College in California, Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Tex., and Chadron State Teachers College in Nebraska.

D. C. Lawyer Pens Fiction Around Fact

By Lee Grove

A 70-YEAR-OLD lawyer fascinated with the history of the American West has turned novelist.

While living in El Paso nearly 25 years ago, Ottamar Hamele of 3504 36th st. nw. became engrossed in one of the most famous exploits in American military history—Doniphan's 3600-mile march during the Mexican War of 1846-48.

The result is "When Destiny Calls," just published by the Naylor Co. of San Antonio, Tex.

Hamele describes his chronicle of the march of Col. Alexander W. Doniphan's Missouri Mounted Volunteers as "history flavored with fiction." Emphasizing that it is not "an escape novel," he says earnestly that "no one will be misled as to history."

Hamele's book begins with Doniphan organizing his expedition in Missouri, and follows it across the plains to New Mexico, into Mexican territory, and concludes with its return via New Orleans.

William Cullen Bryant, poet and journalist, in 1847 proudly compared the battle-marked march with the classic retreat of Xenophon several hundred years before Christ, and noted the phonetic similarity of the Greek and American leaders' names.

Hamele, who was born in East Otto, Cattaraugus County, N. Y., was at various times a harness maker, farmer, printer and weekly newspaper publisher before being admitted to the New York bar in 1903. In 1912 he moved to Pawhuska, Okla., became assistant prosecuting attorney of Osage County and in 1920 became chief counsel for the United States Reclamation Service.

It was then that Hamele began his book, but finding his time absorbed with taxation problems, he put it aside until three years ago.

Hamele, who is also the author of "Federal Reclamation Laws Annotated" and numerous magazine articles, served in the chief counsel's office, Bureau of Internal Revenue, from 1926 to last April 30.

Britisher Finds 'Maned Wolf,' 'Extinct' in 1888

Asuncion, Paraguay, June 26 (AP).—A man here has an "extinct" wolf. William Chippendale of the British Legation says an 1888 zoology textbook declared it extinct. But the specimen he has is alive, friendly, and has a quick eye for chickens. The wolf is called "Canis jubatus," the scientific way of saying "maned wolf."

Chippendale says there are more maned wolves—the name comes from a ruff of hair around the neck—in the Chaco. Also such treasures as the giant armadillo—three feet from neck to tail—and a boa constrictor which he discovered there and which is named for him.

The wolf will go to the London zoo later this year when Chippendale goes home on leave. He sent another specimen to the zoo nine years ago but it was "killed by enemy action." The present specimen is a female, reddish-brown like a fox, and her body is shaped like a greyhound. Her body is covered with long, coarse hair to protect her from briars. Her toes are long and spreading to keep her feet from sinking in the mud around swamps.

Paris Relaxes Closing Hours for Dancing

Paris, June 26 (AP).—For the first time since prewar days, a police ordinance allows Paris cafes and dance halls to stay open until 2 a. m. every night, instead of 12:30. They need not close at all on Saturday, Sunday and holiday nights.

Mr. Lewis Wins

John L. Lewis has scored a triumph that entitles him to wear the smile of victory. For the contract just negotiated with the coal-mine operators raises the miners' pay a dollar per day and doubles the amount of employers' contributions to the welfare fund. These concessions were wrested from the operators under the threat of a strike that might have cost them more than the present agreement. There was no bargaining in the real sense of the word; the operators simply capitulated after Mr. Lewis won a legal victory in the fight to compel pension payments from the welfare fund. As a result the country will be spared a Nation-wide coal strike this summer, but coal prices will rise, giving another upward twist to living costs. Furthermore, since the contract still contains a proviso that the miners must work only when "able and willing," sporadic, localized strikes remain an ever-present threat.

More serious is the refusal of the steel companies owning captive mines to sign the contract in its present form. Their reason for abstention is that inclusion of a union-shop provision violates the unfair labor practices provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act unless secret elections are held by the NLRB and that agency certifies that a majority of the union members favors a demand for the union shop. If the captive mines remain firm, strikes will assuredly shut down these mines when the present contract expires. Though the President's fact-finding board has concluded that the holdout of the captive mines would not constitute a threat to the national health and safety, strikes closing such mines would cut down steel production and affect adversely the output of other industries. This legal tangle is, of course, an incidental result of Mr. Lewis' steadfast refusal to recognize the Taft-Hartley Act as the law of the land. It raises the question as to how long the country intends to tolerate, if not condone, his efforts to sabotage that law.

It is also highly probable that questions regarding the administration of the welfare fund and the size and scope of pension and benefit payments will give rise to fresh dissension when contracts expire next year. This time the operators have yielded under duress to demands that have resulted in a doubling of the annual tonnage royalties paid into the welfare fund. Although the union demands are not per se unreasonable, the practice of making pension-fund demands the subject of collective bargaining along with wages and working conditions adds to the causes of conflict. This newspaper has taken the position that a fund of this kind, set up for an industry of vital importance to the Nation, should be administered by an impartial public agency comparable to the Federal board set up under the Railroad Retirement Act. In that way questions relating to the amounts of contributions and the size of pensions would be determined objectively and on the basis of expert judgment as to the cost of the system and the contributions required to finance it. These are not issues to be fought over by parties to collective bargaining, nor can they be satisfactorily settled by court decisions, such as that of Justice Goldsborough.

Women's Money

Americans have become so accustomed to wives' handling not only their own money but also their families' finances that it will surprise many to learn that women's financial rights are a relatively recent development. The Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor in a review of State laws affecting rights of married women reports that in recent years women have made marked progress in gaining legal protection of their possessions and earnings. Many of these reforms in State laws have developed with the trend of married women to work—and earn—outside the home. More wives than single women are now in the labor force.

It is often assumed that the Seneca Falls Convention that met 100 years ago next month was principally concerned with getting the ballot for women. Yet in its Declaration of Sentiments it listed first among its complaints the disabilities of married women particularly in property holding. At that time husbands in most States had absolute control of their wives' property and could collect and spend wages earned by them. Today in 36 States a married woman's personal earnings are her separate property by law, and other States offer her degrees of control. In almost all States a wife can manage and control separate property.

Another result of a changed economy is women's widespread control of family expenditures, and their ownership, in name at least, of the greater part of private wealth. Yet as a rule they leave control over this invested wealth to men. It may be that their next financial expansion will be to assert their share of management in the factories, railroads and other industries in which they have such heavy investment.

Future Of Berlin

The State Department was tardy in taking over control of the dangerous situation in Berlin, but it is reassuring to know that the Russian siege of the western sectors in the former German capital is at last getting attention on the highest policy level. What the outcome will be is not yet clear, but it is obvious that the imminent establishment of a British-French-American military control agency to supervise the setting up of a new government for western Germany has created a new situation with respect to Berlin. The problem must now be approached in keeping with the untimely six-power decision to set up a German government at Frankfurt.

General Clay's statement that if Americans alone were concerned, the Russians "could not drive us out of Berlin short of war" has been widely quoted. Many forget or did not stop to note his additional remark that of course the fate of the Germans in Berlin had to be considered. In this form General Clay's statement, issued against the background of Russian interruption of food shipments and fuel supplies to Berlin, may well foretoken the adoption of a new policy toward Berlin on the part of the United States and the other western powers.

In the face of the mounting Russian aggressiveness, General Clay's poise has been, on the whole, magnificent. He has refused to be intimidated. But whether he could maintain his position in the event of a really determined Russian drive to take over all of Berlin, and whether it would be good policy to do so, is doubtful. Berlin is an island in the Soviet zone isolated from the west except by air. Conceivably the Russians could bring about virtual mass starvation in which the American position would become untenable.

Had the western powers decided to continue seeking a common German policy with the Soviet, in spite of the failure of their efforts in this direction since the end of the war, their status in Berlin would have to be maintained. But they have now switched to a new policy. Both the Allied Control Council, through which the powers had hoped to control Germany, and the Kommandatura, their municipal council for Berlin, are now defunct. Hope of minimizing the chaos in Germany has been shifted, prematurely, we think, to the establishment of the proposed government at Frankfurt. That leaves the western powers a much weaker claim for continued occupation of parts of Berlin in the Soviet zone, and the inevitable Russian attempt to push them out of Berlin should have been foreseen.

It is doubtful whether the Russians expect us to take up their offer of another four-power conference to settle the problem of Germany. Probably the offer is intended merely as a propaganda sounding board to justify the establishment of a separate government of eastern Germany. Yet here is a chance to forestall the Russians at their own game. There is always the faint possibility of accommodation; and if that fails, then at least the issues will be clear if withdrawal from Berlin becomes advisable. The only beneficiaries from the recent name calling and muscle flexing are the resurgent German nationalists who see in the breakdown of a common administration of Germany new hope of returning to power.

Lax Divorce

Justice Frankfurter incorporated some interesting data on divorce laws in his dissenting opinion in the Sherrer case recently. Divorces may be easily obtained on less than one year's residence, he said, in only five States—Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming. North Carolina also allows divorces on less than one year's residence but recognizes comparatively few causes for divorce. The number of marriages that are terminated in the courts of Arkansas, Wyoming and Idaho suggests that they get few cases from outside their own borders. Virtually all of the nonresident divorce business goes to Nevada and Florida.

Florida stands ready to dissolve marriage ties after the complaining spouse has lived 90 days in that State. Nevada requires only six weeks' residence. Mr. Frankfurter noted that between them these States accounted for 16,375 divorces in 1940, 6 per cent of the total number of divorces granted during that year in the entire country. Since the figure includes Nevada and Florida residents as well as transients obtaining divorces in those States, the number of disillusioned spouses flocking to Reno and Miami is not enormous. Still it is large enough to constitute a national scandal and an almost incredible legal tangle in the courts.

This newspaper has often indorsed a national marriage and divorce law as the best means of dealing with the dilemma. Since a constitutional amendment would be required and little progress in that direction is being made, however, we think that attention may well be given to other less-basic solutions that offer some measure of relief from the present confusion. For example, a drive might be made by many interested national organizations to raise the residence requirements for divorce in all of the States to a minimum of one year.

Divorces granted after six weeks of camping in a distant State are a patent fraud. It is an outrage for any State thus to presume to take jurisdiction over the marriage relations of couples living in other parts of the country. Recognition of this travestry accounts for the refusal of the Supreme Court in some recent cases to recognize quickie Nevada divorces as binding upon other States. Cannot the Council of State Governments and other agencies working for some degree of uniformity of State laws make Nevada's and Florida's legislators see that they are making a mockery of States' rights and straining the "full faith and credit" clause of the Constitution to the breaking point? It is precisely this inexcusable abuse of power that is tending to wipe out State lines and concentrate all authority in Washington. One-year residence requirements for divorce in all of the States would in large measure, if not completely, take the curse of illegitimacy from the operations of the divorce mills. Is it not worth an organized citizen effort?

Anti-Semitism In Russia

Igor Gouzenko, as doubtless you know by this time, is the man who two years ago sent a thrill of fright and consternation through the statesmen of all countries outside the orbit of Soviet Russia by his revelation of the conspiracy by Stalinist agents within the Canadian government to steal the secret of the atom bomb. Mr. Gouzenko's story has been dramatized by Hollywood in a current production called The Iron Curtain, and his memoirs have been published under the same title by the Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co.

Mr. Gouzenko relates that one of many amazing discoveries he made after coming to Ottawa as cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy was that everything favorable to the Soviet cause and to the Communist Party line was being supported by a large number of Canadian Jews. It surprised him, he said, because he knew that in Russia anti-Semitism has been encouraged by the Stalinist regime. The revival of persecution in Russia appears to have been concurrent with the great purges of the later 1930's. Although Mr. Gouzenko does not say so, the official policy may have been influenced by the Jewish origin of many prominent figures among the "deviationists" of both Left and Right. At any rate Gouzenko asserts that—

> Hundreds of thousands of Jews were "purged" in Soviet Russia long before the Nazi pogrom started. Besides those shot, thousands were sent to concentration camps in Siberia. In the nine concentration camps around Serov, for example, almost one third of the inmates were Jews. In 1939 . . . we were told of a confidential decree of the Central Committee of the All-Union Communist Party which had been passed about that time. The decree was sent out to all directors of educational institutes and schools throughout the Soviet Union. It established a secret quota of admission for Jews.

Mr. Gouzenko says that before he left Russia the undercover campaign against Jews within the Soviet bureaucracy was being reflected in the public behavior of the NKVD, and recites some examples that came under his personal notice. Gouzenko's astonishment at the enthusiasm for the Stalinist regime by so many Jews outside Russia who know nothing of conditions within the Soviet Union is equaled by his scorn of Jews such as Ilya Ehrenberg who are well acquainted with the pogroms and remain silent about them.

Better Diets

World food prospects in 1948 appear to be definitely improved. It is necessary, however, to qualify this assertion by adding that there is a long way to go. In this connection the prediction that European grain crops will be up 25 per cent over last year at first glance can be misleading, for European crops last year were the worst in a century. Even with this much-needed gain and with continuation of large American grain exports at the scheduled rate of 479 million bushels this year, the per capita amount of grain available to Europeans will be only 89 per cent of prewar, taking into account subsequent increase in population. Figures for other essential commodities are even smaller. Thus while the outlook is more encouraging than heretofore, there is no reason to conclude that the emergency is over. The restoration of an ample diet in Europe and other devastated areas will require stringent controls for some time to come.

Nor is there reason to become alarmed over the prospect that the American wheat crop will be the second largest in history. This represents, to be sure, a remarkable improvement over what seemed possible after last fall's drought. But a great deal hinges on this year's corn crop, about which little is known save that last year's floods have been replaced by dry spells in certain areas. The present meat shortage can be traced in considerable degree to the small amount of feed corn available last year because of the poor crop. The situation would have been even worse had not some wheat been available as a substitute. The same factors will govern during this year. There is no possibility of a world wheat surplus. If in the future it becomes desirable to reduce domestic wheat acreage, the first reduction ought to be made in the marginal lands, the cultivation of which means the constant threat of a new dust bowl.

THE GYPSY WAGONS

I remember the gypsy wagons
In lonely country places,
And camp fires under the willows—
And the dark wistful faces.

Against the quiet colors
Barbaric tints and laughter!
Young dreams were inclined to follow
What gypsies wandered after.

The shaggy little horses
Were glad enough to stay—
But the gypsies begged for silver
And the wagons creaked away.

All the rainbows to follow . . .
And never a pot of gold!
Only the dark hands reaching
For a silver piece to hold!

Retirement at 70

Some fine points of law and equity are involved in the question raised by a correspondent in your column June 21 regarding the new policy of certain Government agencies of forcing employes who reach the age of 70 to retire before they have completed the 15 years of service necessary in order to qualify for a half-pension.

Does the Retirement Act give the employe the right to remain until he has 15 years to his credit or, as these agencies claim to have discovered, does it merely permit an agency to retain a 70-year-old employe without obtaining presidential authorization?

If these agencies have the law on their side, how does it happen that the Civil Service Commission, as your correspondent pointed out, recently issued a booklet in which it explicitly assures the employe that he "need not retire until the 15 years are completed?" And is the commission now going to bring pressure on the seven agencies (including two local cultural institutions supposed to be above such hardboiled practices) which are reported to have adopted a directly contrary policy?

Also, does this official guarantee, coupled with the long-standing universal belief and practice to the same effect, place a moral, if not a legal, obligation on agencies of the Government not to "change the rules in the middle of the game?"

Lastly, in a court of equity or before the bar of public opinion, would the right of the employe to retain his job be sustained if he was taken into the service with the express assurance that he would have the right to remain 15 years?

Green's Blast

After listening to the beautiful opening prayers at the Philadelphia GOP convention, I also took occasion to listen to an address by Governor Green of Illinois.

It is indeed hard to understand how any creature could say to any decent thinking audience the things this man evidently thought it necessary to say to them for the cause of his party. They were most twisted, licentious, ruthless, and could be only those of a very desperate and unscrupulous person.

He and his colleagues had their assignments to the ship of state and steered it on the rocks; since then they have had plenty of time, I hope, to think things over and learn that it pays to steer a straight and more humane course for perchance there may be some truly great souls aboard worth the saving.

The speaker waxed very much to me of the same tactics the Russians have been using and abusing us with for much too long a time. If the Hon. Mr. Green has a soul or a conscience, it must be just as good as new because he evidently never uses it.

District Sales Tax

Our organization very actively opposed the sales tax for the District because a sales tax is an unfair tax, in that it hits hardest the lower income groups, forcing them to pay a tax on every dollar they earn. It is generally regarded as a nuisance tax and after it is imposed is hated by the general public. We are in principle opposed to it because taxation should be based on the ability to pay.

When congressional hearings were held on the District budget for 1949, the Commissioners brought out that the District would have a deficit of some 6 million dollars which they felt could only be taken care of by a sales tax. They were supported in this by the Board of Trade. However, as a result of the strong opposition, a way was found to solve the dilemma without a sales tax.

Finally, in their anxiety to impose a sales tax for the District, our "leaders" hitched the District employes' pay raise to the sales tax. This was just a mean trick. If Senator Cain and the others had really been concerned about the District employes they could have allowed the bill to pass. The District Commissioners would then have had to either raise the property tax, or find some other way of paying for the increase. With the will to do, they would have found a way to pay for this much needed increase for our policemen, firemen and teachers.

We hope that the District employes will press for an increase. However, a sales tax is not the only solution. What about broadening the income tax base to include the approximately 200,000 Federal workers in the District who use all our facilities and pay no income tax; and what about an increase in the Federal contribution to the District just for this purpose?

Final Equality

The early philosophers held that man is born free, but our present-day philosophers will admit, I believe, that modern man is, in certain parts of the world, born either a slave of the state or a slave of monopoly; throughout his natural life he is, by one or the other named forces, held in a type of slavery, which simulates freedom, until he is claimed by death; then he not only becomes perfectly free but also perfectly equal.

Wealth Concentration

I hope that Scott Nearing (letter published June 22) continues to write his diatribes against capitalism in the letters-to-the-editor columns. They are the best indictment yet against communism. Let him continue to rant against "monopoly capitalism," but let him remember that everything he says against the concentration of wealth and power falls with a ponderous thud on the head of Stalin and his gang. The only difference I can see between Stalin and most of our "haves" is that our "haves" earned it. Stalin and his gang stole it.

All this stuff about "private ownership" becomes a lot of gaff when our civilization is stacked up against Russia's. At least our "private corporation control" has stockholders and stockholders have votes—and not the "vote yes or you get it in the neck" kind of voting that goes on in Russia.

In Russia the "natural resources, patents and other legally created monopolies" are state monopolies and the stockholders are a little bunch of top-ranking members of the Communist Party. Let a little fellow squeal, as he often does in this country (and sometimes effectively) and where does it get him in Russia? A 5 a. m. appointment with the NKVD. Here he can squeal his head off but no one shoots him for it.

I agree heartily with Scott Nearing that the "concentration of wealth results in social instability and insecurity." But I think there is a much greater concentration of wealth and power in Russia today than we have in this country. And in the words of Scott Nearing: "It should be dealt with in the same energetic manner as piracy, a typhoid-infected water supply or any other menace to the public well-being."

As the Irishman said, "I don't wish ye any harm, but I hope the cat eats ye and the divil eats the cat!"

Costa Rican Communists

It is a well known fact that the conclusions reached by Mr. Sumner Welles in his numerous writings on Latin America are often founded on personal friendships with "politicos," and not on a careful study of the problems and ideals of those countries. His column of June 22 is not only inaccurate and misleading, but also poorly timed, as we shall demonstrate.

For reasons best known to himself, Mr. Welles chooses this moment to become alarmed over fancied Communst influence in Costa Rica's government following eight years of exquisite Wellesian silence attending the very real Communist domination of the country which was consummated by a public agreement between the governments of Calderon Guardia and Picado Michalski and the Communist Party well known as the "Bloque de la Victoria."

This silence persisted in the face of two coups d'etat planned and executed by the "Bloque de la Victoria," the first in 1944 reversing the results of the presidential elections, and the second annulling the 1948 elections when the alliance of government and Communist Party was defeated.

It held firm throughout the recent civil war, when the Picado-Calderon forces were formed by members of the Red party and led in combat by such members of the Communist Politburo as Carlos Luis Fallas, Arnoldo Ferreto, Luis Carballo, Jaime Cerdas, Manuel Mora, Carmen Lyra and others.

We failed to hear a protest from Mr. Welles when the tottering government closed down every nonofficial radio station in the country with the sole exception of "Ecos del 56" propaganda organ of the Communist Party.

Why then has Mr. Welles chosen this moment precisely when the Communist menace has been eradicated in Costa Rica to express anxiety? Could Mr. Welles ignore that the Communist Party was supporting his friends, Calderon Guardia and Picado?

Mr. Welles is also guilty of a vicious misstatement that prominent members of the Communist Party hold important positions in the present government, since it is a well known fact that almost all of the members of the Communist Politburo fled the country at the close of the recent war, following the departure of the party leader, Manuel Mora, and his constant adviser, Carmen Lyra.

His contention is further disproved by the recent declarations of the present Costa Rican democratic government breaking relations with the U. S. S. R. This news item was carried by the Associated Press and published by the leading dailies of the United States.

The statemen's contained in this letter are based on documents and facts that can be easily verified by any unbiased investigator interested in publishing the truth. Consequently we must conclude that assertions to the contrary are founded in unconstructive prejudices and personal friendships and feeling or preferences, which are either inadmissible or incompresensible as the basis for condemning an earnest and almost unanimously supported administration intent on restoring honesty and order to the political life of Costa Rica.

Philadelphia And The World

By Andre Visson

Impact On Europe

THE REPUBLICANS who gathered in the City of Brotherly Love behaved like members of one "happy family" called to take over and divide among themselves the "estate" which had been eyeing for many years.

There were the inevitable quarrels as to who would be the chief administrators of the "estate" which was certain to fall into their hands with the expected victory in November. But while the defeated competitors for the presidential nomination, and their ardent supporters, would naturally find it hard to overcome the blow to their aspirations and hopes, the overwhelming majority of the Republicans had the time of their lives.

There were, however, some very worried individuals among the celebrating crowds in the lobbies of the Philadelphia hotels and in the convention hall. They were not the Democrats. They were democrats with a small "d" from western Europe. Foreign diplomats and newspapermen, they were careful not to express publicly their opinions about the competing candidates. They knew that it was not proper for them, as outsiders, to take part in the deliberations of a family affair.

But they could hardly conceal their concern about the decisions that were going to be made by the great American Republican family. They knew that these decisions would have a direct and perhaps even immediate effect on the fate of their countries. Strangely enough, their countries, separated by thousands of miles from American shores, ran the risk of being more directly and more immediately affected by the decisions made in Philadelphia—particularly how they would be carried out next year in Washington—than the American Nation itself.

THEY HAD had a tragic experience in the past. The American Nation was able to survive the mistakes made by President Roosevelt and his advisers at Teheran and Yalta. But for the peoples of Poland, Yugoslavia, and other eastern European nations the American mistakes at Teheran and Yalta proved to be fatal. And western Europeans cannot help thinking, as shivers chase down their spines, that mistakes made next winter by a Republican Administration may well prove fatal to their countries.

They were not particularly worried about the wording of the plank on American foreign policy. They realized that in order to rally the isolationist wing of the Republican Party, able and energetic Senator Henry Cabot Lodge had to put some water in his internationalist wine. But they could not help worrying about how the future administration would carry out the Philadelphia plank on foreign policy.

For them, one of the most reassuring incidents in Philadelphia was Mr. Hoover's solemn reminder to the convention that it carried the historic responsibility for "the future of Western civilization." Western Europeans knew that this was no oratorical overstatement. And they fervently hope that the men who will next year be responsible for America's leadership both in the White House and on Capitol Hill will be impressed by Mr. Hoover's recognition of America's responsibility.

Their most favored candidate was, beyond doubt, Senator Vandenberg. Not only did they know where he stood on international affairs, but many of them had had an opportunity to work with him in Washington and at international conferences, and had acquired a sincere respect for his judgment.

THEY HAD been somewhat divided on their "second best" candidate. Some favored Stassen. He attracted them with his outspoken internationalism, his youthful ardor and his desire to learn more about the world. But many of his European supporters were lately disappointed by his apparent inability—or unwillingness—to make the indispensable distinction between the Socialists and the Communists, as well as by his attitude on the Communists in the Oregon debate with Governor Dewey.

Thus, while Dewey remained a rather unknown figure to western Europeans, their representatives in the United States gradually reached the conclusion that he was perhaps the "second best" choice. They know that he was an isolationist in the past, but so was Senator Vandenberg. And while they had no personal experience with Governor Dewey, their experience with John Foster Dulles, Dewey's adviser on foreign affairs, gave them considerable assurance. They felt that Dulles would prevent the Administration and Congress from making too great blunders in dealing with both Soviet Russia and Germany.

The candidate who caused them the greatest worry was Senator Taft. Those who had dealt with him were unanimous in recognizing his exceptional intellectual integrity, but they were greatly concerned with what they termed the "isolationist undercurrent" of his philosophy.

But the most astute among the European observers in this country have always believed that even a man like Taft, once in the White House, would have to adjust his political conceptions to the hard international realities and America's strategic responsibilities that would be revealed to him by America's military leaders, who are only too well aware of them.

Price Responsibility

When the parties are lining up for the 1948 campaign they want to keep in mind that the people are going to ask these very pertinent questions: Who is responsible for the present price inflation which has cut the value of the people's savings in half, and who has any remedy for the situation?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Flood Victims' Plight Laid to PHA

By Drew Pearson

DESPITE the 18,700 people left homeless by the Columbia River flood, Congress was reluctant to vote adequate funds for new permanent housing. One reason was the reactionary Portland Housing Authority, which operated Vanport, Oreg., and which would have charge of any new public housing in the area.

This is the same housing authority that assured Vanport residents they were safe and secure less than eight hours before a wall of water fell on their frail houses.

The Portland Housing Authority, dominated by apartment-house owners and real-estate agents, was appointed by Mayor Earl Riley, who on May 21 was defeated more overwhelmingly than any other incumbent mayor in Portland's history. Dissatisfaction with Riley's housing authority was one reason for this colossal repudiation.

Although the Housing Authority is supposed to represent tenants, it joined with realtors in urging the removal of rent controls. In January of 1947 it moved veterans and their families out of houses in the Guilds Lake area to make way for an alleged Montgomery Ward expansion, an expansion which has never taken place. Actually, realtors just wanted to sell the property. Chairman of the Portland Housing Authority is Herbert Dahlke, former president of the Oregon Apartment House Owners Association.

Portland is one of the few cities in the Nation where nothing has been done since the war toward low-cost permanent public housing. In fact, the Portland Housing Authority actually has sabotaged such undertakings despite the fact that the population has increased 33 per cent.

Note: A $1,600,000 race track named Portland Meadows was constructed in Portland after the end of the war despite the acute housing shortage among war veterans. Portland Meadows was washed away in the same flood which devastated Vanport. Prediction: The race track will be rebuilt long before veterans get permanent housing.

THINGS Philadelphians Will Remember: Beauteous Clare Boothe Luce flinging her arms around her old congressional colleague, Frank Keefe of Wisconsin, in front of the Warwick Hotel. (When photographers wanted her to repeat the performance, she was willing, but Keefe begged off—a married man.)

General MacArthur's pathetic headquarters—a pile of letters and telegrams in the middle of the suite ostentatiously displayed for visitors, but there weren't many visitors . . . MacArthur's cohorts frantically telephoning him in Tokyo to give them a last-minute statement—something that would wow the convention . . . Iowa's Congressman Martin complaining "thief" when his credentials disappeared. Later he got a note from Speaker Joe Martin explaining that he had been the accidental "thief" . . . Little Eva, the baby Taft elephant, drinking out of a bathtub . . .

Roy Haines of Senator Brewster's camp sitting on a convention piano stool. When the sergeant at arms asked him what he was doing there, Haines replied: "I am the director in charge of silent music" . . . The barbershop tan on the face of Governor Green of Illinois. He had tested out Max Factor eyebrow pencil and lipstick in a television rehearsal before Chicago Tribune's City Editor Don Maxwell and Ed Reticker, the Governor's chief press agent, but discarded pancake makeup for a barbershop tan . . .

Big Bill Hutcheson of the Carpenters Union eating lobster and working against Taft . . . The Negro picket line in front of the GOP convention hall, their signs: "No First-Class Dying for Second-Class Citizenship"; "The Elephant Is Afraid of Race-Prejudiced Mice"; "Republicans, This Was Your Congress; You Killed Civil Rights."

Labor Hates Taft

LABOR leaders are historically cold to the GOP, but two of the most important union men in the country were extremely active backstage at the GOP convention. John L. Lewis of the Miners and Big Bill Hutcheson, head of the powerful AFL Carpenters Union.

Lewis arrived in Philadelphia the first day of the convention, proceeded to hole up in a suite at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel where he tried to pull wires against Taft. Aiding Lewis every inch of the way was rough, gruff Big Bill Hutcheson. For the last 12 years, Hutcheson has been a die-hard Republican leader, is invariably named as head of the labor division in all GOP national campaigns.

Asked whether he would head the labor division after this convention, Hutcheson said he didn't know. Hutcheson worked night and day against Taft because of the Taft-Hartley Act, which angered every segment of the labor movement. Asked what would have happened had Taft been nominated, Hutcheson said: "You can bet all the money you want that if the convention had nominated Taft, he wouldn't have carried a single State with a big-city population. Truman would have knocked his brains out. Taft wouldn't have carried even Ohio.

Free Advertising?

WEST Virginia's Congressman Hubert Ellis is urging fellow Republicans to stop calling the United States a democracy. He says it gives the Democratic Party free advertising.

Pleaded Ellis in a letter to GOP colleagues, "Let's stop using the words 'democratic' and 'democracy' where they do not belong. Our Nation is a republic. We have a republican form of government. Let's put 'republic' and 'republican' in our vocabulary and use them from here out. Never advertise your competitor by constantly using his name."

Good Food Prescribed

Rheumatic Fever

By Alton L. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Reporter.

IOWA CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Parents can do a lot to prevent rheumatic fever from crippling their children, a continuing experiment shows. The weapon for parents to use is good food and good care. Proper food is especially important, the studies headed by Dr. Robert L. Jackson, pediatrician at the University Hospital, State University of Iowa, found.

Rheumatic fever is one of the most serious diseases of childhood. It often damages youngsters' hearts, and many cases of heart disease in adults can be traced back to it. Its cause is not definitely known, but it often follows strepticoccic sore throats. Severe colds or sore throats are signals for medical care, plenty of rest and protective foods, Dr. Jackson said.

Disease Often Returns

THE disease often comes back, and each new attack may bring more heart damage. Sulfa drugs help prevent recurrent attacks, and only 1.5 per cent of children given sulfa drugs have new attacks later. But sulfa drugs can't be given to all children.

Dr. Jackson and his associates wondered just how much good care might do to prevent relapses of the disease. Such care, they felt, would also have added benefits of general health of the children and might have social benefits, too, like combating juvenile delinquency.

So Dr. Jackson, Helen G. Kelly, Cecilia Health Rohret and Dr. Julia M. Duane studied a large group of Iowa children who had recovered from rheumatic fever, but who didn't receive sulfa.

Their records showed that the tendency for relapse for Iowa rheumatic children was similar to rheumatic children in general. But when special attention was paid to assuring good diets and living conditions, the rate of relapse was lowered sharply, they found. In children 4 to 13 years old, the decrease in the rate was more dramatic than in those over 14 years of age. They found it much harder to change the food and living habits of the older children.

Could Prevent Its Start

PROPER diet and good care seemed to be especially good in preventing recurrent attacks that brought heart damage, Dr. Jackson said. It would appear, he added, that excellent care should be valuable also in preventing rheumatic fever from starting in the first place.

By good diet is meant one that includes daily one quart of milk, one or two eggs, one serving of meat, fish, chicken or liver; two vegetables, one orange, apple or tomato and one other fruit besides, one teaspoonful of cod liver oil, and six of butter or margarine.

Elements of good care, he added, include letting the child sleep alone if possible, that he have about 10 hours rest a night, wear proper clothing, and be in a home with proper temperature and humidity. Care should be taken to have the child avoid anyone with sore throats or colds.

MADISON, WIS. (AP).—The world's highest-up heating plant, which goes into action at an altitude of about 10 miles, was described to the American Physical Society here by University of Minnesota physicists. The heater is for warming the inside of an aluminum bubble that rises up to 19 miles. The bubble is a sphere containing a cosmic ray measuring device that has to be kept at a constant temperature. The bubble is carried by a balloon.

For the first 10 miles, a battery supplies the heat and after that the sun. At 10 miles there are no more clouds and the sun's rays are very bright. The upper half of the aluminum, which gets all the sunlight, is black. The under side is brightly polished, which retards loss of interior heat.

Predicts Visit to Moon

TROY, N. Y. (AP).—A real human visit to the moon may be 200 years away, says Charles A. Federer, editor of the magazine, Sky and Telescope. It may take this long, he said, for scientists to solve the problems involved for humans to land and move around on the moon.

"Far in the future, there is a certain dim chance of landing a rocket on the moon, say, but nobody would be able to get out," he told the astrophysical society of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. "To enable humans to explore even the closest planets requires equipment for whose pioneer development we are not remotely prepared to break ground."

Tooth Decay Declines

NEW YORK (AP).—There is a 70 per cent reduction in tooth decay in children of three New Jersey towns having flourine in their drinking water.

This report is by Henry Klein of Washington, D. C., in the June issue of the journal of the American Dental Association. The three towns are Glassboro, Pitman and Woodstown. The flourine is in the wells from which these three places get their town water.

The 70 per cent figure was reached by comparing the three towns with two others, Clayton and Williamston, N. J., both in the same area as the trio, but lacking flourine in drinking water. The study goes only to age 10.

S-Polymers

NEW moisture-resistant plastic containers will keep fruits, vegetables and tobacco fresh for half a year, two oil chemists told the American Chemical Society. The plastics, known as S-polymers, are derived from petroleum. They also have uses in cable insulation, recording tape, toys, acid-resistant clothing and other purposes, said Raymond G. Platform and Nominees Meet His Favor

Vandenberg Got All He Wanted

By Ernest Lindley

DURING the past 12 months, most of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's colleagues and friends were never quite convinced that he meant it when he said that he did not aspire to the Presidency, would not turn a hand to win it and did not even want his name placed in nomination. For he said also that if "drafted" for the nomination he would accept it. The usual presumption is that unless a man echoes Sherman by saying he will not run if nominated and will not serve if elected, he really covets the Presidency. Many suspected that Vandenberg, a shrewd politician, was only following the path which in his case was most likely to lead to the nomination.

But for months the evidence continued to mount that Vandenberg meant exactly what he said. In one conversation after another, he outlined the arguments for the nomination of Dewey, Stassen, Taft, and others, and, at even greater length, argued the case against his own nomination. One point he consistently made was that he could serve the objectives to which he has committed himself—American world leadership and a sound foreign policy—just as effectively as Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee as in the Presidency.

Deadlock Taken For Franted

THREE weeks ago, the prevailing verdict in Washington was that Vandenberg was the most probable Republican nominee. This supposed a deadlock among Dewey, Taft, and Stassen. If, at that moment or at any time during the next two weeks, Vandenberg had evinced real interest in the nomination, the deadlock probably would have occurred. For his candidacy would have held away the vital margin of votes necessary for Dewey's nomination.

But Vandenberg refused to make the obviously necessary moves. On the Sunday before the convention, he was persuaded to authorize Governor Sigler of Michigan to state that he was available for the nomination. But he was apparently moved by the argument that he owed that much to his friends and the principles for which he stood—not by the plea that if he kept quiet he would lose his last chance to be nominated.

Three Objectives

WHEN HE arrived in Philadelphia, Vandenberg secluded himself. Leaders who would have stayed with him if he had received them and given them encouragement concluded, on by one, that they would have to look elsewhere for a nomine.

It gradually became apparent that Vandenberg had only three objectives in Philadelphia: a platform which fully reflected his views on American security and world policy, a Presidential nominee who stood for the same principles, and a Vice-Presidential nominee who met the same test. Under the guidance of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., Vandenberg's right-hand man on the Foreign Relations Committee, the foreign policy planks framed by Vandenberg were adopted with only one or two minor concessions. Dewey met Vandenberg's second requirement—although Stassen or Warren or Baldwin also would have passed the test.

Vandenberg's sharpest concern in the late stages of the convention was to prevent the nomination of an isolationist as Vice-President. The possibility that Dewey would make a deal—reports were that he had, in fact, made a deal—leading to the choice of an isolationist as his running-mate became an obstacle to Vandenberg's withdrawal from a contest in which he had not desired to be entered. Through John Foster Dulles, he received assurances that Dewey had made no commitments concerning the Vice-Presidency and that the second man on the ticket would be chosen only after consultation with party leaders, including Vandenberg.

No Oisappointment

DEWEY made good on this promise. Vandenberg was consulted. He made it plain that he would not go along with any Vice-Presidential nominee who had not supported generally the bipartisan foreign policy. This amounted to a blackball of Bricker, Halleck, among others. There is reason to think that his first preference was Stassen. But Warren was entirely satisfactory to him.

Thus, Vandenberg got out of the convention what he has said, all along, he really wanted. He did not betray a hint of disappointment at his own failure to win the nomination. On the contrary, he impressed those who saw him when the party was over as being a much relieved and very happy man.

Nation's Top Brass Had One Close Call

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, June 26.—Thanks only to the cockeyed aim of an American antiaircraft battery, this country today has General Bradley as Chief of Staff, the Air Force has the brilliant young Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg coming up as its chief, the Shell Oil Co. has Jimmy Doolittle and Columbia University is getting a new president named Dwight Eisenhower.

All four barely escaped death shortly before the Battle of the Bulge.

They were flying to 12th Army Group headquarters in Belgium. To guard against possibility of one crackup wiping out most of the top American brass in Europe, two C-45s were used.

Doolittle piloted Eisenhower; Vandenberg flew Bradley. Suddenly an American battery began throwing everything it had at them. It was a case of non-recognition of the C-45s, plus trigger-happiness.

Doolittle and Vandenberg put their ships through violent maneuvers, finally dived them out of range.

A Retiring Professor Advises Students:

'Ignore Marks...and Talk Back'

Dr. William B. Otis
Professor of English Literature, C. C. N. Y.

HENRY WALLACE, Harry Hopkins and I were born and brought up among the tall cornstalks of Iowa. Hank went to Iowa State Agricultural College at Ames, and Harry and I chose Grinnell College.

After graduation, Hank stayed in Iowa, while Harry and I struck out for New York City. We had read a lot of Horatio Alger.

When I asked the conductor on the New York Central if the train stopped at Forty-second street, he said that if it didn't I was in for the biggest bump of my life.

The train stopped without accident, and I inquired the way to Columbia University, where I at once enrolled for graduate work in English.

One day in the classroom a year later, Professor George Rice Carpenter called me to his office and said that John Huston Finley wished to see me.

So I met for the first time John Huston Finley, one of the great educators of his day and one of the most human and lovable men I have ever known.

President Finley offered me a position at City College. I accepted and have been with that institution ever since. Now I am about to retire after 44 years of service.

17 Cohens Stood Up

CLASSES then were made up of 25 students each, grouped according to the first letter of their last name. I got one of the C sections, and noting that the first name on the official role was Cohen, I said: "Cohen, will you rise, please?"

To my bewilderment, almost the whole class arose. Out of that one class of 25 students, there were 17 Cohens. I don't know what has happened to the Cohens. There are fewer now.

Each term I would like to tell the students to relax, that they needn't worry about their grades, that at the end of the term each of them would receive a B or an A. I never did this, but I was tempted.

The scramble for high grades is bad. Almost anyone with a good memory, a willingness to stick to the textbook and to "yes-yes" the professor, can pull an A out of a course. A high grade is not always proof of real intelligence.

Mental Muscles

AS COMPETITION is the life of trade, so different points of view with their attendant discussion are the life of a classroom. The object of education should be the development of mental muscle, not the parrot-like memorizing of a textbook. I have always been suspicious of a student who gets A's in all his courses. The chances are about even that he will never amount to much.

Once during a lecture, when I asked a student why he was leaving the room, he replied: "Because I am bored to death." A boy of such intelligence and discrimination deserved the A he later received in the course.

I state my views upon such and and such a matter, and a hand is raised. "Yes," I say, "what is it?"

"Well, professor, I think you are all wet. It's like this." Or "Pardon me, professor, but that's the bunk. Here are the real facts." And the class wakes up, the discussion waxes hot, and the hour is over before we know it.

The boys are learning to think for themselves, and that is what really counts.

THERE WAS the time when one of my students made a special effort to impress me—and succeeded.

Back in the fourth grade in Des Moines, I had a pet which I was rather fond of. I took it to class, under cover of a geography book. My teacher noticed something about my behavior and stopped by my desk.

"What have you there, young man?" she asked with proper severity.

I smiled guiltily.

"Give it to me," she demanded.

So I gave it to her—a very small black snake. As I told my class, she never forgot me.

So one day, one of my students brought a 10-foot snake to class in a gunny sack and let it out during the lecture. The boy's excuse was that he wanted me to remember him, and I certainly shall.

During the war I received many letters from former students in the armed services. All but one of these boys found something of value in their war experiences.

The exception wrote: "I am now in the Army. You said I would like it. You, sir, are a rat! The Army stinks. In the meantime, professor, I hate you." Later this young man came to like Army life and made a good record as a soldier.

Assembly Lines

OUR colleges today are greatly overcrowded. It is difficult to maintain that personal relationship between student and instructor that is so essential. The assembly line may bring results in a factory but is out of place in a college. It wasn't like that in the old days. One could get close to the student.

There was Ben Grauer, who specialized in old books. One day he persuaded me to sell him my second edition of Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" for $50. The next day Ben sold the book for $100. That boy knew a hawk from a handsaw.

There was Edward G. Robinson, a little fellow in knickerbockers, one day bursting into tears as we read Mark Antony's speech over the dead body of Caesar.

And Borrah Minevitch, forced to leave college and go to work after the death of his father.

"What are you going to do, Borrah?"

"I don't know, Doc. I'm not fitted for anything."

"What do you like to do more than anything else?"

"Play the mouth harp, but I can't make a living at that."

"Emerson said that if you do something better than anyone else, even though it is only making a better mousetrap, the whole world will beat a path to your door. Why don't you try to be the best harmonica player in the world?"

"That's an idea, Doc. I hadn't thought of that."

Three years later Borrah came up to the college in a Rolls-Royce. He wanted to tell me about an invitation he had just received—to be a guest soloist at a Metropolitan Opera House concert.

To associate with young people keeps you young in spirit, forward-looking and hopeful. But time marches on. There is still time, however, to do a few things I have always wished to do. I'd like to improve my golf score; I'd like to putter in a garden; and I'd like to trim women's hats. They are awful!

Dakota Settles Issue Tuesday

Nuns In Public Schools

By George Moses

BISMARCK, N. Dak., June 26 (AP).—North Dakota will vote Tuesday on a question which has cut the State quietly and deeply—whether Catholic nuns shall be permitted to continue teaching in public schools.

The measure was placed on the June 29 primary election ballot under North Dakota's initiative law, which permits the people to act as a legislature. It was placed there after failure of efforts to get the 1947 legislature to pass such a law.

Sponsored by Protestants, largely clergymen, the measure would prohibit public school teachers from wearing any garb denoting religious order. The antigarb backers say this would enable the Catholic Church to make inroads on public education.

Catholic Church officials say 75 nuns teach in 19 public schools, all but four of which are in the west-central part of the State. They say all pupils in 10 of these schools come from Catholic families and that enrollment in the other nine is predominantly Catholic.

Catholic, outnumbered almost 2 to 1 by Protestants in North Dakota, evidently are united against the measure. How solidly Protestants are for it will be answered at the polls.

Twelve years ago the question came before the North Dakota Supreme Court, and the court held there was no constitutional bar to nuns teaching in public schools.

Since then the question has flared up locally in a few small towns, notably Solen and Selfridge. In both cases nuns quit after Protestants in the school district protested.

British Resettlement Plan for DPs A Success

By Fred M. Hechinger

BOTTISHAM, England, June 26.—Since the end of the war Britain has admitted more displaced persons than all the other countries of the world together. More than 200,000 have been permanently resettled here.

This little village of Bottisham near Cambridge has become one of five special education centers, operated by the National Coal Board, where displaced persons who volunteered for the mines are being "integrated."

It is not an easy job. Most of the 950 men here speak little or no English. The majority have come from the Baltic countries, Poland, Yugoslavia and the Ukraine. A considerable number are totally illiterate; others have been brought up on the Eastern alphabet and need complete reschooling.

The first impression in this former RAF camp is the spirit of the men. These are the same people I visited in DP camps last year. Only a few months back their faces were expressionless; they were men without a future. Now they laugh and sing. They are on the way to become British miners.

English Taught First

ENGLISH is the first and most important subject to be taught. I attended a class which had just started with a new "intake" that morning. The men were already repeating English phrases. They kept their eyes fixed on the instructor's lips with the intensity of very eager children.

In the next hut a group of illiterates were studying English mining terms in combination with ordinary language instruction. Proudly they showed me their writings. "Only 10 days," said a Lithuanian of about 40 years. After so short a time he had begun to write legibly and with an intelligent hand.

Two rival methods are employed in the language instruction. One is called "The Natural Method," developed by E. L. Vulliamy, who has experimented with it from Moscow to the British War Office. The other scheme has been imported from America.

A British teacher, Miss Christine Gibson, left Leeds for Harvard in 1939. She became a lecturer there, and throughout the war used the basic English method to instruct more than 1000 illiterate Chinese seamen before they could become eligible for service in the United States Navy.

Last year she arrived in Bottisham and inquired whether she might try out her theories on this totally different group. The director, George E. Tune, was delighted, and the two schemes have been running side by side in friendly competition ever since. A number of "students" came up to me and announced proudly: "I am a Gibson man."

The British Way of Life

ANOTHER compulsory course is "British Way of Life." In spite of its name it is not a course in a new nationalism, but ranges from such vital information as the opening hours of the "pubs" to general customs and etiquette. Frequent dances, concerts and songfests, for which the villagers show up in force, prove that the lectures are reaping practical results.

Since gardening is one of the great British institutions, every student receives a plot to cultivate. "Besides, it hardens their hands for their future work," adds Tune.

Under the British law the EVW can select his own industry from a comprehensive list.

Those who volunteer to come to Britain must pledge themselves to stay in the particular industry for at least 12 months. Then they may reconsider their careers.

One difficulty is that housing is so desperate that dependents cannot be brought into the country at once. However, as soon as an EVW finds permanent employment and quarters, his family is sent to him.

All immigrants enjoy equal welfare and wage protection with British workers. They become eligible for citizenship after a period of five years.

In the beginning the tiny village of Bottisham was apprehensive. The invasion by almost their own number of foreigners loomed as a hostile event. But by now relations are cordial—particularly since the ration board allowed a new allocation of beer.

To teach rationing as part of social behavior is a difficulty with every new class. Brought up in Eastern feudal police states and often graduated from German concentration camps, the incoming men invariably start out hoarding bread secretly under their bunks.

When Tune points out that there is enough for all, the answer is: "Bread plentiful today. Maybe nothing tomorrow." There follows a lecture on rationing, but another stock answer is usually ready: "In Germany plenty of coupons—but no bread."

Gradually this hangover from the animal existence under dictatorships wears off and is replaced by sharing and cooperation.

In spite of the conglomeration of nationalities and temperaments Tune runs this school practically without any disciplinary powers. Theoretically offenders can be sent back to Germany, but so far there has not been an occasion to warrant drastic action.

Perhaps the best feature of the scheme is that more than half of the instructors are themselves displaced persons. They have become regular employes of the National Coal Board and share equally with their British colleagues in every respect, including mess facilities.

School May Soon Become Home For Army Veteran

Rochester, N. Y., June 26 (AP).—A former teacher bought his old desk for four dollars. A man who learned his ABC's 50 years ago to the ticking of a pendulum clock purchased the venerable timepiece. A century-old pewter lamp went for a dime. Former pupils, who apparently had learned that you don't appreciate school days until they are long since past, bought 30 odd desks, a portrait of Abraham Lincoln, a map rack and other fixtures. Finally the 102-year-old Webster schoolhouse was stripped of all but a few erasers and bits of chalk.

Then the building itself went to a young housewife for $3500 at an auction of the school and its furnishings. Mrs. Henry B. Sage, the successful bidder, is the mother of two daughters, Sandra Jean, 4, and Wendy Ann, 5. The Sages still haven't decided whether to live in the little school themselves or turn it over to Mrs. Sage's sister Mrs. Albert Worden, when the latter's husband finishes Army service later this year.

Dozens of Children Enabled to Pass

Remedial Reading Proves a Boon

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

LAST WEEK dozens of children, who ordinarily would have been kept back in school, carried home satisfactory report cards.

They are the children who earlier encountered difficulty in reading, but with the aid of the public schools' corps of remedial reading teachers, made out all right.

Miss Loretta Hannan, is a remedial teacher assigned to the first division which includes 16 elementary schools in Northwest Washington.

Conducts Clinics

DURING the school year Miss Hannan has spent about six weeks each in various schools in the division, conducting remedial reading clinics.

The children who attend her clinics have average intelligence yet have been unable to keep up with classmates in reading.

Since success in all subjects is dependent largely upon reading, these children were falling behind and losing interest in school.

In her clinic Miss Hannan set up equipment to test sight and hearing of her charges and to determine whether their dominance was right or left.

If eyesight, tested by a telebinocular machine, was found faulty the child was sent to an oculist; if it was hearing, an ear specialist would get the case. If defective speech was the trouble the child was referred to Miss Louise Jaquette, speech correctionist for the division.

If Miss Hannan decided that emotional factors or general physical disability was preventing the child from learning to read she held a conference with the parents.

Mixed Dominance

A FREQUENT cause of inability to read is left hand or a mixed dominance.

The child looking at the word "saw" would see the word "was." For these children Miss Hannan prescribed special training to set up left to right direction.

The clinic was equipped with a Tachiscope which threw words, phrases, sentences or figures on a screen for a fraction of a second. The child then was asked to repeat by voice or on paper what he saw.

Before assigning a story to read, Miss Hannan prepared the child for the strange words he would encounter. She created a desire to read, which became a kind of game.

Much work, too, was done in phonetics so that a child learned to hear accurately and was able to distinguish, for example, the difference between the short i and e or the short o and u. Also words were analyzed for suffixes and prefixes.

Poetry became an important lesson too. From reading it aloud the child acquired more rhythm, learned to sweep his eyes across a line and to concentrate on its meaning.

Town Helps Build Dormitory

Wilmington, Ohio, June 26. — The six hundred students of Wilmington College, who have pledged to donate more than 35,000 hours to build a new 75-man dormitory, are getting help from the whole town. Members of clubs and workers from a nearby industry have put in time on the building, and a contractor has promised to bring his crew to put the roof on. Meanwhile, students have laid 7000 blocks, completed the foundation and are making rapid progress on the dormitory.

Sweet Briar Offers Russian

Sweet Briar, Va., June 26 —. Two courses in Russian and one on the Far East are being introduced into the Sweet Briar College curriculum, beginning this fall, it has been announced by Martha B. Lucas, president of the college.

More Retirement Pay Granted Professors

Evanston, Ill., June 26 (U.P.)— Northwestern University will begin next fall to contribute an extra $110,000 a year to increase the allowances of faculty members when they retire at 65.

The university allotted 5 per cent of salaries under $6000 in the old program, but now will contribute 7½ per cent of salaries under $8000. Faculty members will continue to contribute 5 per cent of their salaries.

The new program also will reduce the length of service needed to qualify for retirement benefits from 35 to 30 years.

'Can't Cheat an Honest Man,' Says 'The Yellow Kid'

Master Swindler Writes His Memoirs

By Sterling North

YELLOW KID WEIL. The Autobiography of America's Master Swindler. As Told to W. T. Brannon. Ziff-Davis. 297 pp. $3.

WHEN I was a young reporter in Chicago there were two master swindlers, each of whom had mulcted the public out of an estimated eight million dollars.

One was a smooth, surly character named Jake "The Barber" Factor.

The other was Yellow Kid Weil, always good for a story. The Yellow Kid, who loved to boast of the fortune he had taken from suckers, was as vain as Samuel Insull about his successes. He made quite a picture in his spats, yellow gloves, neat bow tie and handsomely tailored suits. He was a favorite with the photographers.

The Yellow Kid has now decided to retire and write his memoirs.

Weil was born to poor but honest parents who ran a grocery store in Chicago and worked from dawn to dark. The weasel-eyed son decided such a life was not for him.

On his first job he learned how to falsify his accounts and to blackmail his associates who were doing likewise. From this he soon advanced to the position of assistant to a patent medicine vendor who sold rainwater tainted with cascara at a dollar a bottle to trusting farmers throughout the Middle West.

About this time young Weil began to go to church, attracted by the method in which one articulate divine played on the emotions of his parishioners. Weil, too, had a gift of gab and hoped to make the most of it.

But the Yellow Kid had invented a system for convincing big gamblers that he could tap Western Union wires and give them race results minutes before the bookies had them. This often earned him as much as $5,000 a swindle, despite the fact that he never came through with the illicit news off the "golden wire."

It is hard to see how the Yellow Kid managed to fool so many snide characters so often, and why he wasn't frequently riddled with lead. But such were his capacities that theater owners, warned in advance that the entire deal was a trifle illegal, continued to fall into his traps. They couldn't go to the police afterward, being too deeply implicated.

Sometimes he had to rent buildings and hire scores of "extras" to stage his swindles. Once he owned a whole string of flashy but second-rate horses which he never raced but often timed on a track which was actually five eighths instead of three fourths of a mile. Prospective "partners" begged to be let in on his amazing stable.

Discommoded occasionally by brief vacations from his work spent behind bars, Weil always stepped out rested and full of new plans, ready to launch new investment enterprises.

The book is written without humor, but it is a competent job of reporting. There is only one moral observation in it. Says Weil: "You can't cheat an honest man. Every man who was ever swindled had larceny in his heart."

MANN WEIL

THE PERMANENT GOETHE. Edited, Selected and with an Introduction by Thomas Mann. Dial. 655 pp. $5.

IT IS WELL to warn the reader that this reviewer is not among Goethe's or Mann's most ardent admirers. Those who prefer simplicity, brevity, wit, clean-cut logic and the democratic spirit have difficulty admiring even the greatest of the German Humanists.

Thomas Mann seems to feel that "greatness" excuses flaws in character and in literary output. In Goethe this quality excuses extreme egotism, dilettantism, excessive drinking, gluttony, the life-long seduction of young girls, frequent ill-temper, snobbishness, and much verbose and banal writing.

Time has proved (and several generations have vigorously insisted) that Goethe at his best was a vital, talented, creative man whose mind roved far beyond the little court at Weimar, embracing the riches of Greek and Roman culture, imbibing at the clear spring of Shakespeare's genius and even venturing toward the Orient.

Time may also prove that Goethe's present editor, the Nobel Prize-winner Thomas Mann, has added immortal pages to literature in his best works—"Buddenbrooks," "The Magic Mountain" and "Death in Venice."

But what a mass of verbiage one must wade through in either writer to find the pearls!

Even so balanced an anthology as this one which holds fairly closely to selections from Goethe's most famous works (Faust, Egmont, Iphigenia in Tauris, Werther, Elective Affinities, and the better known poems, ballads, essays travel sketches and letters) contains much that is dull and some that is naively romantic.

Granting that translation does no author of stature justice, the fact remains that prose (if not poetry) should not fare too badly in a foreign tongue. The matter of substance is never lost in good translation, and the substance of "The Sorrows of Young Werther" seems very slight upon rereading. How could it have shaken the whole literate world?

The Faust legend which had been in the folk-consciousness of the German mind since the early 16th century (and had inspired plays and stories from Marlowe's time to Goethe's) was a happy subject for Goethe's genius. The first part of that poetic drama can still hold the modern reader. But it can only be considered "profound" when viewed in retrospect as the central dilemma confronting what Oswald Spengler termed "Faustian Man."

To hold with such critics as Albert Guerard that Goethe, in conceiving the term "World Literature" all but invented such inter-tribal or supra-tribal communication is to ignore the whole Humanist movement before Goethe with particular injustice to Erasmus. And to hold with Mann that Goethe was unique, supreme and unsurpassed (with the possible exception of Shakespeare) is to underline worship at the expense of reappraisal. Goethe should also stand the supreme test of rereading.

This anthology is an interesting and valuable one-volume library of Goethe. And Mann's introduction is filled with colorful biographical facts and controversial evaluations. But it proves once again that hero worship is a dangerous form of mental unbalance.

Here's a Tale To Interest RLS Himself

NO SON OF MINE. By G. B. Stern. Macmillan. $3.50.

"YE'LL be Stevenson's son are ye not?" the minister asked the tramp at the door.

The man answered, "Yes," tore himself away, and "plunged into the slicing rain."

And the answer is yes in a strange and lovely compound of fact and fiction that will delight the reader as much as if presumably childless Robert Louis Stevenson had himself written "No Son of Mine."

The answer is "yes" because the amoral tramp who so remarkably resembled RLS and claimed him as a father, as a means of living without working, did in time become a humble, spiritual son of the beloved Scottish writer.

Did Stevenson have an illegitimate son? Gladys Bronwyn Stern after relating her initial encounter with the curious myth and research into the biography of RLS doesn't know.

Stevenson was no saint, but he said he was childless. It was not within his character to give a false denial, and there is nothing in his life to substantiate even later day speculation. Yet the wispy myth appeared and has had a certain intangible, periodic reoccurence.

Miss Stern has not attempted to show through fiction how RLS "might" have had a son. Her tramp's origin had no connection with RLS. He simply adopted RLS as a father because he looked like him.

Miss Stern has authored a long list of successful books. There is nothing in her past work, however, that quite resembles this novel. As for style, it would seem that she had so soaked herself in Stevenson's work and life that it had given a certain overtone to "No Son of Mine."

The Magazine Rack

By Katharine Graham

A FEW WEEKS ago in a New Yorker cartoon, a Peter Arno lady was pictured asking her husband, "Is there a Mrs. Kinsey?" McCall's editors decided the question was a pertinent one and dispatched Nanette Kutner to Bloomington, Ind., to find out about her.

There is, indeed, she discovered. The Kinseys met 28 years ago when he first came to the University of Indiana as an assistant professor of zoology and she was a student majoring in chemistry. She alone is allowed to open the doctor's mail when he is away doing interviews.

Luckily Mrs. Kinsey remains unruffled by the publicity that has descended on her and is amused by the "never-ending jokes and cartoons." Daughter Anne tells one on herself. She recently applied for a job in Chicago and was asked her name and residence, then "What does your father do? Wait . . . don't tell me. . . ." Anne beamed expectantly until her prospective employer said, "Coming from Indiana, he must be a farmer!"

A MAGAZINE BASED on the published works of columnists and feature writers sounds dull, but judging from a prepublication issue of the new bimonthly Column, that isn't the case at all.

Because of lively editing and a gigantic field from which to choose (over 15,000 writers), a readable and original product emerges.

Besides the expectable political and economic roundups in the advance copy, there's a section, "Men in Prison," taken from publications printed for and by the inmates of penal institutions, and another "Life of a Town" from a riotous country columnist in the Lamar, Mo., Democrat, who apparently writes what everybody else says or merely whispers. Sample: In describing the twice-married bride at a wedding, "Her affairs with the opposite sex have been tempestuous at times but ever interesting to Lamar people."

* * * *

HOUSE AND GARDEN magazines abound with advice for summer living. Incidentally, a strong section is the only boosting factor at this time of year when news stand sales normally slump.

Not the least helpful hint is "How to Iron a Shirt in 4½ Minutes" by Jessie Prather in Better Homes and Gardens. Illustrated directions are given and it can be done sitting down. In the same issue advice is given on what and how to plant in a shady spot and how to arrange roses.

Another season reminder is The American Home's "How to Rid Home, Yard, Pets, of Unwanted Guests." This is a polite term for mosquitoes, chiggers, ticks, gnats and all flies in the ointment. Tells what to use among new insecticides, how to use it and better still, how to minimize the problem by eliminating the causes.

* * * *

HIDDEN AWAY in the confines of Charm, Street & Smith's fashion magazine for business girls, is a piece by Alfred Friendly, "The Good Atom," on peacetime uses of atomic energy. Principle new tool to aid research, according to Friendly, is the "tracer" or "tagged atom" called a radioisotope, which because it has been made radioactive, can be traced wherever it goes. "It enables an investigator to watch natural processes at work," explains Friendly, and will be of inestimable help in medical, agricultural and industrial research.

* * * *

SEVERAL face-lifting operations have recently been performed on magazines. There is a notable difference in the appearance this month of Reader's Digest, which inaugurates a flat-back binding, a pictorial cover, and some use of color throughout. It took over three years' work to develop the giant 10-color presses and the binding equipment that produced the current issue, the editors note.

Liberty, too, has been completely overhauled and modernized. It was done not by a specialist in magazine art, but by an industrial designer. The July issue of '48 will go to a larger size.

Fact, Legend Make Up Book On Olympics

AN APPROVED HISTORY OF THE OLYMPIC GAMES. By Bill Henry. 371 pp. Putnam, $5.

WHEN Bill Henry, then sports editor of the Los Angeles Times, was named technical director of the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles, he began research into the history of the games, and the result is the first documented and approved history of the Olympics.

The approval of the earlier phases of the manuscript by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the modern games, and by Count Henri de Baillet Latour, his successor as president of the International Olympic Committee, add authority to the volume.

Familiar Dashes

HENRY, as a war correspondent, recognized "something familiar in the dramatic, spectacular drive of Gen. George Patton across France, the Rhine, and deep into Germany." As a sports authority Henry discerns that "this drive has the same dynamic characteristics shown by Patton, then a lieutenant and our first participant in the modern pentathlon at the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm.

The Olympics historian appraises fact and legend that has grown up around the games. The 1936 Berlin games, in particular, proved controversial. The author arrays eyewitness facts to establish that Hitler did not, as often been said, "refuse to shake hands with the great American Negro athlete Jesse Owens" "The fact is he had no opportunity."

The average individual thinks of the Olympic games as an athletic carnival, that grew into a stupendous extravaganza in the later prewar Olympiads. Yet trophies in art, music, literature, sculpture and architecture are also awarded, just like those that go to champion athletes.

Author Henry does not comment directly on the insistence on purest amateurism by Avery Brundage, head of the United States Olympic Committee since 1928, and Vice Chairman of the International Olympic Committee.

Saved Skating Title

BUT he is emphatic that Brundage saved Barbara Ann Scott's skating championship for Canada in the 1948 Winter Olympics by requiring her to return a gift auto to retain her amateurism, though the incident came too late for the text. Mr. Henry clarifies another "almost universal misunderstanding," that peace is a major aim of the Olympics. Peace, Coubertin hoped and believed, would be furthered by the games, but enduring peace, he believed with equally firm conviction, could only be the product of a better world and better individuals.

Credo of the games was perhaps most dramatically expressed at Los Angeles in 1932, where, as Vice President Curtis officially opened the event before a crowd of 100,000, the great scoreboard flashed the historic words of Count Coubertin: "The important thing in the Olympic Games is not winning, but taking part. The essential thing is not conquering, but fighting well." C. H. SCHOOLEY.

The Tennessee River

The Tennessee River has been tamed but it was not always so. Before Muscle Shoals and TVA it took its yearly toll of topsoil and crops. It served, too, as the artery for Grant and Sherman to pierce the heart of the Confederacy and win the Civil War except for the polishing off in Virginia and Georgia. The Tennessee, Civil War to TVA is the second volume in the rivers of America series on that winding waterway. It was written by Donald Davidson (Rinehart, $3.50).

Who Should Pay?

Experts Take a Look At Health Insurance

By John J. Corson

VOLUNTARY MEDICAL CARE INSURANCE IN THE UNITED STATES, by Franz Goldman; Columbia University Press, $3.

THE ISSUE OF COMPULSORY HEALTH INSURANCE, by Geo. W. Bachman and Lewis Meriam; The Brookings Institution, $2.

HOW does the average American family meet its doctor's, dentist's and hospital bills? Can American families afford to pay for medical care? Or must most families have help in paying the cost of good health?

These are the questions which these two books treat. They approach them from different points of view, and reach substantially different conclusions.

Dr. Goldman, a member of the Harvard faculty, describes the rapid growth of private agencies which make it easier for many families to pay for their medical care bills. These include employers' group insurance plans, the Blue Cross group hospitalization plans, the Blue Shield plans for paying doctors' bills, the union welfare programs and such agencies as Washington's Group Health Association. He pictures approvingly how they help families meet the unpredictable and often large costs of accidents, serious illness, as well as day-to-day medical care costs through small, regular payments. He describes how they have made medical care more readily available.

But Dr. Goldman recognizes, too, the limitations of these agencies. They aid, even after a decade's rapid growth, a relatively small proportion of the American people. And they help them pay only a part of their medical costs. "In the long-run," he concludes, "the public will not be satisfied with prepayment plans which . . . meet only a part of its total medical care needs . . ."

Here They Begin

AT THIS point Bachman and Meriam logically begin. As members of the staff of the Brookings Institution they were asked by Senator H. Alexander Smith of the Senate Committee on Labor and Welfare to study "the issue of compulsory health insurance." Lewis Meriam, in an earlier book, recorded his disapproval of all forms of insuring for social security.

And Senator Smith got what he wanted. Messrs. Bachman and Meriam cite 15 reasons why it would be unwise for the Federal Government to undertake health insurance. In summary, they conclude that: (a) the American people are already healthy and get good medical care; (b) only a few Americans can't afford to pay for the medical care they need; and (c) governmental administration will necessarily be costly and political and will interfere with the rights of the doctor and his patient.

As a basis for these conclusions they include analyses of mortality data, draft rejections in World War II, and statistics of illness and medical care. Finally they consider whether there are sufficient doctors and hospitals to provide medical care if through health insurance it were guaranteed everyone.

Each Must Judge

EACH reader must judge for himself whether these authors read the evidence they marshal correctly. As I see it, the phraseology of the very first pages of their book indicate they regard health insurance as a "revolutionary" extension of governmental power and they read all the evidence in the light of that bias.

If you believe, as Dr. Goldman does, that many American families must have some means of meeting the costs of medical care, then read Bachman and Meriam. But read also "Medical Care Insurance," a report prepared by the Social Security Board in 1946 at the request of Senator James Murray of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor. Senator Murray is a proponent of health insurance.

Waugh Spins An Adept New Satire

THE LOVED ONE. By Evelyn Waugh. Little Brown. 164 pp. $2.50.

SARDONIC is the word for Waugh. His satire is as amoral as that of Petronius Arbiter. His distaste for the human race increases in direct proportion to his distance from Oxford and from the vestigial grandeur of England's country houses.

He has in his lifetime written one masterpiece, "Brideshead Revisited," many supercilious and superficial travel essays, and a number of adept but minor satires, of which "The Loved One" is perhaps the most effective.

Both describe rococo resting places run by unctuous racketeers, who do not hesitate to pervert art, poetry, music and religion to the single end of gouging as much money as possible from the bereaved. Both authors pickle the sanctimonious hypocrites who fatten on death.

Waugh achieves a rapier thrust at Hollywood, impales his own monocle-wearing conationals who infest the movie colony, pins up his younger-poet-dog-mortician hero like a butterfly on velvet, and rather bitterly assails neat, pretty, empty-headed American women.

Just as life has been deprived of dignity by Hollywood, death has been deprived of dignity by some morticians.

Each seeks to anesthetize human emotions for purely selfish reasons. Movie makers, like suave body-snatchers, play up to the American desire to evade the tragic. S. N.

Melissa Takes A Long Time To Know Life

MELISSA. By Taylor Caldwell. Scribners. 390 pp. $3.

IF YOU can admire women of 25 who still affect the "coy smile of green puberty" or men whose limp, white, expressive hands are somehow attached to bodies with magnificent musculature," this is undoubtedly your cheese souffle.

CALDWELL

Time: shortly after the Civil War. Scene: the countryside just outside Philadelphia. Plot: a story of protracted virginity extended to the ragged edge of obsolescence.

The usual bust-busting cover girl protrudes from the jacket of this novel. But inside we find Melissa herself; frigid, thin, intense, gauche, venemous, scholarly (?) and unnaturally attached to her dilettante father (alive or dead).

When Papa dies Melissa tries to order the lives of her mother Amanda; plump, spiteful, feminine younger sister Phoebe; and hulking lummox of a brother, Andrew.

So she marries Geoffrey Dunham, her father's publisher, who (believe it or not) has been hanging around since Melissa was 14 for just such an opportunity.

For seven months nothing like a normal relationship comes of this marriage. Our heroine doesn't even begin to learn about life until she has walked into the river up to her thighs, her waist, her shoulders, her thin cold lips (what a chance to end her misery and ours).

But do not fear, dear reader! Last minute rescues from drowning and frigidity are still possible in best-selling novels. S. N.

Rab and His Song

THE SONG IN THE GREEN THORN TREE, by James Barke (Macmillan, $3.50).

Robert Burns, or Rab the Ranter, with his roomy love for Highland Mary Campbell as well as Jean Armour, is the hero of this biographical novel laid in the 1780s in the town of Machlin. If Burns got into trouble with girls, it was because he was a wholly lovable man; if with the kirk, it was because he believed in liberty. Barke's portrait of the man is sympathetic; of the poet, understanding. But there are many pages of dialect, sae mony that, gin you take a keek at it, myabe you'll wish mair o' thae people had put a steek in thir gab.—(AP).

Pictures Put This Book In Rare Class

THE ART OF THE FRENCH BOOK. Andre Lejard, editor. Les Editions du Chene, Paris. 166 pp. Ill. (Distributor, Borden Publishing Co., Los Angeles.)

A NATION'S books are a key to its civilization. "The Art of the French Book" demonstrates that the French are a highly civilized people.

The title is almost a pun, for the book is a survey of French pictorial art from Medieval miniaturists to Picasso, as well as a survey of the printing and binding of books.

The text—In English—is authoritative and adequate, but it is the illustrations that make this book. About 200 in number, including some in color, they are superbly chosen and reproduced. LEE GROVE

Monument's Story Told in Pictures

"The Washington Monument—Its Story in Pictures," a 60-page booklet containing more than 120 photographs and illustrations, has come off the presses in time for the Fourth of July celebration of the Monument's centennial.

Material has been gathered and edited by Chalmers M. Roberts, a Washington newspaperman. The booklet has 7000 words of text telling the complete story of the famous landmark.

One of the photographs is an outstanding shot by a Washington Post cameraman of lightning striking the Monument. Another of the Monument photographs appears on Page 1 of this section. The booklet sells for $1. Pages are 9 by 12 inches.

THE Gathering Storm

by WINSTON S. CHURCHILL has just been published. There is a sentence on page 201 that reads as follows: "Writing a long and substantial book is like having a friend and companion at your side to whom you can always turn for comfort and amusement and whose society becomes more attractive as a new and widening field of interest is lighted in the mind." That is how the writer of the book felt about it, and that is how the reader also will feel.

Through the book two decades of our history unfold. With one who managed to be both actor and observer, we see the great play which was so nearly a great tragedy. With an eye that is never bemused, that is always ready to smile and ready for anger, too, we watch modern history grow at the very point where it comes from the loom. As we watch, we understand with a new sharpness our yesterday and our tomorrow, and with the deepening of the common insight comes a deepening of that companionship between writer and reader which must come with the full reading of a great book.

Most Americans have read parts of this book in Life and the New York Times. Now THE GATHERING STORM is published in its entirety. Over seven hundred and fifty pages — the pages of Winston Churchill's memoir of our history and his.

Petticoat Balloters Hold Edge

Both Parties Ready To Woo Woman Vote

By Sigrid Arne

FOR THE SECOND time in American history more women than men will be eligible this November to vote for a President.

Up to 1940 the men had the edge but in 1944 the population figures switched the advantage to the distaff side. Some guessed that it might be the war, with the men away, but that guess now appears incorrect.

Both parties figure there will be about 1,500,000 more eligible women voters than men. Both major parties are preparing an emphatic wooing of the petticoat ballot, with a sort of primer for the newcomers.

The Democrats call theirs the "guide book." It gets down to such fundamentals as "what is a precinct?" and how to work in one.

The Republicans' "selecting and electing in 1948," concentrates on how to become a delegate to the national convention and how to help run things there. Both books would be good for either men or women hopefuls in the political wings.

Women in both parties are determined to put more women into political office for two reasons: (1) They like to see women in office, but also (2) they hope that the party which is most generous to women office seekers will also corral the largest part of the women's vote. Women's first loyalty appears to be to the party and then to their sex.

Reached Peak in 1945-'46

WOMEN office holders reached a peak in State legislatures in 1945-46, when there were 234 women in office. They have slipped now, there are 23 less.

That slip worries the women chiefs of both parties—Mrs. India Edwards of the Democrats and Mrs. Robert W. Macauley of the Republicans.

Both have thumping suites of offices in Washington right now, filled with clever women all of whom have had good grass roots training in political machinery back in their home States. Both are already up to their ears in overflowing mail baskets, long distance calls and telegrams.

The political plums on which the women concentrate are seats in Congress. Right now there are seven women in the House, none in the Senate.

But there are plenty of contenders on the road. The Republican women, through the mails, have heard of 18 women all told fighting for seats in the House.

So far their party has the only candidate for a seat in the Senate: the dainty white-haired business executive from Maine, Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, who was elected to the House in 1940 and has kept her post there ever since.

The Democrats have further information about possible contenders which may bring the women seeking congressional posts to between 20 and 25.

Some have not yet announced. Mrs. Edwards of the Democrats says she has found that high prices are making some women hesitate to take the plunge.

She adds:

"You know, women have never been so willing to take checks to help them out in campaigning as the men have. Women want to feel free to vote the way they see the issues once they hold office, and they want no obligations.

Miss Perkins Stands Alone

FRANCES PERKINS still stands alone in the political history of American women. She has been the sole woman Cabinet member, as Secretary of Labor to President Roosevelt.

Cabinet posts are appointive jobs, and none of the would-be presidential candidates now on the boards is close enough to the goal to even whisper about them. The women can only hope that some woman, no matter who becomes President, will follow Miss Perkins into an American Cabinet.

What do the women want? The record has only started because the campaigns for most primaries are only beginning to wind up.

In Illinois the Democrats have already nominated Mrs. Olive Goldman to run for the House. She has made a big point of women's need to get into politics to keep the peace.

But she has also said: "In 1948 I expect the women's vote, and their ability to get out the vote, to be the determining factor in a Democratic victory. Women realize the disastrous Republican 'trend' in 1946 which brought an end to price control and the shocking rise in the cost of living."

Other Democratic women will hammer at the rise in prices, too. The very vocal Helen Gahagan Douglas of California has already hauled market baskets and shopping lists onto the House floor to teach her male colleagues what costs were doing to housewives.

At Republican headquarters the women's division believes their feminine campaigners will stress the need to curb Communists, to curb public spending and to cut taxes.

Bedlam III Befits Time Of Decision

that the needs of the parties have not called forth a physical establishment of the right sort. What obviously is required is a vast complex of convention facilities. The delegates need an adequate meeting hall—more than an improvised auditorium room. They need caucus and conference rooms sufficient for all committees and all States immediately adjacent. They need in close proximity something approximating the congressional legislative service. They need housing, immediately at hand, where delegates can eat and sleep without fighting their way through crowds.

The convention center needs to be equipped with all the modern communication facilities essential to carrying the convention to the people. The architectural genius of the country should be equal to the task of devising a chamber so arranged that the wants of the invisible audience can be taken care of without intruding upon the business of the convention. As these mechanical devices become more varied, complex and cumbersome, the dignity and order of convention proceedings decline. Many of them could be set up in concealed spots in a well-planned chamber.

2500 Jammed In

IT IS GROWING ever more difficult for newspapermen to cover the political conventions. The more than 2500 correspondents packed into the improvised sections of the Philadelphia hall found that all the gallant efforts of the arrangements committee could not triumph over the limitations of space. The press performs at these conventions a function that is subordinate only to that of the delegates themselves. The impact of the convention stories upon the delegates is very great. It is extremely important that the reports of the convention be most complete and accurate.

Coverage of a convention should be an intellectual challenge to the body as to the mind. Correspondents wish to see more than the open proceedings. They must be able to see and talk to delegates and officials. They must be mobile—able to go to where the news is. Most of them were prisoners in their seats during sessions here. The only footloose ones were on the aisles. Others were too closely quartered to move. Some hop scotched along the top of writing desks, picking their way among typewriters and papers. It took agility and a fine indifference to colleagues' fingers—both admonitory and otherwise.

The Republican convention this year probably set a record of sorts in the size of State delegations, number of their guests, number of party managers, size of press representation. It was an invasion that Philadelphia struggled manfully to contain. The city did its best. And its best was undoubtedly equal to the effort of any great American city.

Special Needs Great

HOWEVER, the best that any community can afford is not really equal to the special needs of these great party meetings. If a proper convention "complex" ever is constructed, with private or public funds, it might be utilized most of the time between conventions by other great meetings. Only this prospect could justify the vast expenditure required.

The party convention is destined to survive, even if the preconvention procedures remain chaotic and conflicting and even if the convention facilities remain improvised and inadequate. If it was not indestructible it would have vanished decades ago. No matter where the conventions are held, there surely always will be a quorum at hand when the temporary chairman shouts: "The convention will now come to order." And no matter how the preconvention primaries and State conventions are held, one way or another, there will be plenty of qualified aspirants for the nomination.

"There must be an easier way to pick a presidential nominee," but for all of that, this is the American way and likely to stay that way.

Corn's Still King

CORN is worth far more to America's agricultural economy than any other crop. Although last year's corn production was 850 million bushels under 1946, and was one of the smallest in years, it was still worth vastly more than last year's all-time record wheat harvest.

The following figures (in thousands of dollars), compiled by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, are based on prices received by the farmers:

Corn	5,432,785
Wheat	3,155,233
Cotton and cottonseed	2,291,202
Hay	1,821,533
Oats	1,297,141
Tobacco	912,169
Potatoes	626,896
Soybeans	595,480
Barley	486,658
Flaxseed	242,545
Peanuts	294,566
Dry edible beans	188,786
Sorghum grains	171,107
Rye	59,535

Venereal Infections Rising Here

by an infected person almost exclusively during intercourse. The germs, requiring moisture and body heat, perish in the air.

Other mistaken ideas, doctors report, are that it spontaneously develops from dirt; turns automatically into syphilis.

Still another is that prostitutes are the prime source of the disease. Studies in Washington show that only 1.5 per cent of infected men interviewed caught gonorrhea from a harlot. Rather, it's the casual pickup who bestows her "favors" free who is the source of infection.

Most boy-girl encounters that end in infection start in taverns, bars or restaurants (38.2 per cent of cases interviewed). Or private homes (28.6 per cent). Dance halls were locales of less than 6 per cent of these encounters; the street, 5.5 per cent.

Home is listed as the place of exposure by 60 per cent of patients queried. Hotels or rooming houses are trysting places in one out of four liaisons. The automobile is the site in only 7.1 per cent of the cases.

And one diseased person can precipitate a chain of infections clear across the city—and often does, case histories tragically reveal.

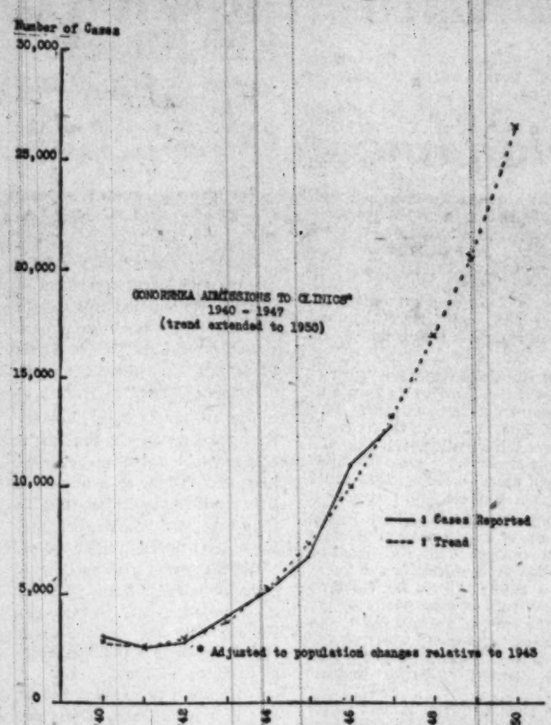
HEALTH campaigners will confer Monday at 10 a. m. in Room 5023 of the Municipal Building, with groups who can most effectively distribute the pamphlets. These include representatives of restaurants and tavern owners, drug and liquor dealers, hotels, taxicab groups, rooming house operators and barbers. Newspapers and radio stations will also be enlisted.

A leading target of the counterattack will be the cavalier young set. The largest age group of reported gonorrhea victims, some 40 per cent, is the 20 to 24-year-olds.

Most single men and women at this time of life are adventurers, shopping around extensively in the search for partners, Dr. Taggart explains. Infected females, incidentally, are closer to 20, males closer to 24.

Females account for more cases under 20 years old, about 25 per cent of female victims, and fewer cases in the 25 to 29 group, about 15 per cent. This, Dr. Taggart surmises, is probably because women have earlier sex activity but tend to marry at an earlier age and are more likely to stay faithful. About 10 per cent of infected women are 30 to 34, about 8 per cent are 35 and over.

Another statistical breakdown reveals that reported gonorrhea patients here are preponderantly Negroes. Lower economic and educational status of Negroes, crowded housing conditions, and just about everything else that paves the way for venereal disease"—that's the analysis of public health guardians.



However, officials concede many more white than Negro cases go unreported, because the former usually can more readily afford private physicians who may not report cases to authorities.

Though the war increased the venereal disease rate—by furthering intersectional contacts, stirring up temptations and opportunities for sexual irregularities—Dr. Taggart does not believe servicemen returning to the District upped the incidence here considerably.

Servicemen Examined

DR. TAGGART maintains that servicemen were not discharged till examined, and, if diseased, were treated. Relatively few incipient cases probably escaped detection.

On the other hand, health officials believe more veterans were infected on their return, by State-side women folk, than vice versa.

Heretofore, the Venereal Disease Bureau, with a limited staff, has concentrated on ferreting out the persons who infected syphilis patients being treated at VD clinics.

Now the bureau, buttressed by the District communicable disease law, will focus on finding gonorrhea contacts so they, too, can be cured.

The law authorizes the Health Department to isolate any person on probable cause that he or she carries or is infected by a communicable disease. Health menace suspects invariably waive their right to a court hearing within 48 hours of arrest, preferring to cooperate with, rather than challenge health authorities.

For those who do not have a private physician, the department operates three gonorrhea clinics. And the department wants to broadcast to the city that (1) treatment is free (2) and private (3) and the cure is painless and quickly accomplished with one injection of penicillin.

Locations and hours of clinics are as follows:

Polk Health Center, 7th and P sts. nw.; Monday through Friday, from 11:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m., and 4 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Southwest Health Center, Delaware ave. and I sts. sw.; Monday through Friday, 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

Freedmen's Hospital skin clinic, 6th and Bryant sts. nw.; Monday, Tuesday Thursday and Friday, 4 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Freedmen's clinic returns from Health Department to hospital adminstration July 1, but clinic service will continue as heretofore.

(The Rapid Treatment Center at Gallinger Hospital is for inpatient care of syphilis but not gonorrhea patients.)

Big Boom in Brain Dept.

Top College Graduates in Demand

By Robert E. Geiger

"MASSIVE MINDS" are bringing big prices in the "ivory markets" this year.

That's the language business talent scouts use to describe the situation. They seek, and try to hire, top college graduates. (One talent scout says it is called the "ivory market" because of a faint resemblance between the human skull and ivory.)

This has been a boom year for the scouts, with more college graduates—probably around 225,000—than ever before but there also is a greater demand for them. Businessmen, bidding against each other, have had to raise their offers.

Besides, college graduates are more mature this year, the majority war veterans and many "family men."

An Associated Press survey of a half-dozen widely separated colleges showed some business firms are offering graduating seniors more than twice the salaries they offered in 1940-41.

Size of School Immaterial

THE "IVORY MARKET" prices are about the same throughout the country and range this year from around $200 to $400 a month. It doesn't seem to make much differences whether a man comes from a "big name" or a small college.

Harvard University says the average is around $50 a week, compared with $25 in 1940. A young scientist might be offered about $100 a month more than others "if he's a good man."

A smaller college, Colorado College at Colorado Springs, Colo., says its seniors were offered a slightly higher average—from $225 a month to $275. University of Texas reported offers from $200 to $360 a month, compared with $100 to $150 in 1941.

The business scouts are interested in grades, personality (especially if a salesman or executive is wanted) and "enthusiasm for the job."

Charles T. Clark, director of student employment at Colorado College, says:

"In many instances a student's grades will determine whether or not he gets a job offer, but we know of no instance where a company has paid more money to get an 'A' student than a 'B.'

"In many instances companies have paid more money to secure students with master and doctor degrees, than bachelor degrees."

Most Continue in School

MOST of the colleges reported that, generally speaking, most students who want to go to work can get an offer this year. But Harvard estimated 60 per cent of its students will continue in school after graduation, seeking higher degrees.

Vera Christie, manager of the bureau of occupations at the University of California, says the trouble is "employers tend to like the same people." As a result some students receive a dozen offers, others none.

John J. Richards of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology placement service says "there are far more jobs than we have graduates. Many seniors have had six or more offers."

Fred W. Ajax of the Georgia School of Technology says inquiries for students have been "the heaviest we have ever experienced." He added there had been "7000 individual interviews of the boys."

All the colleges agree the heaviest demand is for students of business administration, scientists, engineers and "just plain salesmen" with a college degree.

A confidential memorandum passed around among Government officials who keep an eye on employment says evidence of a decline in the demand for brains during the next few years is limited to two fields—engineering and law.

Organist Finds Old Frescoes In Rome Church

Rome, June 27 (AP).—Organist Nicola Rapanotti was playing in the Chapel of St. Mary near the Holy Stair, when he looked down from his console and saw a piece of plaster falling from the wall. The outline of a finger appeared underneath. With his nails Rapanotti carefully scratched the centuries-old pillar, uncovering a fresco. Prof. Leonardo Frenguelli, Vatican fine arts expert, who examined the painting, said it probably belonged to the second half of the eighth century.

Further investigation revealed more frescoes on other pillars of the same edifice, all part of an ancient church which was rebuilt in later years. Professor Frenguelli said the frescoes were probably whitewashed and covered by plaster during one of Rome's epidemics of plague. At such times it was the practice to whitewash all walls without regard for the paintings they bore.

Under one wall 12 feet deep, more frescoes were uncovered, among which the oldest known portrait of St. Augustine, a sixth century fresco, well preserved. The hands are similar to the Byzantine anatomic design, but the paintings on the whole are definitely of a Carolingian type.

LaFollette's 3d Party Got Highest Vote

pockets. Greenbackers, with monetary police as virtually the only issue, ran Peter Cooper of New York as their presidential candidate. He managed to get 80,000 votes out of a total of eight million cast in the election which saw Rutherford B. Hayes ascend to the Presidency.

In 1880, after women's suffrage, Government regulation of interstate commerce, social welfare legislation and a graduated income tax, was added to their demands, the Greenbackers, with John B. Weaver as candidate, ran their vote up to 300,000.

When the Populist Party was formed in 1891, its monetary principles drew support from the Greenbackers.

Captured 4 States

USING the same vague references to "monoply," Wall Street" and "rule by the bankers" that is typical of most Third Party movements, the Populists, with Weaver of Iowa as their candidate, won 22 electoral votes and 1,055,424 popular votes. They received all the electoral votes of Kansas, Colorado, Idaho and Nevada, and one vote each from North Dakota and Oregon.

Lured by William Jennings Bryan's "free silver" demands, the Populists nominated him for the 1896 campaign, in which he was also the Democratic standard bearer.

With Bryan's defeat at the hands of McKinley, and the gradual return of rural prosperity, Populism faded.

The Socialist Party, most often thought of in connection with "third parties," never achieved a really respectable showing in a national election.

The party's best year came in 1912, when Eugene V. Debs polled 897,011 votes (or 6 per cent) of the total cast. In 1920 Debs receive da higher vote (919,799), but that wa sonly 9.2 per cent of the total.

Directed at Irish

UNLIKE the movements already mentioned, the American Party (also called Know Nothing) founded in the early 1850s was based almost solely on national and religious prejudice.

Their program was originally directed at the influx of Irish immigrants who started to arrive in great numbers in the late 1840s.

Later the Know Nothings extended their opposition to all foreign born.

The party's platform of 1856 declared only "native-born citizens should be selected for all municipal, State and Government employment in preference to others."

It demanded a ban on "political stations" for "those who recognize any allegiance" or obligation to any "foreign prince, potentate or power, whatsoever."

The movement was rife with esoteric rites, secret handshakes and other mumbo-jumbo.

Despite this, its candidate, Millard Fillmore, polled eight electoral votes and 873,538 popular votes in the election which Democrat James Buchanan won with 1,838,169 popular and 174 electoral votes.

While Third Party movements have never even come close to winning an election, this much can be said: They have acted as gadflys, pricking the conscience of the major parties, so that, in time, many reforms, first held in horror, assume respectability under the law.

Sand Substitute Found in Mineral

CHICAGO, June 27 (AP).—A light mineral now can be used instead of sand in making concrete and plaster.

It is vermiculite. It is dug out of the ground in a mine at Libby, Mont.

The material is being marketed by the Zonolite Co. of Chicago. The firm says it has a high insulating value.

Farm Notes

Superior Tinian Yam Seen as Profit-Maker

By John Ball
Post Reporter

AN OFFICER with the Army Air Forces stationed on Tinian Island, in 1946, discovered some native sweet potatoes that may bring huge profits to American growers.

The officer, Lieut. Sidney DuPose, went into the service while a student in horticulture at Louisiana State University. At Tinian he discovered plants, highly resistant to wilt and stem rot, and sent them to plant introduction specialists of the Bureau of Plant Industry at Beltsville, Md.

According to Dr. Clarence E. Steinbauer, plant physiologist and specialist in sweet potato breeding, one of the plants "has higher resistance to stem rot, even in greenhouse 'death beds' loaded with fungus, than any other variety ever tested by the Department of Agriculture."

None of the popular eating varieties of sweet potatoes in this country possess any appreciable resistance to wilt. Until this discovery no important varieties of the starchy industrial type had much.

"This unusual sweet potato from the Marianas," Steinbauer says, "gives promise of yielding well, in addition to being a valuable breeding parent for improving other varieties, and it may be valuable for feed and industrial use."

Dusting Injured Crops

DUSTING 2, 4-D, from airplanes was prohibited last week by Administrator D. W. Rentzer of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, at the request of the Department of Agriculture, following complaints that drifting dust had injured cotton and other broadleafed plants.

The chemical, 4, 2-D is used to eradicate weeds. It affects only broad-leafed plants, and has little effect upon grasses and narrow-leafs.

Weed experts of the Department are making test flights to study the drift of 2, 4-D sprays at various altitudes and under varying wind conditions. Only dusting has so far been halted.

Thousands of acres of grain crops in the Midwest have been dusted from the air. One operator had a score of airplanes, a fleet of trucks and 100 pilots and helpers in constant employment.

Study Waste Salvage

HOW to salvage waste parts of vegetables and fruits at canning plants, is being given study at the Department of Argiculture.

One Maryland canning company started work 15 years ago on this project, devising equipment for drying tomato canning wastes—the cores, skins and culls—at one of its plants.

In the early years it had trouble selling the product at $15 a ton for livestock feed, yet last year it sold all it could produce at $50 a ton.

Wastes from 10 vegetables and 6 fruits total more than 4½ million tons a year, the Department estimates. This does not include wastes from citrus plants. Most of that is now being salvaged.

Research shows much of the material has high feed value. Leafy wastes are particularly rich in careton and riboflavin. When dried they supply high quality protein. This is especially true of beet and spinach trimmings and of broccoli, which are especially good for mixed poultry feeds.

More Trees Planted

A WIDESPREAD campaign in tree planting is under way. Last year more trees were planted than in any previous year, the Forest Service reports. Machinery has aided in the upsurge. Three men and a tractor can now plant more acres in a day than a large crew could before the war.

The tree-planting is being encouraged by the Soil Conservation Service, as a means of conserving both soil and moisture.

Although rice production in South and East Africa is increasing rapidly it is not increasing in proportion to the population in those areas, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reports. Rice is the "staff of life" for nearly half the people in the world that reside in that area.

Dewey Likely To Explode Both Barrels

perhaps, would top Governor Dewey in such a talk, delivered from the rear platform of a train.

The trouble with off-the-cuff talk is that it sometimes brings grief. Mr. Truman's habit of "shooting from the hip," as they say, has caused all kind of controversy. The latest incident came on his Western trip when he hauled off in California with his "I like Old Joe" remark.

It is almost impossible to imagine Dewey doing such a thing. His remarks, even those that seem offhand, are usually pretty well thought out in advance. Anyway, he probably would refer to "Old Joe" as Premier Stalin or the head of the Soviet Union.

Trying to "Unbend"

SOME people wish that Dewey would unbend more. Here in Philadelphia, it seems that he has been trying to. But whether he does or not, he certainly is doing all right for a man in his middle forties. And, as they say after every election in New York, everybody seems to be against Dewey but the voters.

President Truman and Governor Dewey have some things in common, aside from an ambition to live in the White House. Both love politics, both are scrappers, and both have shown that they can be good losers.

The country, therefore, can look forward to an exciting and stimulating campaign, the first peacetime battle for the Presidency in eight years.

Philippines Hope To Strike Oil Soon

Manila, June 27 (AP).—Oil has never been found in the Philippines, but geologists have hopes that a producer may be spouting before long. They have gathered at Daanbatayan, on the island of Cebu in the central Philippines, to check the deep oil-bearing sand found there recently.

They are hopeful it may be a commercial sand. The sand was struck at 9600 feet by the Philippine Development Co., only independent Philippine company engaged in oil exploration in the islands.

BANKING IS YOUR BUSINESS

A statement covering trust accounts

Trusts generally are of two kinds: The voluntary or living trust established now to operate during the life of the grantor or specified beneficiaries, and a testamentary trust created in a will and operating only after the death of the testator. Usually their chief objective is to provide income for named beneficiaries and at the same time conserve the principal of the trust for other purposes. Living trusts may be revocable at the pleasure of the grantor. Trust provisions can be made to cover practically any contingency, including the use of principal where income may prove insufficient for emergencies faced by beneficiaries.

This was the first National Bank of the United States to be granted trust powers and is fully qualified to act in any fiduciary capacity. We welcome a conference with you or your attorney to discuss and explain trust functions in detail.

Muncrief Does a 3-Hit, 5-0 Job on Nats

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

NEW YORK, June 26—Joe Louis walked proudly out of the ring as champ, and Jersey Joe Walcott was helped out as chump—victim of the sucker trick of trying to trade punches with Louis . . .

POVICH

Pappy Walcott was winning Louis' title on points just as was Billy Conn seven years ago, and then like Conn he got impulsive . . . like a rainmaker tickling a cloud with dry ice, Walcott moved in toward Louis in the eleventh with a left hook to the head, and he produced a storm all right . . . the tiger in Louis, now uncaged, after being boxed up for ten rounds, lashed out and gutted Walcott's reflexes. Louis' best right hand landed and Jersey Joe's act of dumbness was followed by numbness . . . the aging Louis who for ten rounds had never looked worse, never looked better than in that eleventh when he got his first clean shot at Walcott's chin . . . the press row couldn't count the punches he threw at Walcott on the ropes, but all of them were beauts. It was Louis the old sharpshooter, a picture fighter when he had his target posted and hurt, punching, not swinging, until Walcott dropped . . . at his own game of stepping, jabbing and breaking off the battle at will, Pappy Joe for ten rounds was making Louis look like an unworthy champion and apparently had the title neatly packaged to take home to the six kids . . . and then, twenty seconds later, Referee Frankie Fullam was scraping Jersey Joe off the floor.

IT WILL BE ALL RIGHT with Louis' best friends if he sticks to his decision to retire. He retained his title cleanly enough with a knockout of the best challenger around, but it was disheartening to watch him befuddled for ten rounds while doing it . . . the old Louis would have dispatched Jersey Joe in a couple of rounds, but not the 34-year-old Louis slowed by age and weight . . . and if it was an exciting sight to see Louis dumped on his royal purple trunks by Walcott's short right in the third round, it wasn't a pretty sight . . . if it was a dull fight, and it was, Walcott wasn't exclusively to blame. Louis himself was strangely timid in the early rounds . . . the first two rounds were so frightfully dull, this bureau scored 'em both in favor of the referee . . . for Walcott the paradox was that in training camp he had called Louis "a dumb fighter" and he, himself, succumbed to the dumb trick of trying to swap punches with perhaps the best puncher who ever lived . . . that's when Walcott became a soft touch for the proprietor of the Joe Louis Punch, a soft drink . . . except for the third round, the $50 question being asked by the ringside customers was "when do they start fighting?" until the knockout, it was a spectacle to set television back ten years, and the movie rights were a bad buy. The cutting-room floor will get six of the eleven rounds but the smashing fade-out scene in the eleventh will prove good box-office.

IT WAS A TRIUMPH for Benlee boxing gloves, used by Louis, over the Everlast gloves used by Walcott . . . the Boxing Commission okayed the different makes of mittens when satisfied they both met specifications. The rival manufacturers are brothers . . . Catholic University had something of a rooting interest in the show. Referee Frankie Fullam is a C. U. grad and the best college boxer in the school's history . . . if there was any fault with Fullam it was, as Walcott claims, his repeated insistence that Jersey Joe "get in and fight" while failing to make the same demand of Louis until the eleventh . . . Walcott was precipitating what little fighting there was in the early rounds . . . the transition of Louis from wary champion to cold killer after he hurt Walcott was complete in that eleventh . . . it was apparent in the first round that Louis was going to attempt no early blitz like the one that demolished Max Schmeling in their return bout. He was content to fight a cold war until Walcott's chin showed invitingly . . . Walcott didn't stir until the count reached seven, and it was no act that he staged when he did struggle to his feet a split-second after it was too late . . . the knockout came four seconds before the bell ending the eleventh, but Jersey Joe was saved from complete extinction by the bells that were ringing in his brain and drowning out the referee's count.

LOUIS, WHO WENT into the ring with a genuine hate for Walcott, did the big thing after the fight when he called Jersey Joe "one of the best men I ever fought" and recommended that he be matched with Gus Lesvenich for the vacated title . . . Louis' camp followers bet $22,000 on him and won $10,000 at the 11-to-5 odds they gave. The bets were made one day before the fight . . . both Louis and Walcott were hauled away from the stadium after the fight in his own big Callidac which, spelled backward, means Cadillac . . . the fighter who doesn't own one ain't no big shot, apparently . . . Walcott went farther with Louis in two fights than any other challenger. It took Joe 26 rounds and three knockdowns to catch up with the Camden pappy . . . he hit Walcott with more punches in ten seconds of the final round than he did in all of the 77 minutes of their previous battling. . . Jersey Joe went out gallantly enough and was gamester to the finish. When his senses started slipping after Louis' first crushing right he made a last stab at fighting back and was throwing punches until that last Louis barrage knocked him senseless . . . he came around nicely after he was led back to his corner where they applied a $180,000 poultice, his share of the gate.

Patty, Four Down at 30, Beats Babe 1 Up for Title

By Jerry Liska

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—Patty Berg, Minneapolis professional, erased a four-hole deficit on the final six holes to defeat Babe Didrikson Zaharias, 1 up, on the thirty-seventh green of a hectic overtime battle for the Women's Western Open Golf Tourney championship today.

The 30-year-old Miss Berg, in her first match-play meeting against the Babe, ruined the thirty-fifth birthday celebration of Mrs. Zaharias.

Par out	4
Mrs. Zaharias	5
Miss Berg	4

Miss Berg wins, 1 up 37 holes.

The Babe blew up completely on the last nine after leading most of the scrap over the 6434-yard Skycrest Country Club.

Patty's triumph matched Mrs. Zaharias' three victories in the Western Open.

Plane Botches Things

Apparently nettled by a low-flying airplane which buzzed the gallery of 2000 most of the back nine, Mrs. Zaharias saw her four-hole lead melt away under Miss Berg's stubborn battling until the match was squared on the thirty-sixth green.

Then, on the 400-yard thirty-seventh the sturdy Minneapolis redhead rang down the curtain on the Babe with a nifty par four, while Mrs. Zaharias scrambled for a five.

The Babe plainly was exasperated with the plane, which started hovering over the gallery just about the same time she commenced fading.

She used a little strong language after the match concerning the plane, which didn't appear to bother Patty so much.

It was a grand performance by Miss Berg, 1941 and 1943 Open winner, who nursed a sprained left hand throughout the week-long meet and who still limps slightly from a leg injury.

Patty, who trailed by three holes after the morning 18, held her own on the first nine of the afternoon session.

Patty Wins on Twenty-eighth

She grabbed the twenty-eighth when the Babe showed her first sign of cracking with a one-over-par six. But the Babe came storming back to take the twentieth with a par four and the thirtieth with a birdie three.

That put Mrs. Zaharias four in front and apparently headed toward one of her crushing victories.

But Babe was trapped on the thirty-first and on the 463-yard thirty-second had an unplayable

A Sitting Slide

Hank Edwards, Cleveland Indians' outfielder, is out by a mile on Joe Gordon's hit to Mark Christman in the third inning of yesterday's game. Al Kozar, rookie Nat second baseman, is shown whipping the relay to first to double Gordon. Nats' hitting wasn't up to their fielding, so they lost, 5-0, to the league leaders.

Sid Hudson Is Loser as Tribe Snaps Griffs' String

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, June 26.—Pitcher Sid Hudson batted 1.000 against Cleveland today, but the Indians hit almost as well against him and thumped the Nats, 5-0.

Hudson lasted long enough to pitch seven-hit, four-run ball in three innings, but distinguished himself a bit by rapping out one of the three singles Bob Muncrief allowed.

Muncrief was quite a pitcher today, as 13,561 observers can attest. He pitched to only 29 batters, struck out seven and didn't allow even one to reach second base.

It was the fifth victory against only one defeat for the former Brownie. His superlative job interrupted a Nat winning streak of four in a row.

In Trouble Early

After being belted out nine straight times, Hudson whipped the White Sox last Sunday, but he regained his losing touch quickly today, in the first inning.

His trouble started after he had retired the first two Redskins. Two singles, Hank Edwards' double, a walk and Earl Wooten's error put him in a three-run hole which turned out to be plenty deep the way Muncrief was pitching.

Sid held he Indians scoreless in the next two innings, but they got to him again in the fourth, driving him out with three more hits and and another run. Singles by Dale Mitchell, Larry Doby, who got three of Cleveland's 12 hits, and Jim Hegan hastened Hudson's early exit.

He left the scene with the bases jammed and none out; Rookie Dick Welteroth pitched out of it neatly, getting Lou Boudreau on a double play ball and fanning Joe Gordon to end the round. Dick was touched up for the final Indian run in the fifth when Eddie Robinson doubled Kenny Keltner across.

Harrist Finishes

Earl Harrist elbowed the last two frames for the Nats and stopped the Tribe with two hits, but the dame was already done.

Big Muncrief, employing a sneaky fast ball and a deceptive curve, pitched a single to Hudson in the third and didn't allow another hit until the seventh when Ed Stewart also singled. Stewart was promptly rubbed out in a double play.

Nat hit No. 3 came in the eighth inning and it belonged to Mark Christman, stroked with two away. Al Evans forced the Nat shortstop and the last Griff threat, using the word loosely, expired.

IN SHORT—Jake Early split his thumb Friday night, but will be used in one game of tomorrow's doubleheader . . . today's win over the Nats was second for Muncrief. He picked up his first in that memorable 15-inning game after relieving Bob Feller in the eleventh . . . today's crowd was the smallest of the year for Cleveland . . . Gordon, who almost wrecked the Nats last night, had a miserable day. He struck out twice, hit into a double play and drew a walk in four tries. The loss brings the Nat record on the current western jaunt to four victories and five defeats . . . it's Mickey Haefner and Ray Scarborough against Sam Zoldak and Gene Bearden tomorrow.

Gus Can Have Walcott or Charles Bout

By Jack Cuddy

New York, June 26 (U.P.)—As Joe Louis, the retired heavyweight champion, played golf today, Sol Strauss announced a heavyweight fight would be staged at Yankee Stadium on September 22, possibly for the vacant crown.

Strauss, acting promoter of the Twentieth Century Club, said Gus Lesnevich, light-heavyweight champion, would be one of the principals in the September bout.

The other would be either Jersey Joe Walcott, who was knocked out in the eleventh round by Louis at the stadium last night, or Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati.

Strauss explained, "I'll let Lesnevich and his manager, Joe Vella, choose either Walcott or Charles."

On that basis it would seem Walcott would be the Lesnevich opponent, despite last night's participation in a "stinkeroo" of a fight with Louis.

Lesnevich unquestionably would select 34-year-old Walcott over 24-year-old Charles, a light-heavyweight who now is rated one of the most dangerous fighters in any division.

Lesnevich could not be questioned today about his choice, for he and Vella were en route to England. The 175-pound champ from Cliffside, N. J., is scheduled to defend his crown at London against Freddie Mills of England, July 26.

Strauss was unsuccessful in attempting to reach Lesnevich by trans-oceanic telephone. However, Strauss pointed out that before the light heavy king embarked Thursday he had challenged the winner of last night's fight.

Whether the New York Boxing Commission would recognize the September bout as for the vacant crown was uncertain.

Louis Will Pick Up $252,522

New York, June 26.—It is estimated that Louis will get $252,522 of the actual gross receipts of $841,739. Walcott's slice will be about $126,261. And to that add a liberal cut from the movies, television and radio rights.

The final chapter in the controversy about the first Walcott-Louis scrap came from the Police Gazette, which had presented Jersey Joe with its world championship belt after the December 5 bout.

"Where's that belt I won," asked Louis when he saw H. H. Roswell, publisher of the Gazette. He was told he would get it for keeps.

Pirates Whip Braves, 7 to 1

Boston, June 26 (AP).—Tiny Bonham kept seven hits well scattered and Frankie Gustine connected safely four times for eight bases as the Pittsburgh Pirates trounced the top-place Boston Braves, 7-1, tonight before a 31,490 crowd.

The setback reduced the Tribesmen's lead to a half game over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Pirates sewed up the game by blasting Bill Voiselle for three hits and as many runs in the first inning. He was yanked for the ninth straight time after the second, during which Gustine tripled in Stan Rojek with the fourth Pittsburgh run.

Earl Torgeson collected three of the Braves' blows, two doubles and a single, all struck with nobody on.

Musial Has Homer, 4 for 5 As Cards Whip Dodgers, 6-3

Brooklyn, June 26 (AP).—Paced by the booming bat of Stan Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals pounded out a 6-3 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today before a crowd of 17,760 to even their current series at one game apiece.

Musial had another torrid day at the plate with four hits including his 16th home run and a double in five trips to the plate. This barrage off three Dodger pitchers enabled him to boost his league leading average to .408.

The Cards sent Starter Joe Hatten to the showers in the second inning after Pitcher Murray Dickson singled on the heels of Del Rice's first home run of the season. They had rocked Hatten for two runs in the first frame. Hank Behrman and Erv Palica allowed three more runs the rest of the way.

Little Dickson permitted only seven hits in registering his sixth victory.

Chico Pieretti Singles Into Double Play

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Marino Pierreti, Chicago White Sox pitcher formerly with Washington, supplied a baseball oddity against the Philadelphia Athletics here today when he singled into a double play.

With Chicago runners on first and third with one out in the fifth inning, Pieretti singled sharply to right field. Cass Michaels, on third, scored, and Ralph Weigel, on first, tried for third.

He was out on Elmer Valo's throw from right field to Hank Majewski at third. Then Majewski threw to Eddie Joost, covering second, who tagged Pieretti as he slid into the midway station to complete the double play.

Bill Bevens Assigned To Independent Team For Three Weeks

West Haven, Conn., June 26 (AP).—Right-hander Bill Bevens, who came within one out of pitching a no-hit game for the New York Yankees against Brooklyn in the World Series last year, has been assigned by the Yankee management to pitch for the West Haven Sailors, an independent professional team.

The deal was completed last night when General Manager George M. Weiss of the Yankees offered the sore-armed hurler's services to the Sailors for a period of three weeks.

Dillard Tops World Record

Berea, Ohio, June 26 (AP).—Hurdlin' Harrison Dillard, who came to Baldwin-Wallace as a virtually unknown athlete, put on a smashing show today as he made his farewell appearance as a college runner on his home cinders.

Without benefit of a tail-wind, he bettered the world record in the 220-yard low hurdles for the second time in his sensational career. He was competing in the Northeastern Ohio District AAU meet.

Skimming the barriers in the manner that has carried him to 80 consecutive victories in the last two seasons, Dillard was timed in 22.4 seconds. That betters by one tenth of a second the accepted world standard he shares with Fred Wolcott of Rice Institute.

Dillard turned in a 22.3 clocking in the national collegiate at Salt Lake City last summer. That figure already has been accepted as a national collegiate mark and is awaiting approval as a world mark.

Dillard was pressed all the way in the 120-yard high hurdles by the veteran Ed Dugger of the Dayton A. C.

Alert Yost Robs Boudreau Of Hit on Freak Force-Out

Cleveland, June 26.—If you're interested in strange baseball play, add this one to your collection:

With the bases loaded in the fifth inning of today's Nat-Cleveland game, Manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland hit safely into centerfield against the Nats today but the Indians didn't get a run out of it and Boudreau was not credited with a hit.

Here's what happened: Eddie Robinson, on third base at the time, came home, but Pitcher Bob Muncrief on second base, failed to touch third on his way to the plate. Eddie Yost noticed this and touched third base after receiving the ball from Earl Wooten, thus turning Boudreau's apparent single into a force play on Muncrief.

The umpires first ruled that Robinson, who was already across the plate before Muncrief missed third base, was to be credited with a run. After a huddle, however, they changed their minds and agreed that Robinson's "run" did not count.

Muncrief's lapse saved Wooten, who had bobbled Boudreau's "hit" momentarily, for an error. On the debit side, it robbed Boudreau from a hit, sending his batting average from .364 to .361 and also deprived him of two runs batted in.

Yanks Batter Tigers, 8-5; 9 for Reynolds

Detroit, June 26 (AP).—The New York Yankees rode to an 8-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers today on the strength of home runs by Johnny Lindell and Yogi Berra.

Although he needed help from reliefer Joe Page, Allie Reynolds was credited with the victory, his ninth of the season.

Page entered the game in the sixth inning, after Reynolds had been belted for four runs in a four-inning Tiger uprising, and allowed only one hit the rest of the way.

Playing before 22,655 fans, both teams got their scoring punch from home runs.

Yanks Get Four

In the fourth, the Yankees jumped on Tiger Starter Virgil Trucks and his successor, Freddie Hutchinson, for four hits and four runs. One of the hits was Johnny Lindell's eleventh homer of the season. Coming with Bobby Brown on base, the homer proved Trucks' undoing.

Unnerved, Trucks walked George Stirnweiss. At this point, Hutchinson took over and shortly was greeted by a single off Phil Rizzuto's bat, scoring Stirnweiss. Tommy Henrich then scratched a single to send the fourth run across the plate.

The Tigers came back fighting, however, in their half of the inning. With two men on, Hoot Evers singled to score George Kell. Then First Sacker Paul Campbell hit a home run that was good for three runs.

Lipon Belts Homer

Scoring was slack for both teams after that. In the Tiger seventh, Johnny Lipon hit his second homer of the season to bring the count to 7-5.

In the ninth inning Berra hit his homer—his eighth of the year.

The Yankee attack, concentrating on Trucks, was good for 11 hits. In his three innings, Trucks was pasted for five hits. After that the Yanks managed to get six in six innings off Hutchinson, but could score only once after the fourth.

The Tigers got to Reynolds for six in his five and two-thirds innings of activity.

Macks Beat Chisox, 4-2, for 5th Straight Win

On the Line
—With Considine

NEW YORK, JUNE 26 (INS).—When the definitive biography of Joe Louis finally is written the astute student of the man's boxing life will note that, among other things, he was absolutely murderous toward fancy Dans.

Considine

He started belting them to glory-be 'way back in the days when he was fighting Charley Retzlaff. And in what he says was the last fight of his long and incredible career he nailed one of the fanciest of all—the man named Arnold Cream, who calls himself Jersey Joe Walcott.

He pulverized the clowning Max Baer, the original wayward bus. When Arturo Godoy squatted around the ring like an ape, and rubbed menthol salve into Joe's eyes (the salve was Arturo's idea of a good hair groom) it bewildered Louis. But the next time he fought the Chilean he cooled him in eight when the man tried to ham it up again.

A notable instance was the dispatch with which he disposed of Lou Nova, who had sold himself on some preposterous Guru gibberish which was to make him impervious to pain. Lou brought something called a cosmic punch into the ring and something called a dynamic stance, or some such, which was a crude squat made none the less crude by the fact that he moved his arms up and down like pistons.

JOE KNOCKED HIM into a flat pin-wheel. Just as he blasted fancy Dan Conn the second time around.

And Walcott, of course. Walcott was winning, I thought . . . if that's the word. At least he wasn't losing, any more than any man who doesn't get hit ever lost one—no matter what the rule books say about "making the fight."

Walcott stuck and he ran, stuck and ran, stuck and ran, and in those moments of concern and disgust when Louis tried to crowd him and beat him blue and red, he out-punched Louis and made the champion cover and gram. Walcott grinned malevolently at the ease with which he could—by feinting a right—make Louis tremulous and winceful and full of self-hugs.

Maybe it was that grin of Walcott's that made Louis the raging force he was in the eleventh round. Maybe not. Maybe it was the almost insolent manner in which Walcott would drop his guard and swing his arms like an ape, that caused Louis to come at him like a hungry tiger. Maybe not. It's hard to tell about fights. Sometimes the men themselves don't know.

The important thing for the biographer to remember is that Louis never—but never—failed to cool out a fancy Dan. He always—but always—broke through the tinsel or the charm or the buck-and-wing or the squat or the mood that enabled an opponent to wave to friends in the fourth row, and smashed that man to the ground—and out.

IT WAS A BLIND and insipid fight, that one at the Yankee Stadium the other night. The mob grew touchy and restless at the sight of what had been a great brave stinging puncher ending his career in a fearful, fretful mess of uncertainty and impotency.

The mob flung cruel and rasping boos across the night air of the Bronx, but those boos were tinged with despair. They were seeing a great man of sports end it all on a sour note, for it did not seem possible that Louis would ever be able to tag the dark wraith before him.

The very end made up for it. Louis, in the last second of his ring life, was the Louis whose memory—if he sticks by his retirement notice—will mushroom in the dank recesses of the brains of men who saw him when he had it. Someday we will be telling our grandchildren that he stood six-feet eight, was faster than a flyweight, had the foot-work of a great dancing master and, on the offense, was a maddened elephant running amok. And we won't be too far off the beam.

But he was a tired and deflated man through all but 20 seconds of the fight the other night, and one sensed why he wanted to quit. His jaw, never durable, had become pure chin. He marked up quicker, flinched more, had no more stomach for the ugly business of bashing skulls. As the English put it, he had had it. The gut-letting had no more lure.

BY RETIRING (though this still seems hard to believe) Louis carried out a yearning he expressed to this writer years and years ago when the late Eddie Frayne and a few others brought him East for a milk fund fight against the preposterous Primo Carnera.

I asked him then if he wanted to model his ring life after Dempsey. This seemed the natural question, in view of the string of knockouts he had piled up in the Middle and Far West.

"I want to be a Tooney," he said, in his full-lipped, almost sad manner. He didn't amplify until I asked him why, and then he said, "I want to win the title some day and retire before I lose it, and never fight no more."

Now, the king has abdicated, and it doesn't seem possible that we will see his likes again until we are old and rheumatic, and don't care.

District-Owned Pony Wins Feature at Warrenton Show

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Warrenton, Va., June 26.—Five-year-old Carroll Ebeling's Cassillis Comet from the Washington area won the featured and most spectacular class of the first day's program of the Warrenton pony show, taking the blue in the driving class over a good field of 10 fine harness ponies.

Cassillis Comet was driven by one of the Metropolitan area's top pony riders, Claire Taylor, in her fine looking surrey with the fringe on top.

The first day of the show got off to a slow start with the full card of 23 classes dragging on into the twilight hours.

Kentucky Stables' Baltimore-owned Moonbeam, well-ridden by the 13-year-old Jack Ewing, jumped into a good lead in the large pony division and took blues in the pony hunter and junior hack events and placed second in the pony hack class.

Sara Nan Payne's Pinocchio from Gordonsville, Va., was topping the medium pony division with blues earned in both the pony hunter and green hunter events. Pinocchio, ridden by his young owner right behind the good performing Moonbeam and the early lead for grand championship honors.

The largest class of the day found Penny Jennings' handsome gray gelding, Owen Glenover, finishing in front of the 40 junior mounts with a beautiful performance over the eight-fence course.

PONY HANDS (11.2 to 13 hands)—Won by Pinocchio; second, Bab's Baby; third, Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's Silver Slippers; fourth, Claire Taylor's Baby.

PONY MARES AND FOALS—Won by Doris J. Cunningham's Primrose and foal; second, Penny Sinclair's Charm and Foal; third, Penny Sinclair's Honey and foal.

PONY HACKS (13 and 14.2 hands)—Won by Martha Lee Kennon's Ballerina; second, Moonbeam; third, Miss Fox; fourth, Sue Ann Freeman's Thumbs Up.

BEGINNERS' EQUITATION—Won by Courtney Wells; second, Betsy Carhart; third, Berkley Jennings; fourth, Mary Dodson II.

WORKING HUNTERS—Won by Penny Jennings' Owen Glenover; second, Black Sparkle; third, Mrs. Page Jennings' Velvet; fourth, Kalico Kat.

JUNIOR HUNTER HACKS—Won by George Austin' Golden Boy; second, Thumbs Up; third, Popover; fourth, Gloria Galban's Mont.

Touch and Out—Won by Mrs. A. M. Keith's Smoky Joe; second, Kalico Kat; third, Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry's Silver Slippers; fourth, Owens Glenover.

DRIVING CLASS—Won by Carroll Ann Ebeling's Casslis Comet; second, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill's Happy Box and Six Pence; third, Pamela Gaynor's Blue Bell; fourth, Patricia Connor's Penny Royal.

MODEL HUNTERS—Won by Meander Farms Trigger; second, Kentucky Stables' Bab's Baby; third, Fox Hollow Stables' Blue Blazes; fourth, Clover Leaf Stables' Cinderella.

PONY HACKS (11.2 hands and under)—Won by Laura Lawrence's Jenny Wren; second, Pamela Gaynar's Blue Bell; third, Kentucky Stables' Napoleon; fourth, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill's Happy Boy.

GREEN HUNTERS—Won by Sarah Nan Nayne's Pinocchio; second, Mrs. J. C. Hamilton's Mouse; third, Kentucky Stables' Baby; fourth, Mrs. Page Jennings' Velvet.

PONY HUNTERS (over 13 hands)—Won by Jackie Ewing's Moonbeam; second, Mighty Mouse; third, Martha Lee Kennon's Black Sparkle; fourth, Gloria Galban's Apron Strings.

JUNIOR HACKS—Won by Moonbeam; second, John Freeman, Jr.'s Praline; third, Elizabeth Cutting's Si Si; fourth, Betsy Carhart's Popover.

OPEN JUMPERS—Won by Grover Vandevender's Trophy; second, Nancy Graham's Kalico Kat; third, Black Sparkle; fourth, Dunnellar Pony Farm's Miss Fox.

Athletics Make Most Of Five Hits

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—The second-place Philadelphia Athletics beat the Chicago White Sox, 4-2, before a ladies' day crowd of 5577 persons here today. They remain a game behind pace-setting Cleveland in the American League. It was the A's fifth straight victory and their sixth triumph in seven games against Chicago.

Marino Pieretti checked Philadelphia on five hits as Chicago clouted Lou Brissie and Charley Harris for 10 singles, six in the final four innings without a score.

One of Chicago's hits, Pieretti's fifth-inning single, was turned into a side-retiring double play after the White Sox scored both of their runs.

Pieretti Nipped

Elmer Valo fielded the hit, threw to Hank Majeski to retire Ralph Weigel, who was moving from first to third, and the Majeski's throw to Eddie Joost got Pieretti as he tried for second.

Pete Suder's single and a pass to Barney McCosky led to two runs for the Macks in the third when Ray Coleman doubled.

Valo's double, Franks' fly and the last of two wild pitches by Pieretti accounted for the A's third run in the fourth. The last came across on Franks' two-bagger, Suder's sacrifice and Brissie's fly in the seventh.

W&M Team Wins Tennis

Los Angeles, June 26 (U.P.).—Fred Kovaleski and Bernard Bartzen won the NCAA tennis doubles championship today to lead William and Mary to the team title for the second year in a row while Harry Likas of University of San Francisco scored an upset to capture the singles crown.

Likas, fifth-seeded for the tournament, dumped favored Victor Seixas of North Carolina, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5, 6—1. The San Francisco boy capitalized on Seixas' errors and played a steady game throughout.

The win was the second upset scored by Likas, who entered the final round yesterday by eliminating Jim Brink, No. 2 man from Washington.

Kovaleski and Bartzen captured their crown by defeating Arnold Saul and Bobby Perez of University of Southern California, 5—7, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3.

The match was much closer than the score indicated, with one game in the third set being decided by eight deuce points.

William and Mary took the team title with six points, and San Francisco was second with five. North Carolina, USC and UCLA tied for third with four each, followed by Notre Dame, three, and Washington and Tulane, two each.

William and Mary and San Francisco scored two points each for the Charles S. Garland Bowl, perpetual tennis trophy. The two schools will hold the cup for six months each.

Chicubs Build 50,000 Seats for Chibears

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—The Chicago Bears of the National Football League will have seating accommodations for more than 50,000 fans at each of their home games this fall.

The Chicago Cubs will construct 7600 additional seats for the Bears who make their home in Wrigley Field. The cost of the new 50 tiers of tubular steel construction, on the east side of the field, will be more than $125,000 officials said.

USC Beats Yale for NCAA Title by Winning Second

Kalamazoo, Mich., June 26 (AP).—Southern California's Trojans took the National Collegiate baseball title West for the second straight year as they whipped Yale, 9 to 2, in the deciding game of their three-game series today. Yale had evened the seris by winning the opener of today's doubleheader, 8 to 3.

In today's first game Yale took advantage of six Trojan errors to run up an early 7-0 lead. Southern California won the opener yesterday, 3-1.

Williams Still Ahead As Poll Tops Million

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—The vote total passed the million mark today as fans throughout the Nation balloted for the starting line-ups in the fifteenth annual All-Star baseball game at St. Louis, July 13.

With nine days of voting left in the 23-day poll, the total has soared to 1,071,395 and may reach a record two million before the July 5 deadline. Last year's final figure was 1,973,493.

The fans choose starters for all positions in the National and American League with the exception of the pitching staffs. The rival managers, Bucky Harris of the New York Yankees and Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, will select their own mound men.

Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox continues as the highest individual vote-getter with 287,104 votes—5618 more than Yankees' Joe DiMaggio. Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians is third with 279,258 and Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals is fourth with 277,804.

Phils Beat Cubs Out in Ninth, 3 to 2

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies' prize rookie, Richie Ashburn, stole the show and the ball game today as the Phillies subdued the Chicago Cubs by a 3-2 score.

The 21-year-old speedster from Upden, Nebr., beat out an infield hit with one down and the score tied 2-2 in the ninth inning. Then he stole second base, his twentieth base theft of the year.

Ashburn bided his time as Harry Walker flied out and Dick Sisler drew an international pass. But Relief Pitcher Emil Kush grooved one to Bert Haas, and the Phils' third baseman smacked a single, Ashburn racing across with the winning run.

Nicholson Triples

The Cubs took an early 1-0 lead on Bill Nicholson's triple and a single by Peanuts Lowrey. The Phils tied the count in the same frame on a walk, a single by Ashburn and an error.

The Phils edged ahead in the sixth on a single by Del Ennis and a double by Granny Hamner, but the Cubs tied the score again in the seventh on a pair of singles by Lowrey and Al Walker plus a long fly.

Schoolboy Rowe went the distance for the Phils and scattered eight hits for his third victory of the campaign.

District Swimmer Wins National AAU 3-Mile Title

Clementon, N. J., June 26 (AP).—John H. Craigie, 18-year-old West Pointer, covered the 3-mile course at Clementon Lake Park Swimming Club in 1:17:03 today to win the junior national outdoor AAU long distance swimming championship.

Walter Heck of Conshohocken, Pa., finished second a quarter of a mile behind Craigie, while John Whitmore of the Scranton (Pa.) Swimming Club, was third.

Craigie, a member of the Takoma Swimming Club of Washington, D. C., lapped Harry Jaggers, Bernard Cheskin and Ed King in the 3-mile test.

On Trust Wins Coquette 'Cap

Inglewood, Calif., June 26 (AP).—On Trust, California's fleet 4-year-old, scored a 2½-length victory today in the $15,000 Coquette Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Under Johnny Longden, On Trust led wire to wire in hanging defeat on the favored Mafosta, from Montrose Stable. Mafosta hung on until the stretch of the mile and one-sixteenth race, then faded to be nipped by a nose by Autocrat for second place. On Trust returned $5.70, $3.40 and $2.20 to his backers. Autocrat paid $5.10 and $2.40; Mafosta, $2.20.

Shannahan Paces Tourney

Chestertown, Md., June 26 (AP).—The first Maryland amateur sweepstakes golf tournament got underway at the Chester River Yacht and Country Club today with 70 golfers vying for honors.

Walt Shannahan of the Easton Country Club turned in the best round with a gross score of 73 and a net score of 66.

The meet is divided into three handicap classes. Class A is for golfers with handicaps from 1 to 10; Class B, handicaps from 11 to 20, and Class C, 21 to 35.

The golfers played 18 holes today over the nine-hole course. The second half of the 36-hole event will be run off tomorrow.

In Class B, Walt Jones toured his home course in 80 for a net score of 65. His father, Jay Clauson Jones, tied for Class C honors with a 96 gross and a 66 net.

The top 10 golfers in Class A:

Bill Shannahan, Easton, 73, 66; Martin McCarty, Columbia C. C., Washington, 73, 69; Stanley Giraitis, Chester River, 75, 69; J. W. Kreeger, Easton, 75, 67; W. J. Vandy Shuts Out Giants For Reds, 4-0

New York, June 26 (AP).—Scoring all their runs in the first inning, the Cincinnati Reds, behind the air-tight pitching of Johnny (Double No-Hit) Vandermeer, shut out the New York Giants, 4-0, today to even their current series at one game apiece.

The Reds took advantage of wildness on the part of Southpaw Monte Kennedy and an error by Outfielder Whitey Lockman to tally four times on only two singles.

Kennedy, making his second start since his recall from Minneapolis last week, failed to get by the first inning. He walked two of the first three batters to face him, then gave up singles to Hank Sauer and Danny Litwhiler. When Lockman overcharged Litwhiler's hit, two runners crossed the plate and Danny wound up at third. The stocky outfielder scored a moment later on a wild pitch. Vandermeer, in fashioning his first shutout, scattered seven hits for his fourth victory.

Bladensburg, Lanham Triumph, Still in Lead

Bladensburg and Lanham each scored victories in Prince Georges County Boys' Club League play yesterday to remain tied for first place.

Bladensburg tripped Oxon Hill, 7-6, and Lanham walloped Cheverley, 7-1. The two winners will play off for the first half championship of the league, July 5.

Colts Get Guard, Back

Baltimore, June 26 (AP). — The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference announced today the signing of Guard Joe (Slim) Mitchell from the University of Tennessee and Halfback Tom Carpenter from Georgia Tech.

The Colts now have 46 men under contract. They will leave Baltimore July 19 for Sun Valley, Idaho, for the preseason training

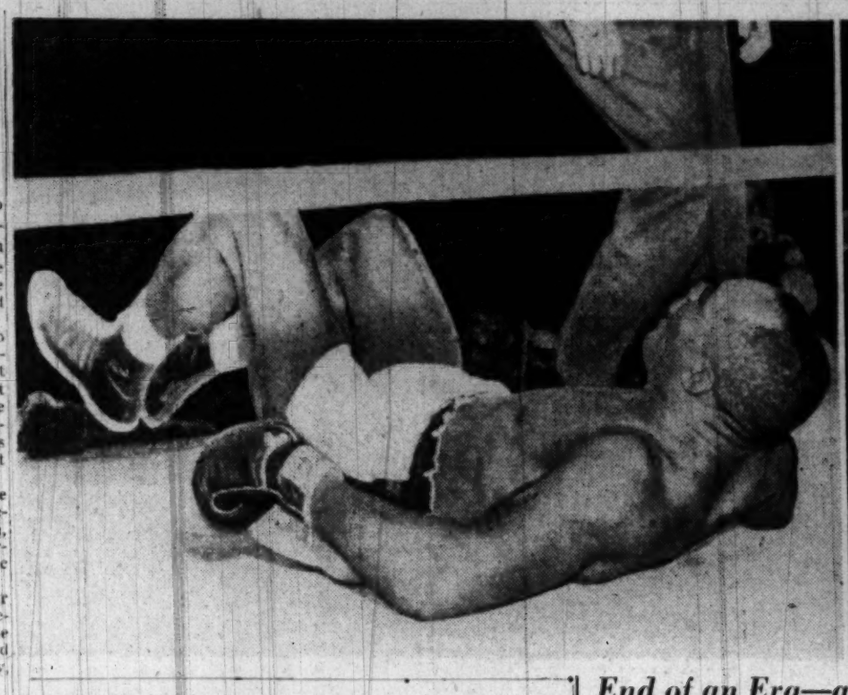
McKenley Betters His Own World 440 Record Again



Pearman, Felton Also Brilliant

New York, June 26 (AP).—Herb McKenley broke his world quarter-mile record again, Sam Felton scored in three events and Reggie Pearman started a comeback in the metropolitan AAU track and field championships today.

The New York Athletic Club swept the team title with an impressive total of 119½ points. It showed that the Winged Foot spikesters will be hard to dislodge from the national throne in the national AAU carnival which serves as a semifinal Olympic tryout next week at Milwaukee.

But individual honors for the day belonged principally to McKenley, an outsider from Jamaica, who will be running against America's best in the coming Olympic games.

McKenley, Olympic 400-meter favorite, sped 440 yards in 46.2 seconds, snapping for the second time in three weeks the accepted world mark of 46.3 he set in Berkeley, Calif., a year ago.

15 Yards in Front

He scored by 15 yards over the closest of three opponents he had spotted from 10 to 18 yards in a special handicap race. Had he been pushed he might have come closer to the unprecedented 46 flat he achieved only three weeks ago also in Berkeley.

Felton, Harvard's NCAA hammer champ competing for the NYAC, won his specialty with a toss of 183 feet 5 inches, best distance recorded for that event in the United States this season.

He also tied with James Scholtz of the New York A. C. in the javelin at 152 feet 2½ inches and placed third in the 56-pound weight throw, won by Henry Dreyer, a 1936 Olympian from the New York A. C., with a heave of 38 feet 8½ inches.

Pearman, national AAU 800-meter titleholder from New York University, gave promise of making the Olympic team after all, by capturing the 880-yard run in 1:52.2, second best time for the distance anywhere in the country this year.

Three Other Meet Marks

He finished out of the money in both the 400 and 800 meters at last week's NCAA meet. Today, however, he started only in the half mile but still had to come from behind in the last 10 yards to nip Bob Reidy, 19-year-old Cornell freshman, by a foot.

Pearman's time eclipsed the meet mark of 1:53.6 set by Joe Nowicki of Fordham in 1943. Three other meet marks tumbled during the day's 21-event program.

Henry Laskau of the Maccabi A. C., already a member of the United States Olympic team in the 10,000-meter walk, took the 2-mile walk in 14:16.4, breaking the meet mark of 14:37.3 established in 1936 by Ernest Weber of the German-American A. C., his Olympic teammate who was second today.

Warren Halliburton of the New York Pioneer Club won the 220-yard low hurdles in 23.6, snapping the meet mark of 23.8 set in 1938 by Kingsley Lattimer of the New York Athletic Club. Ennis Gray of the New York Athletic Club took the 440-yard hurdles in 53.2 seconds to lower the record of 55.2 set last year by John Nelson of the same club.

Buddy Bowie Wins Title at Columbia

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

BUDDY BOWIE became the 1948 champion of the Columbia Country Club as he defeated Ray Swearingen, 4 and 2, in yesterday's final round.

After shooting a 37 to Swearingen's 41 over the first nine holes, Bowie closed out the match with a par three on the sixteenth hole. Swearingen conceded the hole and Bowie, who had beaten Col. Jesse Auton to gain the title round, was the new champion.

Swearingen had entered the finals with a decisive 4 and 3 triumph over Tommy Webb Friday.

THE FIRST FIELD day held by the District Golf Association's Junior Golf Sponsoring Group will take place Tuesday at the Columbia Country Club.

All boys aged 12-21 are welcome to participate in the various events arranged by Frank Emmet and President Martin McCarthy of the DCGA.

Feature of the day will be a lesson by Freddie McLeod, famed Columbia professional. Freddie will show the youngsters techniques of approach and sand trap shots and putting.

Following the lesson, the boys will play in an 18-hole tournament which will be divided into three age groups—12-14, 15-16 and 17-20.

While the older lads are teeing off, the two youngest age groups will compete in a pitching contest. The program starts at 9 a. m. and Emmet expects 100 or more boys.

MRS. ALBERT D. BOWER, who is an officer of the Maryland State Women's Golf Association in her spare time (when she isn't winning golf tournaments or caring for her baby) informs us that the Maryland State Women's Championship will be held July 12-16 at the Roland Park Course of the Baltimore Country Club.

The 18-hole medal play qualifying round is slated for July 12 after which the survivors will be paired up for four days of match play.

Defending champion in the Maryland State tournament is Woodholme's Mrs. Maurice Glick. Post entries for the event will be accepted and Washington women who wish to enter can get their names in early by notifying Mrs. Bower at MI. 6970.

Incidentally, Mrs. Bower, known to area golf enthusiasts as "B," would be the strongest kind of favorite to win the Maryland State. After winning The Washington Post, NBC and District championships this year, it's hard to see who would beat her.

But "B" will be unable to take part in the tournament. It seems that her youngster demands her attentions and the daily trip to Baltimore would keep her away from home for too long a period of time.

ARGYLE COUNTRY CLUB'S new second nine is under construction and will be ready for play in the spring, Ray Lawrenson of the club announced recently . . . The Women's District Golf Association first team field day starts at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday at Kenwood.

lie off the tee, inflicting a stroke and penalty distance resulting in a whopping seven.

That left Miss Berg only two holes behind. On the 125-yard thirty-third, a water hole, Babe plunked in the pond for a five. Miss Berg took the hole with a par three, cutting her deficit to one hole.

The two professionals, who work for the same sporting goods company, halved the next two holes with a pair of pars.

That put tremendous pressure on Miss Berg on the thirty-sixth green. But the scrappy Patty was up to it. She had a sparkling approach to within 3 feet and sank the putt for a par four. The Babe again was trapped on her second, just barly got out on her third and wound up with a five, sending the match into overtime.

Sensing she had Mrs. Zaharias on the hook, Patty blazed straight away down the thirty-seventh fairway, getting on in two, 40 feet from the pin. The Babe sliced her second shot into rough grass and topped her third which dribbled to a stop 22 feet from the pin. Miss Berg tapped her putt nicely to within 2 feet.

With the match riding on her long putt, Babe had a bead on the hole, but the ball came too fast, banging the back of the cup, and squirting a few feet away as the crowd stood breathless a moment and then cheered Patty's match triumph.

The Babe, who fired an opening 73, 1 under women's par, wound up with a 79 and had a 5 over par for the 37 holes played. Miss Berg, who toured the afternoon 18 in 74 after a morning 76, was 2 over for the distance.

Falkenburg, Patty and Brown Gain in Wimbledon Tennis

By Gayle Talbot

London, June 26 (AP).—One of the greatest tennis crowds ever—estimated at more than 30,000—packed itself into Wimbledon's stands and grounds today to watch the list of survivors in men's singles reduced to eight.

The vast throng, many of whom paid scalpers as high as $20 for seats which originally retailed for about $1.50 saw two more Californians, Bob Falkenburg and Budge Patty, power their way into the quarter-finals without the loss of a set.

Two other Americans, Tom Brown of San Francisco and Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, initiated the selected group yesterday. Completing the list were four "foreighers"—John Bromwich of Australia, Lennart Bergelin of Sweden, Josef Asboth of Hungary and Tony Mottram of Britain.

The 80-year-old dowager Queen Mary and some 17,000 others in the center court gasped at Falkenburg's bullet service and murderous net game as he bounced out a young Australian, Frank Sedgman, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4. Many observers think Falkenburg will win the tournament.

Patty, playing on an outside court, paced himself easily under a hot sun in eliminating G. R. B. Meredith, a British second-rater, by 6—3, 6—3, 8—6.

The Hungarian Asboth, long noted on the Continent as a terror on clay courts, provided the regular daily upset by putting out Eric Sturgess, the eighth seeded South American, 2—6, 9—7, 7—5, 2—6, 6—1.

It wasn't much of an upset, really. Asboth has beaten many a better player than Sturgess in past years. He trimmed Tom Brown, whom he meets in the next round, in the 1947 French championships, which he won.

Bromwich, who had not yet lost a set in four matches, claimed Dr. Hans Van Swol of the Netherlands as today's victim, outsteadying the popular Dutchman by scores of 6—4, 6—3, 6—4.

Mottram, a 28-year-old former fighter pilot, became the first Briton to reach the quarter finals since the war when he turned back young Philippe Washer of Belgium, 10—8, 6—1, 7—5.

Bergelin, the unseeded Swede, reached the last eight yesterday with a sensational five-set victory over favorite Frankie Parker.

Frankie, who had 24 hours to think it over, was kicking himself in his tennis pants today for having eased up in the vital fifth set when Bergelin, trailing by 3-5 in games, developed a slight cramp in one leg.

"I realize now I shouldn't have done it," Parker said, ruefully. "I should have drop-shotted him, or at least gone on playing my best game. I didn't feel so good when he jumped the net to congratulate me at the finish."

Frankie's doubles partner, Falkenburg, will have a chance to gain revenge for him when he faces Bergelin in one of Monday's four matches. It promises to be a buzz-saw of a contest. Mulloy will play Mottram and Patty will meet formidable Bromwich. The semifinals are scheduled next Wednesday and the finals on Friday.

The women's singles division, loafing along a round behind the men, saw Doris Hart of Miami, and Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., score easy third round victories.

Demaret, Hogan Lead

Toledo, Ohio, June 26 (AP).—Baseball's old "Break Up The Yankees" cry may have a golfing counterpart of "break up those Texans" if Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret continue their best-ball dominance of the Nation's play-for-pay field.

The torrid duo today turned into a rout what promised to be a tight tourney in the eleventh annual $10,650 Inverness four-ball matches. They toured the tough layout in a pair of 11-under-par 60's to smother two opposing pairs and swing far ahead of the pack in quest of the $3000 top prize.

Hogan and Demaret have won this big event twice in a row, and three times in four tries, and it looks as if no one can catch them in tomorrow's final round. They also paired to win the 1946 and 1947 Miami four-ball matches, which gives them a fairly clean sweep of the two-man play the last few years.

In the previous 10 years of Inverness play, only one team was able to clip 11 strokes off par on a round. Ed Furgol, the Detroit kid with the crooked arm, and George Schoux, did it a year ago.

This morning Hogan and Demaret, leading with a score of plus 7, whent up against Dutch Harrison and Bob Hamilton, the former PGA king, who were in second place with plus 4. When the smoke cleared away the "Golden Boys" had their 31-29—60, winning a six-up margin and stretching their lead to 6 plus 13, while Harrison and Hamilton skidded to minus 2.

Just to show it was no fluke, the leaders tacked together a 29-31—60 this afternoon for a four-up win over Johnny Palmer and Skip Alexander. This morning's final nine and this afternoon's first nine were toured in 29 each, giving the Texans a 58 for the 18 holes, although not in the same round.

Showing utter precision as partners, Hogan scored seven birdies and Demaret four on the morning round, and Demaret reciprocated by scoring seven this afternoon while Mogan got four.

The results of the two matches made tomorrow's windup practically anticlimactic, Hogan and Demaret having a 12-point edge over their nearest rivals, Chick Harbert of Detroit and Vic Ghezzi of Kansas City, who have plus 5.

Mayo Beach Beaten

Northeast Body Works won a 6-5 decision from Mayo Beach yesterday in a nonleague game on the losers' field. Pat Barnes led the winners with a triple and two singles which drove in two runs.

Louis' CarStripped Of All But Gears In Harlem

New York, June 26 (U.P.).—More than 30 police were required to restore order during the riotous welcome at the Theresa Hotel in Harlem last night when Joe Louis returned there from his conquest of Jersey Joe Walcott at Yankee Stadium.

Louis remained a virtual prisoner in his automobile in front of the hotel for a half hour while the jubilant crowd of more than 5000 admirers jammed and yelled about him.

In a frenzied desire for souvenirs, the rejoicers tore the hood off his auto, broke the windows, tore off the tires, and danced on the car top.

When the retired champion finally gained the hotel, he appeared on a second-floor balcony and implored the merry-makers to go home before someone was seriously injured.

Fight Sidelights

Gov. Dewey Among Louis' 1st Well-Wishers; Auto Plant's Wildcat Strike Linked to Bout

New York, June 26 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis opened the first day of his announced retirement today with a round of golf.

Before departing for the golf course, Louis paused to read several telegrams congratulating him on last night's successful title defense when he knocked out Jersey Joe Walcott in the eleventh round.

One of the first congratulatory messages to arrive was from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, who passed up the fight to rest from his hard week at the Philadelphia convention. It read:

"Heartiest congratulations on a most skillful and scientific defense of your title. You are the champion of them all."

Strike Linked to Fight

Flint, Mich., June 26 (AP).—A union official admitted today that last night's Louis-Walcott fight "perhaps had something to do with" a wildcat strike at a Fisher Body auto plant.

A group of Fisher workers failed to return to their jobs after a lunch period that ended at exactly the time the fight began.

This led Fisher to send home an additional 1500 employes. Buick, another General Motors division, sent 1300 other workers home a short time later because of a car body shortage.

Lawrence A. Huber, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, Fisher Local 581, said the strike involved a disciplinary layoff given two employes for failing to meet increased production standards.

"But perhaps the Louis-Walcott fight had something to do with it," he added.

Writer Picks Round

New York, June 26 (AP).—Of the 282 sports writers who made a guess on the outcome of the Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott fight in an Associated Press poll last month, only one was able to hit the exact round.

He was Russ Newland of the San Francisco bureau of the Associated Press, who named No. 11 as the round in which he thought Louis would defeat his foe.

While a large mapority of those voting favored Louis—it was 230 to 52—most of them thought the champion would end it in the earlier rounds.

Four who came close in that particular poll were Sam Siciliano of the Asbury Park (N. J.) Evening Press; Joseph P. Val of the New York World Telegram, Bill Lucas of Tucson (Ariz.) Daily Citizen and Ed Lisle of the Dubuque, Iowa, Telegraph Herald, who picked Louis in the ninth.

Of the boxing writers on the scene who were asked their opinion this week on the fight, none picked the right round although 77 voted.

Jack Hand, member of the New York Associated Press staff, came closest. He picked Louis in the tenth.

Prince James, Peter O'Day Set Records at Laurel Track

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The second largest crowd of the meeting, an estimated 10,000, was treated to record-breaking performances in both trotting and pacing last night at Laurel Raceway.

In the feature race, Prince James, a beaten 7-5 favorite in his last start, was clocked in track-record time of 2:07 in the mile pace.

Driven by Alan Myer, the 6-year-old gelding beat off Edgar Hanover by a length and returned $7.60. And it was Brother Willie Myer who held the reins on the runnerup.

Peter O'Day, an 8-year-old trotter, was the short-lived holder of the track standard. In the third race, the Eyler stepper went a mile in 2:07 1/5.

The Saturday night bettors sent $143,389 through the windows, second largest total of the meeting. It might have come closer to the opening night sum of $167,096, but a sudden storm came up before the last race and set thousands scurrying.

Peter O'Day turned in his excellent performance against the smallest fieid of the meeting. Only three horses opposed him in the third race and, for the first time, there was no show betting.

At the outset, it looked like he was out of it. The 8-year-old gelding broke his trotting gait shortly after the start and trailed by a good 30 lengths.

Kerr Scott, at 5 to 1, got off well and led his nearest pursuer, Seattle Dean, by three lengths at the half-way point.

But cagey Joe Eyler, Thurmont, Md., driver who's one of the top amateurs in the harness sport, got Peter O'Day to trotting again and rapidly closed ground. In a thrilling stretch drive, he passed Seattle Dean to win by three quarters of a length.

The starts were noticeably better than they'd been all week but two cantankerous trotters refused to go off in the fifth race. Miss Quite Sure, jr., and Hanover Scout, the latter a grizzled 15-year-old veteran, were the offenders and Starter Dave Hoyer ordered them scratched.

Then, when Wilson Hanover and So Clever broke gait early, it paved the way for an upset victory by the Klio, who returned $25 for $2.

Weseley and Rodgers Victors In All-Washington Net Final

Charleston, W. Va., June 26 (AP).—The top-seeded players won both ends of the Middle Atlantic Junior and Boys Tennis Tournament here today.

All four of the finals contestants were from Washington, D. C.

Edwin Weseley lost a love set to Jack Yates before getting into his stride and taking the junior title, 0—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—1.

Yates had no trouble taking the first set, but Weseley later gained control to send the ball to alternate sides of the court and to keep Yates away from the net. The boys are next-door neighbors in Washington.

Ted Rodgers also had to come from behind to win the boys' title from Tim Coss, 7—5, 6—2. Coss held a 4-1 advantage in the first set, but finally faded before Rodgers' forcing game.

Weseley, Yates, Rodgers and Ray Lewis, also of Washington, left to participate in the National Interscholastic Tennis Tournament opening at Charlottesville, Va., Monday.

Coss will play in the Susquehanna Valley Tournament at Harrisburg.

Florida Football Star Tries Baseball

Indianapolis, June 26 (AP).—Bobby Forbes, University of Florida football and baseball star, worked out briefly with the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association today.

"He looks very good," Manager Al Lopez of the Indians said. Lopez said there was no talk of contracts. He said Forbes would remain with the Indians about a week.

Junior 4-Ball Opens Monday at Charlotte

Charlotte, N. C., June 26 (AP).—The first annual national four-ball Junior Golf Tournament opens at Charlotte's Myers Park golf course Monday for four days' of play.

Already entered are teams from Florida, North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Texas, and tournament officials said tonight that 20 teams may take the field for the opening round.

Dodd Runs 4:08.8 Mile

Mondschein Takes Big Lead In Final Decathlon Tryouts

Bloomfield, N. J., June 26 (AP).—Irv Mondschein, New York University's tireless competitor, piled up an imposing total of 4187 points today to take the first day lead in the final Olympic decathlon tryouts.

Mondschein's performance, which was but five points under the first-day score Glenn Morris tallied on his way to the 1936 Olympic championships for the United States, made him the standout contender for the National A.A.U. championship he is defending today and tomorrow on Foley Field.

The top three finishers will comprise the U. S. Olympic team.

Sandwiched between today's five events before 1000 spectators was a special invitation mile race won by Gil Dodds, the bounding Boston minister, in the best outdoor time of the season in America, a sparkling 4:08.8.

Howard Runner Fourth

Dodds looked impressive as he won by 125 yards from Carl Joyce, the Seton Hall Prep schoolboy. Phil Thigpen of Seton Hall College was third and Jim Booth of Howard University, fourth.

Thigpen stuck with Dodds through a 59.2 quarter and a 2:01 half, but the Boston A.A. star kept moving away with a 3:04 three quarters.

At the Olympic distance of 1500 meters Dodds was clocked in 3:51.1. Dodds was handicapped by a brisk wind and a track made soggy by heavy rains. He was pleased with his tune-up race for the national AAU championships and Olympic semifinals in Milwaukee next weekend.

In the grueling decathlon competition, Mondschein won the high jump and broad jump and easily exceeded his first day's score of 3891 in 1947 when he won the title for the third time.

Scores Heavily in High Jump

His leap of 5 feet 5 inches in the high jump gave him the sparkling total of 1013 points for that event, one of the highest single event scores in this country in many years. However, tomorrow's five events—the 100-meter hurdles, discus, pole vault, javelin and 1500-meter run—are Mondschein's weak points.

Floyd Simmons of Charlotte, N. C., representing the Los Angeles A. C., leaped 6 feet 4 inches to place second in the high jump and with evenly turned performances in the other four events—the 100 meters, broad jump, shot and 400 meters—piled up 3383 points for second spot at the end of the day's grind.

Third was the Pacific Coast schoolboy sensation, Bob Mathias of Tulane (Calif.) High School, with 3833. John Voight of the Baltimore Olympic Club was fourth with 3812 while Al Lawrence of the Los Angeles A. C. was fifth with 3786. Jim Roberson Indiana University's powerful weight man was sixth with 3692.

Georgetown's Mitchell 12th With 3392 Points

Bloomfield, N. J., June 26.—Georgetown University's Bill Mitchell was twelfth in the point standings at yesterday's decathlon competition, scoring 3392. He tied for fourth in the 100-meter dash and finished eighth in the shot-put trials, tossing the iron ball 139 feet 2⅛ inches.

Gleeson Leads A. A. Bat Race

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Milwaukee's Jim Gleeson, one-time National Leaguer with the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati, retained the American Association batting lead during the week with a lusty .388 clip.

Kansas City's Joe Muffoletto remained in second place with .373, nine points ahead of his teammate, Al Rosen, with .364.

Jack Heid Paces Olympic Cyclists

Milwaukee, June 26 (AP).—Jack Heid of Westwood, N. J., finished first in the 1000-meter unpaced event of the U. S. Olympic bicycle tryouts today.

A heavy shower halted the 1000-meter match race series. The race will be held Sunday morning. Other events tomorrow include the 1000-meter unpaced race, and the 1000-meter match race.

Majeto Turns In First Victory of Year at Charles Town

Wins at Aqueduct

Stymie Adds 19,750 to His Money Total

Aqueduct, N. Y., June 26 (AP).—The aging Stymie, an equine counterpart of Joe Louis, bided his time before applying the crusher with a stretch surge that won today's Aqueduct Handicap by a nose.

Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' world money-winning champion got up right at the end of the mile and a sixteenth test to prevail over Harry La Montagne's filly Conniver, winner of her last three starts. James V. Tigani's Double Jay was third, four lengths behind.

A $4.10 for two choice in the $25,000 added stake, which grossed $28,800, Stymie added $19,750 to his fabulous earnings to make his total $883,385. He was timed in a so-so 1:45 2/5 under 130 pounds, two less than the burden he carried to victory in the same fixture a year ago.

A comparatively light weekend throng of 28,667 saw the one-time $1500 plater run one of his typical races under Bobby Permane, who had to work as hard as Stymie in order to gain the hairline verdict.

In climbing up another rung on the golden ladder toward his goal of becoming the first millionaire horse in history, Stymie scored his thirty-fourth triumph in 123 starts. The 7-year-old chestnut charger was back in the caboose position early, as usual, and his characteristic bid on the outside of the game Conniver came in the nick of time.

Blue Border In Front

Blue Border, an entry with Coincidence—the latter hero of this stake two years ago—broke in front and led Double Jay by a narrow margin before wilting around the last bend.

Double Jay, which had not run since taking a bad beating in Pimlico's Dixie Handicap and emerging with a wrenched ankle, gained a narrow advantage nearing the home turn. Conniver by that time had spurted to second, while Stymie had forged into fifth position.

Once they straightened for the long run to the wire, it became strictly a duel between the tenacious filly and the veteran former plater.

Their heads bobbed together right down to the end but Stymie, with a final desperate lunge under Permane's all-out urging, stuck his famous nose in front.

Double Jay was an easy third over Lets Dance, which was followed by Coincidence, Tide Rips (whose usual speed was missing) and a fagged-out Blue Border.

Fervent Wins In Equipoise

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Fervent raced to a nose victory in the $33,800 Equipoise mile before 24,326 at Arlington Park today, with Mighty Story second and Loujac third in a field of 11.

Fervent, owned by Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, was coupled with Faultless and covered the mile in 1:35 1/5. The entry went to the pert favorite and returned $5.20, $3.20 and $2.40. Mighty Story paid $5 to place and $3.20 to show, while the show price on Loujack, coupled with Eternal Reward, was $4.

Collondra Bats Team to Victory

Benny Collondra homered with two on, hit two doubles and a single and drove in six runs as Turf and Grid won its ninth straight, a 16-to-0 triumph over the Artisans yesterday at Fairlawn.

Pitchers Ray Divers and Jack Dugan shut out the losers with three hits. The game was a Merrick Boys Club League affair.

Bowling Benefit Is Set Today

Hi-Skor Alleys will hold a full handicap bowling tournament today at 2 p. m. which will benefit Mrs. Bert Lynn, wife of a veteran area bowler. Mrs. Lynn last fall was stricken with a heart ailment.

Entry fee for the $50 first prize tourney will be three dollars. More than 150 men and women entrants are expected.

Favored Army Belle Finishes 2d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 26. The locally owned Majeto, a 5-year-old mare who won seven races last year, turned in her first success of 1948 today. Performing in the colors of S. B. Webb, Majeto led virtually all the way in the featured Brunswick Purse and came into the wire a length in advance of F. E. Westenberger's Army Belle. In third position came Martin and Early's Spikery to be third in the field of eight.

With Army Belle, Jockey Sammy Palumbo up, installed the favorite, Majeto returned a $9.60 mutuel and was clocked in 1:26 4/5 for the about 7 furlongs over a fast track.

Majeto was excellently handled by Apprentice Jennings Ulmer, a 16-year-old Elloree, S. C., youth who left after the race to fly to his home where his brother, killed in action overseas, will be reburied.

Broke on Top

There was no catching Majeto today. The mare broke from the No. 1 post position and was in close quarters going into the first turn. However, young Ulmer sticked his mount and she came through to go out to a good lead.

Army Belle, Double Reward and Spikery kept close up along the backstretch. In the final drive, Army Belle rallied to be wearing down the leader approaching the wire.

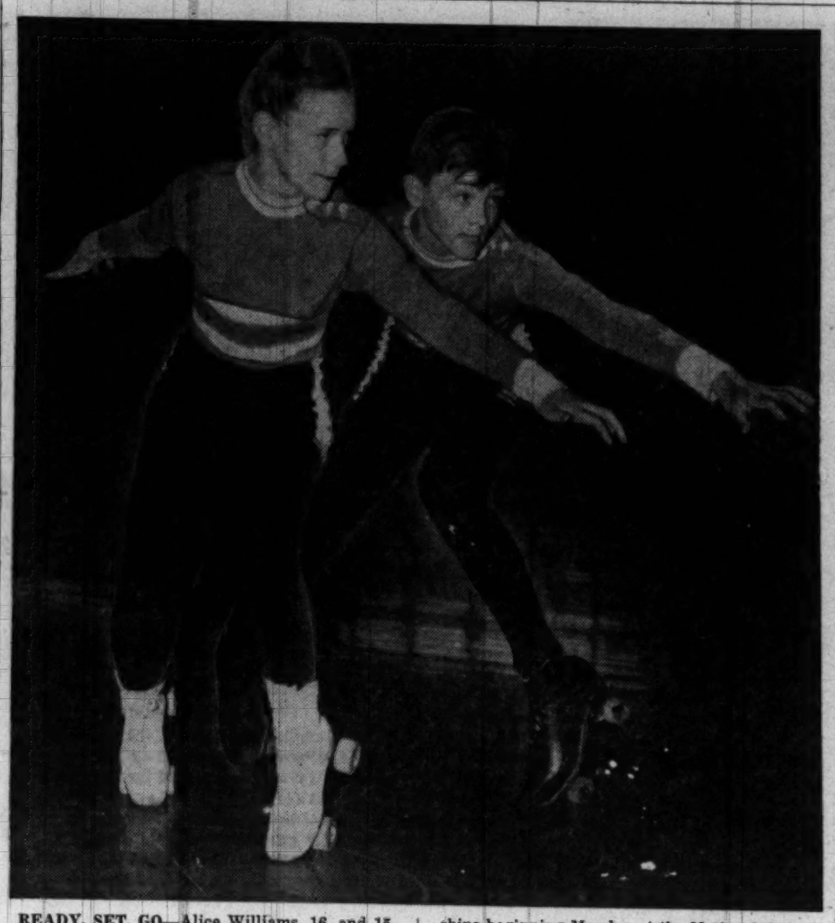
Palumbo's winning streak of six straight winners came to an abrupt ending in the fourth race. He was aboard Mrs. D. N. Lee's Pharant. He appeared to give all the help possible but the big gelding was out of the money, the winner going to Freddie Kratz aboard Mrs. R. Nolker's Knights Hurry, a $22.20 shot.

Kendrick Horse Wins

Jockey W. Billingsley made the daily double of $37.80 a personal proposition. He won the first race with E. J. Picard's Argos, a $3.60 favorite and then came back to triumph with H. G. Tonkin's Niknot, at an $8.60 mutuel.

The Washington (D. C.) colors of Wayne Kendrick were borne to victory in the fifth race, a purse affair. Psychic Fancy, strongly handled by Jockey C. Martinez, slipped through on the inside entering the stretch to turn in a $13.80 win. H. W. Shaffer's Flying Raid was second and J. J. Ring's Danger Girl was third.

The winner was clocked in :49 2/5 for the about 4½ furlongs.



READY, SET, GO—Alice Williams, 16, and 15-year-old Bruce Brown are poised for the start of the AAU National Roller Skating Championships beginning Monday at the National Arena. Both are local youngsters who will compete in the racing division

Bogley Enters Net Nationals

Gil Bogley of Landon School will travel to Charlottesville, Va., tomorrow—to pick up another tennis trophy—he hopes.

The 17-year-old Washington court ace is top-seeded entrant in the National interscholastic champship tournament which opens there Monday. With him goes Schoolmate Jack Yates, who will team with Bogley in doubles play.

Lask week Bogley, who has been winning tennis titles since he was 13, easily won the Manursing Club private school singles crown at Rye, N. Y. His victory there over the Hill (Pa.) School ace avenged one of two team losses suffered by Landon this season. Landon's other loss was to the Princeton Freshman.

The Bogley-Yates doubles team won the title at Longlsland and is highly favored in the Charlottesville tourney.

Jersey City Rookie's .349 Leads Batters

New York, June 26 (AP).—Don Mueller, rookie Jersey City Giant outfielder, tops the field in the close battle for International League batting honors today.

Mueller replaced Rochester's Frank Gravino as the leading batter although his average dropped from .350 to .349. Gravino slumped from .351 to .342 and fell to fourth place. The figures include games of Wednesday.

Buffalo's Anse Moore jumped from twelfth to second place, raising his mark from .313 to .347. Howie Moss of Baltimore is third at .343.

Rounding out the top ten are Glen Nelson, Rochester, fifth, .335; Johnny Groth, Buffalo, .333; Ed Kazak, Rochester, and Al Giordiddo, Montreal, .318; Jim Bloodworth, Montreal and Johnny Welaj, Toronto, .312.

Mueller also has collected the most hits, 81. Groth has scored the most runs, 55 and whacked the most triples, 7.

Chet Laabs leads in homers with 20 and also has driven in the most runs, 56.

Bisons Buy Hurler

Buffalo, N. Y., June 26 (AP).—The Buffalo Bisons of the International League announced the purchase of Russ Meers, left-handed pitcher, formerly with the Chicago Cubs, from Shreveport of the Texas League.

Grays, Cubans In Twin Bill

Halted by rain three times during the week, Washington's Homestead Grays play the New York Cubans a double-header today at Griffith Stadium at 2 p. m., in a renewal of their drive for the first-half championship in the Negro National League

The Cubans, 1947 pennant winners, are now under a new pilot. Gus Welch, former manager of the Birmingham Barons, and have revised their lineup. Welch has an infield of Lorenzo Cabrera, first; Sherwood Brewer, second; Orteste Minoso, shortstop, and Pedro Ballester, third.

In the outfield are Sam Wheeler, Cleveland Clarke and Juan Leon. The pitchers include Dave Barnhill, who hurled a 4-hit victory over the Grays in his last appearance here; Al Newkirk, former N. Y. Black Yankee righthander; Jim Jenkins. Paul Lopez, Jose Santiago and Wilfredo Salas.

Still leading the loop by a 1½ game margin, the Grays hope to increase the advantage at the expense of the Cubans and will send Red Fields and Bob Thurman to the mound.

Hudson Solid Choice Over Smug Tomorrow

The brief and fairly sensational reign of Smuggy Hursey as Washington's favorite middleweight figures to end tomorrow night when "The Smug" takes on Cecil Hudson in the scheduled 10-round main event at Griffith Stadium.

Liberty Athletic Club, promoting the show, lists Hudson as an 8-5 favorite but the suspicion is that more accurate odds would be 5-1.

While Hursey has been pushed around somewhat shamefully in his last bouts, Hudson, a campaigner from San Jose, Calif., has steadily improved his division rating.

Topped by an upset victory over Jake LaMotta, his record includes a pair of decisions over speedy Tommy Bell and single wins over such as Ossie Harris; Izzy Jannazzo, Henry Jordan and Jimmy McDaniel.

Hudson's appearance at Griffith Stadium, it is claimed by promoters, is solely due to the fact no other top-flight middleweight wants to meet Hursey in Washington. Such as Lavern Roach, Pete Mead and Bert Lytell refused to face the local boy, it is claimed, until Hudson displayed rare bravery.

The fact is Hursey has frightened very few opponents recently. The ace who beat Aaron Perry, Bee Bee Washington and knocked out Danny Kapilow with one punch has suffered a succession of setbacks this year. Outstanding was his meeting with Anton Raadik, in which Hursey lost a split decision to the man was barely beaten by Marcel Cerdan.

Tomorrow's supporting show offers two six rounders involving Al Wright vs. John Hansbury, middleweights; and Kid Willie vs. Pug Lyons, lightweights. One four-rounder pairs Jackie Ford vs. Jim Hawkins, lightweights, while two more will be announced.

Washington Enters 'Brooklyn Against World' Series

How About Mack?

McKechnie's Too Old, Say Tribe Scribes

Cleveland, June 26.—Thought you'd like to know:—Cleveland baseball writers are getting soft. Used to be a time they demanded—and usually got—the scalp of the Indian manager whenever the Tribe skidded . . . Now they're slanting their attacks against third base Coach Bill McKechnie. Because he's 61 and wears glasses, he's unsuited to direct Tribe traffic, they say . . . Critisicm started when two Indian runners were thrown out at the plate in the recent Yankee series . . . Season's not even half over yet, but Cleveland needs only about 30,000 customers for tomorrow's double-header to hit the million mark in attendance.

Nat Manager Joe Kuhel was 42 Friday and his son, 10-year-old Joey, sent pop the following telegram: "Congratulations. You told me life begins at 40 so I lit two candles on a cake for you today." . . . Business was good for former Tiger Outfielder Hubbie Walker in Detroit Friday. He sold new cars to five Nats, who are driving them to Washington. The caravan includes Eddie Yost, Gil Coan, Al Evans, Sid Hudson and Ray Scarborough . . . former Nat Gerry Priddy is hitting .302 against his old teammates in St. Louis and does he love it.

Rookie Catcher Len Okrie of the Nats comes from a baseball family. He has two brothers in the minors and his father pitched for Detroit 28 years ago. . . . Tony Baker, 9-year-old Washington southpaw who frequently performs at Griffith Stadium, will show Clevelanders his stuff July 17 as one of the features of the Detroit-Cleveland oldtimers game. . . . Nice Guy Joe Kuhel can assume a get tough attitude also, as a Chicago hotel manager will attest. . . . When the hotel asked Kuhel to please vacate his room a bit early in order that it could be prepared for Joe McCarthy, due to arrive that evening, Kuhel told him: "Listen, Mr., we're in the American League, too."

Race Track Bus Service Authorized

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday authorized establishment of bus service to the Hagerstown and Laurel race tracks and immediate changes in the terminal loops of three District lines.

Blue and Gray Motor Tours, Inc., will be permitted to run between Washington and Hagerstown during the racing season August 3 to 13. Atwood's Transport Lines will operate similarly between Washington and Laurel from September 30 to October 28.

The local changes affect the Sheriff rd., Capital View and Benning Heights bus lines and will result in the erection of a terminal waiting stand for passengers on the three lines on the east side of Anacostia ave. at Benning rd. ne.

The buses previously used a turn-around loop at 34th st. and Benning rd. ne., but the loop is no longer available, the firm told the PUC. The new routes follow:

Sheriff rd.—U-4, outbound from the terminal on the east side of Anacostia ave. to Benning rd., east on Benning to Minnesota ave., north on Minnesota to Sheriff, east to the terminal at the intersection of Sheriff with Division and Eastern aves.; inbound, from the Sheriff rd. terminal west on Sheriff to Minnesota, south to Benning rd., west to 34th st., south to Dix st., west to Anacostia ave., north on Anacostia to the Benning rd. terminal.

Capital View and Benning Heights lines, outbound from the Anacostia ave. terminal, north on Anacostia to Benning rd., east on Benning and Central ave. to 53d pl. to the terminal; inbound, west on East Capitol st., Central ave. and Benning rd. to 34th st., south on 34th to Dix st., west to Anacostia and the terminal.

Britain's Jockey Champ Rides Again—to Victory

Chepstow, England, June 26 (AP).—Gordon Richards, Britain's champion jockey, triumphantly returned to the saddle today after a 17-day layoff because of an injury. He rode the 2-year-old The Only Way to victory in the Merthyr Plate.

Richards suffered rib bruises when thrown at Brighton on June 9.

By winning on the 2-to-1 favorite, Richards also broke a long losing streak. It was his seventy-fifth victory of the season and the 3556th of his career.

Clark Skeet Shoot

Hot Springs, Va., June 26 (AP).—The twelfth annual Clark challenge trophy skeet shoot will be held at Hot Springs Saturday and Sunday, July 31 and August 1.

D. C. Juniors To Be Picked This Week

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

For the first time, a Washington junior sandlot baseball team will participate in the "Brooklyn Against the World" series.

On the night of July 12 a 15-man Washington squad, sponsored by The Washington Post, will play Brooklyn at Ebbetts Field.

Then on July 27 Brooklyn will play in Washington, probably at Griffith Stadium.

You District sandlot fans will have an important part in picking the local squad. You should write your selections to The Sandlot Baseball Editor, Sports Department, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C.

Your lists must be in the mail no later than Wednesday midnight.

Squad To Be Named Saturday

They will be considered by a committee of the top junior sandlot experts. On the committee are Vic Guazza and Bill Flester, president and vice president of the Washington Amateur Baseball Association, Jim Munro, H. S. Heinie, Marshall Jacobs, Joe Branzell and John Phelps, managers of teams in the Junior City League.

To be eligible, a player must not have reached his nineteenth birthday by July 1, 1948. Players in the American Legion program are not eligible. Names of the squad members will be announced in The Washington Post Saturday morning.

According to Bill Aud The Washington Post-Industrial League statistician, Joe Francis, Cameo outfielder, led the first-half league batters with a .638 batting average for eight games. Joe Valenti of Heurich led in stolen bases with eight, and Bernie Good of Naiman's in home runs with three. . . . The Nats, who have undertaken a more energetic scouting survey of the Washington area this season, have signed Charlie Kiesgen, former Coolidge High first baseman. Kiesgen has been assigned to Emporia Class D club of the Virginia State League. He joins two other local boys there, Shortstop Allan Shaw, formerly of Coolidge, and Second Baseman Bill Torrey formerly of Woodrow Wilson. . . . The Georgetown team of the Junior City League plays Mount Vernon All-Stars July 6 in a night benefit game at Mount Vernon High Stadium in Alexandria. Proceeds go toward sending Alexandria youngsters to the Police Boys Club summer camp in Kilmarnock, Va. The game is sponsored by the Sportsman's Association of Alexandria. On the Mount Vernon team are such players as Reggie Crump and Gordon Miller, who pitched for V.P.I. this spring. The Georgetown team has three Alexandrians on its team, Catcher Bobby Via and Pitcher Buddy Zehring and Bob Hooker.

Mount Vernon High Stadium also will be the scene July 2-5 of the National Baseball Congress tournament district playoffs for Northern Virginia. Seven teams are already entered with an eighth to be picked.

Winner of the district tourney will participate in the State tourney in Charlottesville, Va., July 14-15. After that comes the regional, also slated for Charlottesville. And finally in mid-August, comes the national tournament in Wichita, Kans.

Teams already entered in the Northern Virginia playoff are Falls Church, Fort Belvoir, Lorton, Forestville, Chantilly, Fairfax and Alexandria V.F.W.

Flying Clouds Top Firemen

Anacostia Naval Base's Flying Clouds yesterday found a sponsor, McKee Pontiac, and celebrated by whipping the Mount Vernon Fire Department, 4-2, at Anacostia.

Cloud Hurler Shorty Boedecker scattered seven hits while fanning 13 and Teammate Red Whittaker walloped a two-run homer in the eighth inning.

Horsemen Ask Maryland's Tracks for $8200 Daily

Baltimore, June 26 (AP).—The Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association will ask all Maryland half-mile tracks to keep a minimum purse of $1000 and to provide at least $8200 daily, Vice President John A. Manfuso said today.

Manfuso, representative for the Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia area, made the statement after announcing the association had rejected a proposal that the minimum purse at the Hagerstown race track be dropped to $800.

The track at Cumberland opens Maryland's half-mile circuit July 20. From there the racers move to Hagerstown, Marlboro, Timonium and Bel Air.

Marlboro, which was criticized by the Maryland racing commission for the conditions of its grounds and buildings, was granted a license for the season after it showed the commission contracts for rebuilding its plant.

Plans for improving the Marlboro track include tearing down its 34-year-old grandstand and building a new clubhouse, and administration building all under one roof. The new structure will seat 3500 persons, compared with the present 600 capacity.

Manfuso said the association also had urged an improvement program at the Charles Town, W. Va., track. Last week racing was called off for the day after two mounts slid into the rail on successive days.

Going Fishing?

Here are some DOs and DON'Ts. The Red Cross had these models give fairly convincing demonstrations of what not to do. Remember, it pays to play it safe. At top, the little lady appears to have hooked the wrong poor fish. If a hook is embedded in the flesh, seek a doctor's care immediately. It's hard to get it out and you run the risk of having it break off. The middle picture is a good example of how not to net your fish. Wait until the fish is pulled to the boat. Proving you have to keep up your guard from beginning to end, the gal, in the bottom picture, is stepping on the dock the hard way. Don't. There's many a slip 'twixt boat and dock

Marlin Caught At Ocean City

Ocean City, Md., June 26 (AP).—The first white marlin of the season was brought into this ocean resort yesterday. It was caught by Paul K. Thompson of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

The marlin weighed 72½ pounds and measured 8 feet 1½ inches.

Thompson said the fish made only one jump.

For bringing in the first of its kind this season, Thompson received several prizes, which include having the fish mounted.

Stranahan Favorite in British Open

Muirfield, Scotland, June 26 (AP).—With the British Open golf championship tournament only two days off, America's Frank Stranahan was more feared and respected than any amateur since Bobby Jones achieved his grand slam in 1930.

Frank, handsome Hercules from Toledo, Ohio, admitted after a practice round that "I'm playing real good." And Frank isn't one who ordinarily confesses excellence. Usually he moans over one or two imperfect strokes.

Today his shots looked even crisper and truer than they did a month ago when he fought through a rainstorm to win the British Amateur championship.

Outdrives Harmon

In a parctice round over the Muirfield course, scene of the championship which begins Monday, Frank was outdriving Claude Harmon, Augusta Masters tourney winner, and hardhitting Lawson Little. Over the first nine Stranahan played two and sometimes three balls to broaden his exploration of the course.

Coming home he stuck to one ball and carded a 35.

Yesterday he shot a 69—one over par and the equal of the amateur record set by Little back in his own simon-pure days. The professional record of 67 was set by Walter Hagen.

One reason Frank is respected is his record in last year's Open. He finished second, one stroke behind Irishman Fred Daly—and Stranahan had to play the last 18 in a terrific wind while Daly, an early starter, was spared.

Stranahan was to have played in a four-ball exhibition this afternoon at near-by North Berwick but he arranged to get out of it so he could tour Muirfield once more.

Course Closer

The championship course will be closed tomorrow for a final barbering. The greens especially need trimming.

Harmon, Little, Jimmy Thomson and Johnny Bulla, All-American professionals, rank with Stranahan as first class candidates to carry the championship across the Atlantic.

Harmon is on his first trip over here but he is not awed either by the course or the damp and chilly Scottish weather.

He opines "It's a good course, especially for a driver," and he finds the weather "is about the same as we get on the Florida Coast in the winter."

The field of 285 will play two qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday—one round over the championship course and one at nearby gullane. The 100 best scorers then will start afresh for 72 holes. They will play 18 holes Wednesday and 18 more Thursday. Then the 40 lowest scorers will play the final 36 holes on Friday.

Ray Robinson Reiterates He'll Quit Welters After Monday Tilt

Chicago, June 26 (AP).—Welterweight Champion Ray (Sugar) Robinson reiterated today that his scheduled 15-round bout at Comiskey Park Monday night against Bernard Docusen "will be my last welter title defense."

Robinson will enter the middleweight bracket and hopes to get a crack at Tony Zale's crown.

"It's too tough a job to try to make the 147-pound limit," declared the Harlem sugar boy.

The title scrap with the young New Orleans contender has been postponed twice by a combination of poor weather and Robinson's failure to shed excess poundage.

Robinson, disappointed that he could not attend the Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott fight in New York—sparred four rounds last night then settled in front of a radio to hear the championship bout.

After the snappy four rounds against two sparring mates, Robinson's handlers said he weighed 149½. He and Docusen will officially weigh in again Monday noon.

Sheldon Clark, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, said if Robinson failed to make the stipulated 147 pounds his title would be declared vacant and the champion would forfeit $5000 in weight bonds.

Potomac Hunt Show Draws Classy Field

A large number of exhibitors are expected to attend the annual horse show of the Potomac Hunt Club today at Potomac, Md.

In the open jumping division many of the topflight performers in the East will be on hand, such as the Baltimore entries, George Fitzpatrick's Party Miss and Kaywoodie, Helen Eichelberger's My First Night and Sedgefire, and Charles Gartrell's Reno Kurd.

The local area will be strongly represented by Robert C. Lee's Bonne Fille (last week's Manassas champion), Samuel Bogely's consistent Ringmaster, Alden Crane's Tar Lac, Avon Shockey's Red Knight and Fred Hughes, jr.,'s Stuart. The Virginia contingent will be headed by Viarwood Stable's well-known Hi-Jack, Altitude, Sen Satin, and Temptation.

The strong well-proportioned card for the hunter division will bring from Baltimore George Di Paula's champion working hunter Post Meridian, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Kee's Firetrap, last year's winner of Duration Farm Challenge trophy presented to the champion hunter, C. Lamarre Creswell's Lucretia B. and Balkonian.

Local entries will include Charles Carrico's consistent winner, Refrain, Stanley Jones' Miles City, Ray Norton's Canadian Breeze Mrs. Richard Hawkins' Yardstick, Claude Owen's newly acquired Northern winner, Sky's Image, and Crucifino, George Mueller's steady veteran, Ballela, and "Skippy" Hughes' San D.

From Virginia the strong Ballantrae stable will send The Squire Biddy-the-Imp, Teufelleur, and Jeb-Stuart; Gene Cannon's Golden Belle and Golden Nellie, and Peyton Ballenger's Brandon King also are expected to be in the exhibitors' circle.

The show is scheduled to start promptly at 10 a. m. (DST) and may be reached by following River Road to Potomac, Md., and then following the show signs to the kennels.

Kavakos Plays At Stadium

Kavakos Grill will attempt to unseat the New York Grummans from the American Softball League Conference lead in a double-header at Griffith Stadium next Saturday afternoon.

The twin bill will mark Kavakos' first home appearance since the scrappy local team joined the big-time softball league this summer.

Kavakos' opponent has been the Middle Atlantic championship team for the past three years and also holds the Central Atlantic title. The New York club is on top of the loop now, with Kavakos a close second.

Hurler for the Grummans will be Jim Champers, who holds a strikeout record of 40 men in 18 innings. Kavakos will start Jack Smith.

Other clubs in the A. L. Softball Conference are Stratford, Conn.; Plainfield, N. J.; Wilmington, Del., and Bayonne, N. J.

Riegel Wins 2d Trans-Miss Golf Crown

Kansas City, June 26 (AP).—The deadly consistency of Robert (Skee) Riegel's long irons and putter brought the colorful amateur champion a 6-and-5 victory over John Kraft of Denver, Colo., in the final of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament today.

In winning his second Trans-Mississippi title, Riegel's game was not brilliant, but the Glendale (Calif.) star had the right shot for every hole on the 6700-yard par 72 Mission Hills Country Club course.

Riegel traveled the 31 holes in one stroke under regulation figures and led 3 up at 18.

The 45-year-old Kraft made a battle of it in the morning round, but on five occasions during the afternoon lagged putts that would have won the hole inches short of the cup. Riegel, seldom on the outside, repeatedly came up with brilliant recoveries.

The Colorado veteran went one up on the fourth hole in the morning when Riegel hooked his tee shot into the trees and was over par, but he had only two more wins coming for the day. He won the sixteenth with a par 4 as Riegel again went one over, and he took the twenty-seventh with another par after Riegel's second shot was made in a sandtrap.

Riegel pulled the prize shot of the twenty-first hole hit 5 inches to the right of the pin and hopped a couple of inches to the left of the cup.

Riegel won the hole with a birdie three to go four up, sank a 10-foot putt for another win, a birdie four, on the twenty-second and marked time to the finish.

Kraft had a three over par 75 for his morning round and finished five strokes over standard figures.

Baksi to Meet Ten Hoff

Hamburg, Germany, June 26 (AP).—Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., and Hein Ten Hoff, German heavyweight boxing champion, have agreed to fight here in late August or early September, Ten Hoff's manager said today.

9 Nations Entered in Henley Races

London, June 26 (AP).—Crack oarsmen of nine nations will churn the waters of the Olympic rowing course next week in the 109-year-old Henley Royal Regatta.

With the Olympic Regatta only a month off, the annual Henley classic drew a record of 150 entries for the 10 events. It starts Wednesday and ends Saturday.

Kent School of Connecticut will defend its title in the Thames Cup for eight-oar crews. They will be challenged by 28 other crews, including Princeton University, which arrived with a 180-pound cedar hull shell.

John B. Kelly of the University of Pennsylvania will not try to repeat his 1947 triumph in the Diamond Challenge sculls. He had to stay in America for the United States Olympic trials.

The other countries represented are Great Britain, Eire, Switzerland, South Africa, Australia, Belgium and Poland, many of whose entries will compete later in the Olympics.

The regatta is rowed on a rare straight mile of the meandering Thames River at the market village of Henley-on-Thames, about 25 miles west of London.

Henley is a quaint, quiet town, with thatched roofs and Tudor style architecture. It gives a visitor the impression he has stepped back into Elizabethan days.

But the city fathers a century ago were an alert bunch. They bought a 100-guinea ($480) cup—named the Grand Challenge Cup—and invited eight-oar crews to bend their blades.

Since then the Henley Regatta has become a classic of the waters.

"U. S. AIR FORCE" is more than a new name

Never in its history has your Air Force faced heavier responsibilities. First line of defense in an unsettled world, it must continue to progress and be ready for instant action.

Today, only the best-fitted prospects are being accepted by the Air Force. But young men who measure up will have a choice of unequaled opportunities. Here they are:

1 By enlisting for three years, you may choose assignment to the U. S. Air Force.

2 If you are a high school graduate, between 17 and 34 years old, the Aviation Career Plan allows you to select and qualify for any one of more than 40 Air Force Specialist Schools before you enlist.

3 Veterans of the Armed Forces who are qualified in one of 300 skills and trades may re-enter service in advanced non-commissioned Air Force grades commensurate with their previous training and experience.

4 You can win your wings with the Aviation Cadets. The world's finest pilot training is open to you if you are single, 20 to 26½ years old, and have completed at least half the credits for a college degree, or can pass an equivalent examination.

High pay . . . excellent training . . . interesting, vital work . . . these, too, are important considerations and strong reasons for launching your career in the Air Force. Complete details on each opportunity are available at U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Stations.

Flood Crest Of Rio Grande Nears Laredo

Laredo, Tex., June 26 (AP).—The crest of the flooding Rio Grande bore down on Laredo today, sending waters washing over the International Bridge on the chief highway to Mexico City.

There were no fresh rains in the lower valley to feed the flood, which virtually isolated Del Rio from highway, rail and wire communication Thursday and Friday. The river started dropping at Del Rio yesterday. It fell 30 feet last night at Eagle Pass, between Del Rio and Laredo, after reaching a flood stage of 45 feet there.

There was general rain today over a wide section farther north and not in the Rio Grande watershed. It extended as far west as Abilene, south to San Antonio and east nearly to Texarkana.

Admiral Sees Bigger Job for Navy in Next War

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 26 (AP).—If America ever has to fight again, Vice Admiral Arthur W. Radford predicted tonight the Navy will have a bigger job on its hands than it has ever had before.

"It will not only dwarf our efforts in World War II, but it will surpass any naval effort in history," Radford said in a talk for the eleventh annual reunion of Navy Clubs. He is vice chief of naval operations.

He pointed out that one of the greatest problems in a future war would be protection of merchant ships which bring in raw materials needed by this country's industry.

Dr. R. G. Mashek of Milwaukee, Wis., was elected national commandant of the organization. Others elected included Robert McCord of Washington, junior executive officer.

Chest X-Ray Survey to End Wednesday

The Washington Chest X-Ray Survey is scheduled to end here on Wednesday, whether you have got your free chest X-ray or not, campaign officials announced last night.

Moreover, said leaders of the mass drive to seek out tuberculosis, working scheduled for the remaining three operating days of the 15 public stations cannot be extended to convenience anyone.

The drive began last January 13, was originally scheduled to end on June 15, but was extended then through Wednesday, June 30. Of an estimated 600,000 Washington residents and workers over 15 years of age, and thereby eligible for the free examinations, about 490,000 had been examined by close of X-ray station hours last night.

Survey workers and leaders are scheduled to meet on Thursday, July 8, with General Chairman William E. Leahy for a tentative summation of the campaign accomplishments. The round-up meeting will be held in the board room, 5th floor, of the District Building at 4 p. m., Leahy said.

Indorsed for Top Party Post

Virginia State Senator Charles R. Fenwick has been unanimously indorsed as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee by the Arlington Democratic Executive Committee.

Local committee backing will be given at the State Democratic Convention July 2 in Richmond. Present State Central Committee chairman, Horace H. Edwards has announced that he will resign the post at the convention.

Fenwick, who lives at 6733 Lee hwy., Falls Church, is frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor in 1949. Now in his first term in the State Senate, he earlier had served in the House of Delegates and in 1945 was an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor.

Million in 'Dope' Lost in Garbage

New York, June 26 (U.P.).—Authorities searched through 20 tons of garbage on a scow today for a one-million-dollar package containing 45 pounds of heroin and cocaine.

Smugglers aboard the liner Marine Perch had arranged for a garbage truck driver to sneak the package off the ship along with the refuse.

But signals got mixed, and the wrong truck driver got the dope. He dumped the load aboard the scow. The precious cargo is now buried somewhere among thousands of pounds of garbage.

MacArthur Asks Funds For 1949-50

Tokyo, June 26 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today submitted a top-secret request for funds to operate United States military and occupation programs in the Far East during the fiscal year 1949-50. Observers here speculated MacArthur's budget might total $2,500,000,000. It also indicated the United States would stay in Japan two more years.

Couriers from the Seventeenth Air Force and the Civil Affairs Department left for Washington with budget estimates. In addition to routine expenses, funds were requested to cover the economic rehabilitation of Japan and Korea, and military building in Guam and the Philippines.

Separate appropriations are being sought for Army and Air Force installations in Japan, Korea, the Ryukyus, the Philippines, Marianas and other outpost areas in the western Pacific.

United States military forces in China are not commanded by MacArthur.

London Dock Strikers Defy Troop Threat

London, June 26 (U.P.).—Striking dock workers gave their leaders an overwhelming vote of confidence today despite a warning that Britain's Labor Government plans to end the walkout with troops.

"Let them send troops," the strikers cried, "we are staying out!"

Soldiers already have moved perishable foods from strike-bound ships and warehouses, but a showdown between the government and the 19,000 strikers is expected Monday. The walkout now is 13 days old.

Some 5000 strikers gathered in Victoria Park today to voice their support of the walkout. Several speakers assured the workers the strike committee is not Communist-dominated. They conceded five members of the committee are Communists, but said 10 are laborites and 27 have no party affiliation.

Arthur Deakin, general secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, warned the strikers again today to return to work, but he was shouted down.

52-Day-Old Bus Strike Is Ended

Cumberland, Md., June 26 (AP).—A 52-day-old strike at the Emory Motor Coach Line here was ended this morning.

Mrs. Margaret W. Kimble, deputy commissioner of the State Department of Labor and Industry, said a "satisfactory adjustment" of the dispute between the firm and its employes was reached and that bus service would be resumed by Wednesday.

The strike began May 5 when 20 employes walked off the job after the company fired three workers. The employes belong to Local 1110, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL).

Terms of settlement were not announced. The line serves northeastern West Virginia and Maryland.

Ship Going Into Storage

Portsmouth, Va., June 26 (AP).—The 45,000-ton battleship Wisconsin will be decommissioned July 1 and stored away as part of Uncle Sam's military reserves. Her colors will be lowered Thursday in ceremonies at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard.

Canadian Expert Due Monday For Polar Defense Studies

By The Associated Press

The two chief military scientists of the United States and Canada will put their heads together here in a three-day meeting starting Monday. Their nations have defense problems in common.

Dr. Omond McKillop Solandt, chairman of the Canadian defense research board, is scheduled to arrive here as a guest of Dr. Vannewar Bush, chairman of the research and development board of the United States military establishment.

In addition to talks between the two scientists — which actually started with a visit to Canada last March by Bush—Dr. Solandt will confer with officials of the Air Force, Army and Navy.

The problems of the two nations, with a view to a defense against attack by way of the Arctic or North Atlantic or Pacific routes, are many.

Currently, a time question is that of establishing a radar "fence" along the northern rim of the continent to give early warning of an approaching attack force. While a start on such a system is understood to have been made, existing radar stations are few and far between and much money and effort will to close gaps in the fence. Dr. Bush was over-all charge of studies by this country for aircraft warning networks.

The Air Force, in addition to its interests in radar operation, has a heavy stake in Arctic defense. Tests and experiments by various types of planes and groups including long-range bombers and jet fighters, have been under way in Alaska and the Far North for more than a year.

Army (as well as aircraft and naval) communications in the Far North have imposed a multitude of technical obstacles which radio and radar scientists of both countries have been studying.

Md. Teacher Slugged in Car, Left on Road

Ellicott City, Md., June 26 (AP).—Fred Fowble, 381year-old Westminster High School teacher, was found unconscious early today on the Old Frederick rd., a few miles from here.

He told police he was slugged and robbed by a young hitchhiker and dumped out of his car.

A passing motorist found Fowble lying on the roadway about 2 a. m.

Fowble told Ellicott City police he was returning to Westminster from Baltimore and picked up the hitchhiker at the city limits.

He said they had driven about a quarter of a mile when he was struck on the head and lost consciousness.

He said that when he came to, he found $4 missing. Police were searching for his car.

The teacher's father, the late George Fowble, was a sheriff of Carroll County.

Arlington County Must Answer to Contempt Charge

The Arlington County Government must defend itself against contempt charges at a court hearing tentatively set for July 8 for failing to grant a building permit to a Washington realty firm.

The Arlington Circuit Court hearing is based on a petition brought by the Garfield I. Kass Realty Co. of Washington, asking that the county be declared in contempt of court.

The dispute began last year when Kass applied for a building permit on a structure he hoped to erect on his property at 3006 Wilson blvd., Arlington. When the county rejected his plans because they called for less than the requisite 40-foot setback from the road, Kass took his case to circuit court. The court, declaring the Kass plans legal under a loophole in the Arlington building code, ordered the county to grant the permit.

New GOP Platform To Be Aired on WINX

"Congress and the New GOP Platform" will be discussed over radio station WINX today at 6:30 p. m. on the "Meet Your Congress" program. Participants will include Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg)., Representative Fred L. Crawford (R., Mich.), Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) and Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.). Blair Moody, Washington newspaper correspondent, will be the moderator.

Nazis Still Hold Power, Says Adviser

Tamiment, Pa., June 26 (AP).—The denazification program in Germany has failed badly, says Dr. Jean Pajus, former adviser to the Foreign Economic Administration.

Speaking at the fourteenth annual conference of the Tamiment Social and Economic Institute, Dr. Pajus said the very people in Germany today are talking about the peace of this world are the same who led us into World War II.

Dr. Pajus formerly was an economics professor at the University of California. The FEA was an advisory board selected by President Truman. Dr. Pajus also was adviser to the United States Treasury Department.

Heinrich Dinkelbach, a prominent Nazi and the man who paid 50 million marks to the Nazi Party, was appointed head of the iron and steel industry of the Ruhr in 1947, Dr. Pajus said. The Nazi banker and general of the SS, Baron Von Schroder, the man who put Hitler in power, was released last year in the British zone, he added.

He declared the cartels and monopolies that have in the past harmed American economy are back again in occupied Germany.

Outside Germany, Dr. Pajus said, the international steel cartel of Luxembourg, established in 1926 by the German heavy industry, is active again. Aloys Meyer, Germany's representative for 20 years in Luxembourg, was allowed to resume his post the day Luxembourg was freed by our troops, he told the several hundred conference guests.

"It is no secret," he continued, "that Heinrich Kost, a prominent cartelist and Nazi since 1932, was made head of coal production in the Ruhr.

"As matters now stand," added Dr. Pajus, "the production of coal has been deliberately kept low and the sabotage is such that at least 20 per cent of Germany's coal output vanishes in the black market."

Colleges to Get Wartime Housing Units in Virginia

Virginia colleges are in line to become owners of wartime housing.

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) said legislation he sponsored at the session just ended would give 933 family units and 1074 individual dormitory units to Virginia institutions.

Robertson said a total of $1,996,000 was spent by the Federal Government to reimburse colleges in Virginia for expenses incurred in moving and re-erecting the housing.

Under the Congress-approved bill, Washington and Lee would become owner of 98 family units; Virginia Tech, 200 family units; the University of Virginia, 391 family and 494 dormitory units; the University of Richmond, 190 dormitory units; William and Mary, 146 dormitory and 128 family units; Bridgewater, 14 family units; Randolph-Macon, Ashland, 200 family units; Virginia State College, 184 dormitory and 6 family units; Emory and Henry, 15 family units, and Shenandoah, Dayton, 60 dormitory units.

Life for Sheriff Slaying

Clintwood, Va., June 26 (AP).—A Dickenson County Circuit Court jury today found Chester Ball guilty of the ambush slaying of Deputy Sheriff Maynard C. Lambert at Nora, Va., on May 8, and fixed his punishment at life imprisonment.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

Pershing to Greet Elks Convention

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP).—Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Forces during World War I, will welcome delegates to the eighty-fourth national Elks convention which opens here July 4.

The address, first public speech by the retired general in years, will be made from his bed at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington.

Pershing's brief greeting will be carried to 950,000 Elks all over the Nation by a radio program.

Diplomats Meet At Garden Parties

IN the garden of the French Attache and Mme. Henri Claudel, last Wednesday, this foursome joined for cocktails. Pretty Miss Beatrice Phillips, daughter of the former Ambassador to Italy, is escorted by Paul Jolles (right), Swiss Attache. On the left is Coun Adam Moltke-Huitfeldt, Secretary of th Danish Embassy, and next to Mr. Jolles i Mme. Fuchs, wife of the Commercial Coun selor of the Swiss Legation

MME. CLAUDEL and her helpmates—Paul, Francois and Marie—are snapped just before the guests arrived for the garden party Wednesday. Paul, who is age 8, was named for his grandfather, former Ambassador Claudel of France. Francois and Marie are 4 and 11. Mme. Claudel wore soft pink to the party, and her children were dressed in crisp white

MME. KOO, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, wears a wreath of daisies and a mandarin jacket with her silk print dress. Here she is being greeted at a reception by Princess Van Waithayakon (right) and the Siamese Ambassador, H. R. H. Prince Wan Waithayakon. The fete was held Thursday in celebration of Siamese National Day

Venezuelans To Entertain Over Fourth

By Elizabeth Maguire

"EVERYBODY'S away," they say, "over the Fourth." At the Venezuelan Embassy, however, a reception will be held on the eve of the Fourth, and the guest list of 500 has grown to 1000 acceptances.

The Ambassador and Senora de Carnevali will receive in the drawing room with their guests of honor, the President of Venezuela, Romulo Gallegos, and Senora de Gallegos. A buffet supper will be served in the dining room and small candlelit tables will be set out in the garden.

ONE of the gayest parties of the past week was given by Henri Claudel, French Attache, and Mrs. Claudel, who entertained in the garden of their house on Woodbine st. Of Greek birth, Mrs. Claudel has exquisite taste which is well reflected in the furnishing of her small house.

Since they could never make the house grand, she explained, they decided to make it "amusing." Her living room has an English spinnet made into a desk, and on the walls are French prints framed in gray. Brown sateen covers the small sofas, and chairs are done in flowered chintz of buttercup yellow and pale green.

Cherry red and chalk white are the decor of the dining room, and polished floors are covered in black linoleum. The house has great chic, and not a few of its pieces were picked up in Third ave. antique shops of New York.

When the Claudels leave for Paris the middle of July, Washington will lose one of its popular couples. A farewell luncheon was given for them on Thursday by Col. and Mrs. Curt C. Schiffeler at the Raleigh Hotel. Guests were the French Counselor, Arnauld Walper, the French Counselor and Mme. Baube, Mme. Bernard, wife of the First Secretary of the French Embassy, and Mrs. Albert Niblack.

A NEW Counselor—Hugh McAnn—has arrived at the Irish Legation, and there is a new Agricultural Attache at the Belgian Embassy, Roger Coustry, who arrived last week.

Paul Jolles, popular Attache at the Swiss Legation, is flying home to Switzerland for a visit the first week in July. The Minister, Charles Bruggman, is also going to Switzerland for a visit. He will sail July 21 from New York, and remain abroad for two months.

The Ambassador of Pakistan, M. A. H. Ispahani, is going to Pakistan for the summer, and Signora Tarchiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador, is sailing for Italy on Monday, accompanied by Mme. Ortona, wife of the First Secretary of the Embassy.

Jean-Claude Winckler, Second Secretary of the French Embassy, and Mme. Winckler, have a new son—their fourth—born June 8 in George Washington University Hospital. The baby is named Henry.

"Have you any news from Iceland" Magnus Magnusson was asked at the Icelandic Legation. "No; but I miss it," he said, mopping his brow in 95 degrees heat.

Miss Elizabeth Blakeney Feted

Mrs. Albert Bassett and her daughter, Miss Betsie Bassett, entertained at luncheon yesterday for Miss Mary Elizabeth Blakeney, a debutante of last season. Miss Bassett, who was among Miss Blakeney's assistants at her debut party, will make her own debut this winter.

Debutantes of this year and last were among the guests. Also guests were Mrs. Charles C. Blakeney, mother of the guest of honor; Mrs. Eberhart Haynes and Mrs. Elmore Cropley.

Congressional Capers:

Trips Back Home Are Planned by Wives of Congress

By Genevieve Reynolds

CONGRESSIONAL plans for the summer are as varied and flexible as quickly made costume jewelry. The spouses of the Nation's lawmakers have sweltered through the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia. Some perspired from ringside seats on the arena platform just behind the speakers' podium. Others gandered at the proceedings from the so-called "buzzards roost" or top gallery. Few, if any, played an overt, active part in the convention powwow.

Martha Taft, wife of the Ohio Senator, did most of her politicking outside Convention Hall. If she put in an appearance there in the past three days no one recognized her. Her plans for the summer are indefinite. She'll return to the home State for a brief stay—then perhaps stump for her party's victory in the November elections.

Mrs. Styles Bridges, wife of the New Hampshire Senator, will abet her husband in his forthcoming campaign in the home State. Blond, blue-eyed, alert Dolores has developed into an able speaker. Home folks will get a sample of her oratory shortly after she and the Senator close the office on Capitol Hill.

Six-foot six-inch Representative Lowell Stockman of Oregon, who was one of the most towering figures at the just concluded GOP conclave, will trail all over Oregon. For that purpose he has just purchased an all-aluminum trailer. In order to sleep comfortably he had a special bed of extended length made. Accompanying him on the campaign stumping will be his dynamic, brown-eyed "missus," Dorcas, and their three children. The convertible trailer will serve as a living room and campaign headquarters by day and a bedroom by night. By profession amiable Lowell is one of those much-heard-of fabulous big ranchers from the Northwest.

Affable Mrs. Raymond Baldwin, who watched every session of the GOP convention, expects to put in a quiet vacation at her Connecticut abode. For one thing, she hopes to have a little refurnishing fun on the 1690 house in Stratford, which she purchased last year.

After jaunting over 20,000 miles via air across the European continent, Mrs. Owen Brewster says that she will be content to breathe "a little cool Maine air." During the GOP convention she honored Senator-nominee Margaret Chase Smith of Maine at a gala buffet supper. In addition, she held another fete for the Maine delegation and the fourth estate.

IT'LL BE A stumping session for Senator and Mrs. Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska. After moth-balling essential wear and cleaning up last minute details on Capitol Hill, they'll head for the home State.

Senator Edward Robertson of Wyoming will be another campaigning to keep his toga for another term. Plugging beside him will be tall, affable Mrs. Robertson.

Senator and Mrs. Harry Cain of Washington will motor out to the West Coast via Milwaukee. They'll stop over in the city for a visit with Harry's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Page Pulliam. Then a reunion with their two children, Candy and Buzzie, will follow in the home State.

Will It Be Philadelphia or Home?

Women Politicos Are Torn Between Scene and Screen

By Marie McNair

NOW THAT the shouting is over for the Republicans, there'll be a slight pause while the stage is being set for the Democratic convention in Philadelphia a fortnight hence.

The women are playing a part in this 1948 Democratic conclave, and there's no one more excited about her role than Mrs. Kenneth Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army, who's a delegate-at-large from her State of North Carolina. She told me her teammate will be Mrs. O. Max Gardner, beloved in Washington when her husband was Undersecretary of the Treasury, and mourned with when he died suddenly on the eve of sailing for his post as American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

Mrs. George Mesta will go as Rhode Island's woman delegate. From the District of Columbia it is reported that the probable feminine representatives will be Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, wife of Newsweek's Washington editor, and Mrs. Kathleen Loucheim. But definite decision on that score will be reached at a meeting on Monday.

STOUT-HEARTED Democrats will fill the hall in Philadelphia when the convention opens July 12, but, from what I can gather, the miracle of television and with it all the comforts of home, will keep a lot of people away.

MRS. McNAIR

Mrs. John W. Snyder, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, who followed the Republican convention by television, is torn between the scene and the screen, can't quite make up her mind about going to the Democratic conclave.

Mrs. James V. Vardaman, wife of the former Naval Aide to the President, says, "I'm going to sit by my fan." She's just back from a trip with her husband, now a member of the Federal Reserve Board, and expects to be here all summer.

Presidential Assistant John Steelman expects to be kept on the job at the White House, with little chance of a look-see at the nominating congress, and so—Emma Steelman plans to stay home, too.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, returning to town today, are making plans to go, as are that handsome pair, the Clark Cliffords—he's the President's Special Counsel.

From Philadelphia Mr. and Mrs. Clifford will return to Washington and about August 1 Margery Clifford will go up to the family summer home at Rye Beach, N. H., where the children will be after the first week in July.

Summertime at Rye Beach has proved too strong a lure for Mrs. John L. Sullivan, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, who left last Monday, and the Secretary, just back from a trip to Chicago, hasn't revealed any plans.

TOWN TOPICS: Bachelor Herschel Johnson, newly appointed United States Ambassador to Brazil, will sail July 2 on the Argentina for Rio. Mrs. James Forrestal, wife of the Secretary of Defense, is planning a European trip the end of the summer to see how her son, Michael, is doing in his job as staff member of Averell Harriman's Economic Cooperation Administration. Young Michael, who is 21, will take up his senior year studies at Princeton in February. Betty Tyson Lyeth, daughter of the George Tysons and niece of Mrs. George Mesta, is making a big hit with her radio program "Betty and the Kids" from Providence, R. I. She spends her entire salary taking the kids who appear on her program to picnics and baseball games. And from the romance department comes word that Bill Tyson—he's Betty's brother—has eyes only for Aileen Patterson, tall, slim daughter of former Secretary of War and Mrs. Robert Patterson.

And—from Mrs. John Grace, jr., in Hinsdale, Ill., the glad tidings that she's a grandmother with the arrival of John Robert Riggs on June 17. The baby is the first for Mr. and Mrs. Richard M[illegible]ison Riggs, the latter the former Katherine Grace. John [illegible]rt is named for his grandfathers—Robert Jennings Riggs, distinguished geologist of Tulsa, Okla., and Comdr. John Grace, jr., of Washington and Hinsdale.

In June Bridal Procession

Immanuel Church on the Hill in Alexandria was the scene yesterday of the marriage of Miss Jane Wyndham Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Janney Martin of that city, to Dr. Jackman Pyre of Tucson, Ariz., son of Mrs. J. F. A. Pyre and the late Professor Pyre of Madison, Wis. Officiating at the ceremony was Dean Alexander G. Zabriskie of the Virginia Theological Seminary.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, trimmed with lace and pearls. Her full-length veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ruth Offt was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Carl O. Lawton, Mrs. Gordon D. Rust, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Selby F. Little and Mrs. Regan Fuller. Augustin Pyre was best man for his brother and ushering were Robert Ayre, James J. Hanks, Gordon D. Rust and Carl O. Lawton.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip to Rehoboth Beach, Del., the couple will reside in Tucson. The bride attended St. Agnes School and Sargent College of Boston University. Dr. Pyre is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin Medical School and a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He served as a major in the Army Medical Corps in the South Pacific.

Richardson—Foote

Miss Ellen Catherine Foote, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Graham Thompcon of Chevy Chase, was married yesterday to Dr. Edward Henderson Richardson, jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Richardson of Baltimore. The ceremony took place in All Souls' Unitarian Church, with the Rev. A. Powell Davies officiating, assisted by the Rev. T. Guthrie Speers.

Dr. Thompson gave the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of white organdy and fingertip length veil of illusion held with a wreath of fresh flowers. Her bouquet was of daises, white delphinium and baby's breath. Dr. Eleanor Delfs was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss C. Amelia Dodson and Miss Barbara Bamman. Serving as best man was James B. Platt, jr., and ushering were Dr. John M. Scott, Edmund P. Scarlett, Dr. R. Houghton Hooker and John K. Gurney. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Maryland and took her master's degree at Mount Holyoke College. Dr. Richardson received his degrees at Princeton University and Johns Hopkins Medical School.

Markwood—Richardson

In the Pilgrim Church at Canaan, Conn., yesterday Miss Mary Pamelia Richardson became the bride of William Francis Markwood, jr. The bride is daughter of Frank B. Richardson of Falls Village, Conn., and Mr. Markwood is son of the late Mr. and Mrs Markwood of Charlottesville, Va. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Russel H. Milnes.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white lace gown and an illusion veil held with a coronet of heirloom lace. Her bouquet was of orchids and roses. Miss Beverly Bowen was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Lynn Markwood, Miss Sue Dunaway, Mrs. James R. Lawler, jr., and Miss Mary Lou McKusick. Robert A. Pancoast served as best man and ushers were Hunter Woodberry, Warner Staley, Allan Gianniny and James R. Lawler jr.

After a wedding trip to North Carolina the couple will reside in Chatham, N. J. The bride is a graduate of Mary Washington College and Mr. Markwood received his degree at the University of Virginia.

Elliot—MacKenzie

Mrs. Jane Overholser MacKenzie, daughter of Dr. Winfred Overholser of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and Mrs. Overholser, was married yesterday to Maj. Charles Robert Elliott, USAAF. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Elliott of Paola, Kans.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. A. Powell Davies officiating. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ice blue satin with a Mary Queen of Scot's headdress. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

Mrs. Richard O'Meara was matron of honor for her sister and Maj. Samuel C. Borzilleri served as best man. Following a reception the couple left for a motor trip to the Ozarks.

McGrane—O'Hearn

Miss Catherine Marie O'Hearn was married to Franklyn Joseph McGrane in St. Margaret Mary's Church in Omaha, Nebr., yesterday. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John J. O'Hearn of Omaha and her husband is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. F. McGrane of Chicago and Laurel, Md.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore frosted organdy made with a bouffant skirt and train trimmed in ruffles. Her veil of illusion was held by a soft roll of illusion trimmed with lilies of the valley. She carried stephanotis.

Miss Clare Eleanor O'Hearn was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John E. McGrane of Washington and Miss Loretta Jameson and Mrs. John J. O'Hearn, jr., of Omaha. Robert McGrane of Quincy, Ill., was best man for his brother and the ushers were the bride's brothers, John J. O'Hearn, jr., and Thomas J. O'Hearn and the bridegroom's brother, John E. McGrane of Washington.

A reception was held at Blackstone Hotel after which the couple left for Canada. They will reside in Washington while the bridegroom studies for his master's degree in psychology.

The bride was graduated from Duschene College and attended Catholic University. She was a member of the teaching staff of Georgetown Visitation Convent in Washington. Mr. McGrane attended Creighton University in Omaha and received his B.A. degree from Catholic University this June.

MRS. ROBERT PARSONS

Parsons—Fahrenhorst

Miss Carolyn L. Fahrenhorst and Robert L. Parsons were married yesterday in the chapel of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York City, the Rev. Richard Coombs officiating. A small reception followed at the Carlyle Hotel. Mrs. Parsons is the daughter of Mrs. Otto Frederic Fahrenhorst and the late Mr. Fahrenhorst of New York. Her husband is the son of Mrs. William H. Parsons and the late Mr. Parsons of Washington.

Given in marriage by John Wilson Fiske, the bride wore a gown of white satin with a lace yoke, and her veil was attached to a lace cap matching the yoke.

Mrs. C. Eric Dahlberg was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Francine Futterman and Miss Betty Mae Heinzerling of New York. James L. Karrick, jr., was best man, and the ushers were William H. Parsons and John E. Parsons, brothers of the bridegroom, and Frederick P. Hobart, all of Washington, and Sylvan Cole, jr., of New York City.

The bridegroom was graduated from George Washington University and also studied at the University of Virginia and the University of London. He was formerly assistant director of the Corcoran Gallery of Art. During the war he served as lieutenant commander in the Navy. He is now vice president and executive director of Associated American Artists of New York.

Rehoboth Beach Theater Opens Summer Season

By Virginia Cullen

Rehoboth Beach, Del., June 26.—This resort gets on the citronella circuit of straw hat theaters Monday night with its premiere show, "John Loves Mary," starring William Prince, who created the role of John in the Broadway production. He left the Chicago show to come here to star in the season's opener the next two weeks.

A compact little theater has been set up in the old Surf Club back of the Hotel Henlopen, and the Henlopen Players have engaged an all-Equity company for the shows. The little theater idea originated with a summer resident of the past five years, Mrs. Earle T. MacHardy, a former drama student at Catholic University in Washington, who was with the Olney Theater in Maryland in 1946. Other resort dwellers assisted her. Mrs. Lydia L. Bishop, a year-round resident of Henlopen Acres, is vice president; Thomas W. Wilson is treasurer and Rehoboth's erstwhile city solicitor, Houston Wilson of Georgetown is corporation counsel. Mrs. MacHardy is general manager and her husband is president.

Monday at 3 p. m. the Rehoboth Art League holds its annual junior hobby show in the studio overlooking the Henlopen Yacht Basin. Youngsters of the resort colony will exhibit their hobbies and be awarded prizes. Mrs. Ralph B. Andrews is chairman of the show. Plans for the 1948 season of the league include many innovations. The building committee is preparing to build an additional building for classrooms and workshop. An electric kiln for the class in ceramics has been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert M. Frederick. This ceramic class, which starts July 6, was especially popular with the Washington colony last year when it was instituted. Mrs. E. G. Baldwin of Arlington is slated for a flower arrangement demonstration on July 28, and on July 13 Mrs. Prew Savoy of Washington gives a talk on Czechoslovakia. The league is going to revive its musicales this summer, too. Exhibitions of pictures during the season will be viewed at Sunday afternoon teas from 4 to 6, starting July 4, with the members' show.

Golf Tourney Held

Yesterday women from golf clubs all over the Delmarva Peninsula gathered at the Rehoboth Country Club for their annual one-day tournament. Mrs. J. Townsend Tubbs of Selbyville was in charge of entries for the women's golf committee of the Rehoboth Beach Country Club.

The country club, while it has already been the mecca of many social gatherings the past two weeks, will hold its official opening today with a cocktail party for members between 4 and 6 o'clock. The Queen's Ball in connection with the Chicken of Tomorrow festivities was held at the club Thursday night.

Rehoboth will be overflowing this weekend with the influx of several hundred Legionnaires attending the annual Department of Delaware Convention at the Hotel Henlopen. Democrats took over the Hotel Belhaven last night to fete the party's choice for Delaware's gubernatorial candidate, Lieut. Gov. Elbert N. Carvel of Laurel.

Mrs. Merton A. English and three grandchildren of Chevy Chase, Md., will terminate next Wednesday a 10-day vacation at the Star-of-the-Sea Hotel.

Matt Mahorner, jr., a former vice president of the Washington Bar Association, and Mrs. Mahorner spent last weekend at the same hotel. Mrs. Mahorner had been visiting at the Washington colony on Indian Beach with another Washingtonian, Mrs. Brockett Muir. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shigo of Washington were also here last weekend at the Star-of-the-Sea and over the July 4 holidays a group of young people from St. John's Church will hold an outing there under the leadership of Miss Martha Goddard Morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Argyle N. Finney of Chevy Chase and their daughter, Miss Mary Teresa Finney, have just rounded out a vacation here. On Monday Miss Finney will leave for Vassar College, where she was recently awarded a scholarship. She is a June graduate of the University of Maryland.

Capt. J. Lockwood Pratt, USN, of Washington and Mrs. Pratt are visiting Mrs. Pratt's mother, Mrs. J. Frank Grier, at her cottage.

Vacationists Arrive

Other vacationists here from the Capital area so far this season were Mr. and Mrs. John McCambridge of Chevy Chase, Mrs. Maude Keefe, Kenneth Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Barnes, Mrs. Register Cremen and Thomas Geiger.

Louis Y. Parnell, who has been in the consular service in Italy, and his wife, the former Matilda Horn of Englewood, N. J., and Rehoboth Beach, will arrive on July 4 and will be here for the summer.

Mrs. Frederick Kaufmann, who has been at Oak Ridge, Tenn., the past winter, has opened her cottage on Henlopen ave.

The Service Set

WAFS New Director Recalls African Flight

By Nicha Soure

COL. GERALDINE MAY, director of Women in the Air Force, had never flown a mile until she entered the service. Today she has seen the sun rise in practically every country, and has approximately 300,000 miles of flying to her credit.

During the war when she was Wac staff director for the Air Transport Command, she traveled all over the globe checking bases for Wac suitability.

She had scads of interesting experiences but this one is Colonel May's favorite. It was one of those long flights from Africa to India. When the plane landed at a base in central Africa to refuel, the passengers jumped out, looking forward to some sleep in a real bed.

"All the men went to the officer's quarters and I, the only woman, was sent to a typical African house which lodges women guests at the base."

Colonel May noticed the figures asleep in most of the beds of the room assigned her. But since she had heard there were women USO entertainers in the vicinity, she thought nothing of it. She was beginning to prepare for bed when she heard a knock on the door.

"Colonel May," a voice said urgently, "Come out immediately. That's Carl Hubbell's baseball team in there!"

The new WAF officer calls those the days of "the bucket seat jobs when I developed permanent ridges in my anatomy." The seats were made with ridges for parachutes, she explained, and with the cargo usually overflowing in the middle of the plane, the trips were anything but comfortable.

Harris & Ewing
COL. GERALDINE MAY
. . . Heads WAFS

THE NEW women's service officer is hesitant about admitting she loves to cook because it may sound "unmilitary." But she can make baked onion soup which takes practically all day to prepare, and she's a whiz at cheese souffles.

If the Air Force gets its plea for new uniforms, the women's branch will follow suit. The uniform will be "uxbridge," which is grayish blue and more flattering to women than the present khaki, the WAFS think.

THE WAFS were created when President Truman signed the Women's Armed Services Integration Act of 1948 on June 12, and Colonel May was sworn in as first director of the new service on June 16. Colonel May thinks standards will be high because there will be only 4000 enlisted women and 300 officers in the WAFS for the present. Women have greater talents for some types of military service than men and it will be for this work they will be trained. There will be no women pilots, Colonel May said, because "we have too many good male pilots trained at great expense to the Government."

Is it WAFS as in Wacs or WAFS as in Wasps? Concerning the controversy which has arisen since the WAFS were organized, Colonel May's office offers two solutions. Major Sue Cormick, who was born and bred in Virginia, uses the first pronunciation, and Sergt. Marian Buchanon, who hails from the vicinity of Boston, the second. "Take your choice," says Colonel May.

TUESDAY night will be "must" on the date book of Fort Myer Juniors. The occasion will be the long-anticipated formal Junior Dance to be held at Hop Hall at 8:30 p. m. Sponsored by the Fort Myer's Women's Club with music by the Cavaliers, the dance will allow the younger service set to invite civilian guests.

In the receiving line with Col. and Mrs. James V. Cole, who will be making their first formal social appearance since the colonel became Fort Myer commanding officer, will be Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cortlandt van R. Schuyler and Capt. and Mrs. Dell S. Perkins.

Miss Jeannie Pierce and Miss Carla Spaatz will be junior hostesses and Robert Roderick and Orval Cook will be junior hosts.

Dingwell, Loos Betrothal Told at Dance

The engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Margaret Dingwell, to Dickson Randall Loos was announced by Capt. and Mrs. John E. Dingwell June 26 at a dinner dance at Army-Navy Country Club. Mr. Loos is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl D. Loos of Chevy Chase.

Miss Dingwell and Mr. Loos both attended Sidwell Friends School and the bride-elect was graduated from Sweet Briar College. Mr. Loos was graduated from Dartmouth College and Yale University and is now attending George Washington University Law School. During the war he served for three years in the Navy.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Having Established Permanent Home on Lake Shore, Couple's Larder, Leisure and Privacy Are Raided by City Friends Out for the Air

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: All our lives, until recently, my husband and I had been city dwellers. Finally we found a small house on a lake shore which we are making our permanent home. It is a lovely place situated in a summer colony and we have put our best into it.

Remembering the hot summers we spent in town in past years, we never mind friends driving out, to fish or swim, or just to enjoy the cool fresh air as a change from the city heat and noise.

However, I find myself dreading the summer this year, as all our friends seem to expect picnic hospitality, and it is more of a financial burden than we can bear.

They Can't Meet Financial Drain

EVEN if someone is thoughtful enough to bring wieners and buns for a barbecue meal, still we must provide the extras, such as onions, mustard, catsup, etc., and charcoal to burn; also coffee, cream and sugar on occasion, and of course my dishes; and usually I'm left to do the washing-up later.

We have a boat which can be used with oars or motor. The boat cost several hundred dollars, the motor another hundred, and many of our guests treat these as a plaything, apparently not realizing the value of the equipment; and seem offended if we offer them the oars instead of the motor.

My husband and I love to go out in the boat but seldom do, as almost invariably we find guests waiting, expecting a ride, when we return. This means I stay home to play hostess while he takes them out in the boat.

Wife's Up Early; Friends Stay Late

MANY mornings I'm up at 4 a. m. to enjoy the sunrise, and consequently would enjoy an afternoon nap or the privilege of retiring early; but most of our callers seem to think 10 or 12 p. m. is the proper hour to depart for their city apartments.

I want to enjoy the sunshine and fishing, the peace and leisure, we bargained for in settling here; and I am weary of cooking, cleaning and stocking the larder for guests. But we enjoy sharing and don't want to drive our friends away, so what's the civilized solution?

When friends arrive, shall I sit idly if a picnic is broached, and frankly say we haven't a thing in the house to eat? Or suggest they run to the store for their picnic fare, and bring back charcoal, plates, etc., too? J. S.

Establish Dates For Entertaining

DEAR J. S.: The civilized way to call a halt on these straggling continuous inroads on your larder, leisure and privacy would be to define your hospitality in terms of a prearranged (and eventually traditional) summer calendar of picnic parties to which your city friends are bid.

For instance, a barbecue supper once a month on Saturday nights, or perhaps once towards the beginning and again towards the end of the summer season—twice in all—would be sufficient to establish you as a friend who enjoys sharing, if you provide the supper fare and use of the boat with your husband as pilot.

To introduce this policy, which will speak for itself as impeccable reason why you are excused from social compulsion to play hostess to the hilt every time guests drop in, bruit your party plans to the next group that shows up, and continue to advertise it by that method until all your calling list has been informed that a picnic calendar is in the making.

Social Calendar Blocks Chiseling

THEREAFTER you may sit back with perfect poise, offering at most only a round or two of drinks—say ginger ale, bottled cokes or iced tea or coffee—and pretzels, potato chips or popcorn, when old acquaintances from the city stop by for resort atmosphere.

In all probability, some of those who have in the past enjoyed your obliging response to their impromptu suggestions of picnics will venture the same proposal again, thoughtlessly or selfishly, as the case may be. And in that event, you may with propriety sidestep the burden with such casual rejoinders as have already occurred to you, when and after you are established as a periodic party-giver.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest O. Osborne

Let the Children Paint, Too

When the 2 and 3-year-olds see adults painting the house, the garden trellis or some piece of household equipment, they are very likely to say, "Me, too." Household paint is pretty messy and though some parents may be willing to let their children experiment, most of us have misgivings.

There's a simple solution. Let the budding young painters have a brush and a can or bottle of water. With these, he can paint to his heart's content on the side of the house, the gate or almost any other place. Children even will enjoy painting the linoleum with water, though it isn't quite as satisfactory, since it doesn't change color as a piece of wood seems to when water is applied.

How to Launder Wool Blankets

It's time for blanket washing! This summer task may be done nicely in the home, providing you treat the woolens gently. Since woolens are unpredictable, shrinkage and felting may occur. Therefore, manufacturers' directions should be followed carefully.

In her recipe for laundering blankets, Miss Margaret B. Doughty, director of one manufacturer's home laundry institute, suggests the ideal washer load is one large blanket or two small ones. They should be shaken a bit to remove loose dirt and dust.

If the bindings are soiled, brush a soap solution on them with a soft brush.

"Woolen blankets are washed most successfully when lukewarm water is used for a brief, gentle washing and two rinses, when a mild soap or synthetic detergent is used, when the excess water is extracted quickly and gently, and then they are hung over two taut lines in a shady, breezy spot," Miss Doughty says.

About Party for Brides

I have two friends 23 years of age who plan to be married in the first week of August. I would like to give both of them a shower at the same time, but since they don't know each other or have mutual friends except myself I don't know how I should go about it. Also, what refreshments and entertainment should I have?
Y. B. M.

Showers for a bride are usually fairly intimate parties attended by only her closest friends and relatives. For this reason, I think you would find it difficult to manage a party for the two girls at one time. Since, as you say, each bride has a different circle of friends, there would be no overlapping of guest lists if you should plan to have the parties on succeeding days. As a matter of fact, some hostesses prefer to entertain this way because that enables them to use the same floral decorations, they can pretty the house at one time for both events and some of the food, even, could be prepared all at one time. Following this plan you could invite Bride No. 1 and her friends for Thursday night and Bride No. 2 for the following night or Saturday night.

Refreshments for a warm summer evening would be a cool, molded fruit salad, dainty sandwiches and a frosty glass of iced tea or coffee. A particularly refreshing salad is made by using lime gelatin (use orange or pineapple juice for half the liquid) and then for each package of gelatin whip in with an egg beater a package of cream cheese and a half of a peeled, grated cucumber. If you wish, you can add a hint of grated onion. For more elaborate refreshments, serve bride's cake and ice cream for dessert.

Entertainment will center around the presentation of the gifts. Then too, the guests could make a scrap book for the bride-to-be, depicting events of her life with pictures cut from magazines. Also, you could have each guest embroider her name in the corner of a dish towel for the bride (the towels could be the hostesses gift). Providing recipe cards upon which the guests can write their favorite recipes is usually fun and the bride will love having the recipes.

On July 1, I am leaving by train to go to New Mexico, taking my 3-year-old girl and 7-month-old baby with me. I have a bedroom on the train. I would like to know how much to tip the stewardess who will take care of the baby while I go to the diner, etc. Also, how much should I tip the porter?
O. D. McC.

The amount given to the stewardess will of course depend upon how long her services are needed and how much she is expected to do. It has been suggested that $1 to $2 for each night would be appropriate. Since many of these women have nurse's training and so are professional women, a nice way to give the tip is to enclose it in an envelope and give it to her when you leave the train upon which she has been serving.

A porter should receive at least 25 cents a day and 50 cents for each day if he makes up one berth. Of course, if the porter performs additional services in helping you care for the children, he should be tipped more accordingly.

What precautions are necessary in laying wall-to-wall carpets to prevent moth damage?
M. K.

Since carpet moths breed in little used places, one precaution is to spray the rug, especially the edges next to the molding, twice a year with a good moth repellent. Be sure to reach all out-of-the-way places with the spray. Then at least once a week go over every part of the rug, especially under furniture and the edges with the vacuum sweeper. If your sweeper will not reach to the very wall, use an attachment which will, so that you are sure you have sweeper action which will remove both larvae and eggs from the rug.

Also, there is a firm which has two stores—one in Arlington, the other in Silver Spring—which has a moth proofing process they guarantee "forever." The Arlington shop can be reached by calling Oxford 2644; the Silver Spring shop by calling Shepherd 8100.

FRANKFURTER roasts are tops in summer treats, especially if you dress up the "dogs" a bit. One way to do it is by the snappy-cheese-and-tomato-sauce methods. Slit the franks and insert a strip of cheese. Wrap with half a strip of bacon and fasten with a toothpick. Grill 'em over live coals—or heat in a frying pant—until they're a tempting brown. Meanwhile open a can of tomato sauce, heat and season with a tablespoon or so of horseradish and a teaspoon of lemon juice. Use this for dunking purposes, or pour it over the franks on your plate, or baste the hot dogs with it while they're cooking

Leftover Ham Can Be Served In Peach Patties

"Ham and Peach Supper" stretches one cup of leftover ham into a hearty skillet meal for six hungry people. Ground beef is added to the ham for patty cakes that are cooked together in the skillet with yams and juicy canned cling peach halves.

HAM AND PEACH SUPPER

1 egg
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ cup milk
¾ teaspoon salt
Black pepper
¾ pound ground lean beef
1 cup ground cooked ham
6 medium-sized yams
¼ cup brown sugar (packed)
Cinnamon
1/3 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2/3 cup syrup from canned cling peaches
6 canned cling peach halves

Beat egg lightly; blend in crumbs, milk and seasonings. Blend with meat and shape lightly into six patties. Brown on both sides in lightly greased frying pan. Pare yams, cut into ½-inch slices. Place around patties, sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Blend orange juice, rind and peach syrup. Pour over yams. Cover closely and simmer 15 minutes. Turn patties, top each with a well-drained peach half, cover and simmer 15 minutes longer. Serves six.

Body Builders

You may not be fond of stooping, housewife, but it is an excellent exercise and if you remember to pick up things without bending your knees, just bending from the waist, you have done a splendid reducing exercise each time you try it.

Botkisses Here

Spending the summer in Washington are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Arthur Botkiss, who were married March 28 in Sunbury, Pa. She is the former Miss Gloria Marie Coldenstroth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph George Coldenstroth of this city. Her husband is son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Botkiss of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Botkiss was graduated in June from Penn State College and is a member of Chi Omega Sorority. Mr. Botkiss is a senior at the same college and is a member of Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity.

M. I .T. Society of Washington Has Picnic in Waterford

Leesburg, Va., June 26.—The Washington Society of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology held their annual picnic Saturday at the Meeting House in Waterford, home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. McDaniel.

The group enjoyed the recreation field of the Chamberlain families, which is near the Meeting House. Mr. McDaniel is a member of the organization.

Among the hundred or more persons present were A. E. Beitzell, president of the Washington Branch; John A. Plugge, secretary; E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co.; Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman of the Research and Development Board; Proctor L. Dougherty, former District Commissioner, and Comdr. F. A. Hunnewell, U. S. Coast Guard.

Christening services for Walter Harrison O'Connor, 7-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Connor 3d, were held Friday afternoon at the home of the baby's great-aunt, Miss Rebecca Harrison. The Rev. J. Manly Cobb, rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, officiated. The godfathers for the baby were Winslow Williams and Stirling M. Harrison. Mrs. John Scheetz was the baby's godmother. Miss Harrison entertained at a buffet supper for relatives following the christening.

Christening Service Held

Dr. and Mrs. W. Otis Bailey, their sons, Dr. William O. Bailey of Washington, and Ned Bailey, and their daughter, Miss Mary Lillington Bailey, attended the wedding in Charlottesville on Saturday of Mrs. Bailey's nephew, Dr. Edwin Pearson Parker, 6d, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Neff. Dr. Bailey, jr., was one of the ushers. They also attended the reception which followed at the Farmington Country Club. The family group returned to Leesburg on Sunday and the following evening Miss Bailey left by plane for Mexico City, where she will be a student at the Mexico City College during the summer session. Their son, Ned, recently returned from St. Louis, where he visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Roberts, whose daughter, Miss Mary Virginia Roberts, student at Sweet Briar College, made her debut.

Mrs. D. M. McDonald of Leesburg and Mrs. Mary L. Noland of Arlington left Friday for New Brunswick, Canada, where they will visit the former's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Brown, and family.

The Woman's Club of Loudoun held their annual picnic on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman C. Gore, near Lucketts. Plans to hold the picnic on the spacious lawn at the Gore's country place were disrupted by a heavy rainfall and the group of 70 or more feasted on the wide porches, where small tables were placed. Mrs. Arthur S. Jenkins, president of the club, greeted the guests. Mrs. J. Shenton Lodge, former president, motored from the Eastern Shore of Virginia, where she is summering, for the occasion, and spent the weekend with the Gores.

Ashbrooks Arrive

Mr. and Mrs. William Ashbrook, jr., and their two children arrived on Monday from Cambridge, Mass., to spend several months vacationing in Loudoun and other points. Mrs. Samuel L. Alexander and two daughters, Michele and Susan, of Fredericksburg, are spending several weeks with Judge and Mrs. J. R. H. Alexander. Mr. Alexander came to Leesburg with his wife and children to spend the weekend here. Mr. and Mrs. John Scheetz of Wilmington, Del., spent the weekend with the latter's mother, Mrs. Charles F. Harrison.

Mrs. Mack Entertains for Belics

MRS. J. J. MACK gave an "at home" party yesterday in honor of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Belic. The couple have just returned from Europe, and around 200 friends dropped by to greet them between the hours of 4 and 8 o'clock.

Assistants who took turns presiding at the tea table included Senora de Caceres, wife of the Ambassador of Honduras, Senora de Castro, wife of the Ambassador of El Salvador, Mrs. H. T. Andrews, wife of the Minister of South Africa, Mme. Thor Thors, wife of the Minister of Iceland, and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General.

Also, Mrs. Charles Franklin Brannan, wife of the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Mrs. John Steelman, Senora de Echegaray, Mrs. Charles Ross, Baroness Giesl von Gieslingen of Vienna, Austria, niece of the hostess, Mrs. Mrs. Dirkse-van-Schalkwyk, Mrs. Clark Woodward, Mrs. Stokley W. Morgan, Mrs. Bruce Kremer, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Senora de Rodriguez, Mrs. Alexis Tatistcheff, Mrs. Vincent Miles and Mme. Ivan Shesta.

Annapolis Activities

Annapolis, Md., June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Sewell of Wardour have announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to Lieut. (j. g.) John McCoach Smith, USN. The announcement was made at a luncheon given in honor of Miss Sewell by her parents, on Saturday, at their home.

Miss Sewell is a student at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va. Lieutenant Smith is a graduate of the Naval Academy with the class of 1945 and is at present attached to the U. S. S. Coral Sea. The wedding will take place in August.

Mrs. Emery E. Larson, widow of Col. Emery E. Larson, USMC, former Navy football coach, and Comdr. Stephen M. Archer, son of Mrs. Stephen Archer of Marion, Ohio, and the late Mr. Archer were married on Sunday afternoon on the lawn of the North Severn Officers Club. Chaplain Roy E. Bishop performed the ceremony under an arch of flowers.

Stepson Gives Bride

The bride was given in marriage by her stepson, Emery E. Larson, jr. Mrs. Alvin Slayden of Washington, was matron of honor, and Miss Mary Alice Larson, stepdaughter of the bride, was maid of honor. Cynthia Archer, daughter of the bridegroom, and Mercedes Larson, daughter of the bride, were the other attendants.

J. Allen Wheat of Summit, N. J., served as best man, and the ushers included Comdr. John Spangler, Comdr. Charles Travis of Annapolis, Capt. William Moore and Commander Slayden of Washington.

Following the ceremony a reception for about 100 guests was held in the lounge of the club.

Commander Archer, a member of the naval class of 1932, is at present attached to the Post Graduate School. After a short wedding trip, he and his bride will reside in Perry Circle, on the Naval Academy reservation.

Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., Superintendent of the Naval Academy, spent three days this week attending a round table conference at Pawling, N. Y., sponsored by the National Council, YMCA.

While in New York he also witnessed the Poughkeepsie Regatta on June 22. He was accompanied by his flag secretary, Comdr. James J. Southerland.

Comdr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Schantz are among the recent arrivals at the Naval Academy, where he has reported for duty in the Department of Marine Engineering. He is a member of the class of 1934 at the academy, and did a tour of duty here from 1940 to 1942, when he attended the Post Graduate School.

conclave. She wore a royal blue, shangtung silk frock, bare back, with a matching bolero. A few minutes under the scorching lights and off went the bolero. And out popped a pair of dark sun glasses. With her was slender, efficient Miss Carlene Roberts, first and only vice president of an air lines. She is the vice president for American. Her convention ensemble was a dark grey chambray with a modified bustle back, low-cut, strapped bodice, and short bolero of the same material and color. Another adhering to the low cut backless fashion was blond Mrs. Alma K. Schneider of Colorado, newly named State vice chairman of the central committee, Republican National Committee.

BITS OF THIS AND THAT . . . Popular Luther Matthew Bolton took over the Harvard Club in the City of Brotherly Love. Purpose was to greet friends from Washington and other areas of the Nation. There was a handy drink plus delectable ham and turkey sandwiches for all who dropped in. Bolton's $1000 check went to the Harvard Scholarship fund instead of the club's coffers.

Strickland—Bramhall

The wedding of Miss Joanne Flint Bramhall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bramhall, and Rupert Linwood Strickland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Madison C. Strickland of Great Mills, Md., took place yesterday at Silver Spring Baptist Church, with the Rev. W. F. Ripley officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin and lace with a fingertip veil held in place by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid.

Miss Dorothy Meredith was maid of honor, and Misses Charlotte Spitzer and Jeanne Painter were bridesmaids. Randall Strickland attended his brother as best man, and the bride's brother, Robert Bramhall, and Ben Dove were ushers.

The bride graduated this year from University of Maryland. The bridegroom is a junior at University of Maryland after serving three years with Army Air Forces.

Smith—Miller

At a home wedding last night Miss Dorothy Walker Miller became the bride of James Emory Smith. The Rev. John R. Anschutz of Christ Church, Georgetown, performed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. Malcolm Jerome Miller, 3505 Springland lane nw. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Taylor Emory Smith and the late Mr. Smith of Sheffield, Ala.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white lace gown fashioned with a bertha edged with seed pearls. Her veil of French illusion was edged with a wide border of lace and she carried stephatnotis and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. William W. Miller was matron of honor and William Paul Smith was best man for his brother while the bride's brother, William Wallace Miller, served as usher. A reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside in Washington.

Lehman—Costenbader

Miss June Costenbader, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Costenbader, was married yesterday in a candlelight service to Dr. Ross Miles Lehman, jr., son of Mrs. John Damskey and Ross Miles Lehman of Washington. The double ring ceremony took place in the Chevy Chase Womens Club, the Rev. Hugh Foley officiating.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin with a marquisette yoke trimmed in rosepoint lace. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held by a band of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Warren S. Oliveri, twin sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Mary Jane Costenbader was maid of honor. The other attendants were Mrs. Norine Bowdey of El Reno, Okla., and Miss Mary E. Walker of Alcolu, S. C.

Dr. Ralph J. Carbo, jr., of Washington served as best man, and the ushers were Dr. Charles D. Scheuch of Washington, Dr. George B. Guarino of New York City and Dr. James E. Boland of Carbondale, Pa.

The bride is a graduate nurse of Sibley Hospital, and the bridegroom was graduated from Georgetown University School of Medicine, and is a surgical resident at Providence Hospital.

Norwood—Deitz

Miss June Rosena Deitz, daughter of Mrs. Rosena Warren Dietz of Washington, became the bride yesterday of Joel Vance Norwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Norwood of Myrtle Beach, S. C. The wedding took place in First Evangelical and Reformed Church, the Rev. F. Nelson Schlegel officiating. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Given in marriage by her brother, Vanice R. Dietz, the bride wore a white silk gown with a short veil. Her flowers were white roses. Miss Lorraine Coleman was maid of honor, and Miss Peggy Sheley was bridesmaid.

Wyatt Haney served as best man, and the ushers were Robert Fritts and Robert Sanford.

After a wedding trip to Silver Springs, Fla., the couple will reside in Washington.

Herriman—De Vaughn

White snapdragons and palms decorated Christ Episcopal Church yesterday for the wedding of Miss Ruby Virginia De Vaughn and Richard Albert Herriman, the Rev. B. B. Comer Lile officiating. Mrs. Herriman is the daughter of Mrs. Ferdinand De Vaughn of Alexandria, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Herriman of Washington.

Costumed in whote dotted swiss and fingertip veil, the bride was given in marriage by Henry Furr. She carried a white prayerbook with gardenias.

Miss Anna May Herriman was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Edward Egloff, Mrs. Paul Lee, Mrs. Dan Schilling, Miss Marianna Dornberger and Miss Gertrude Dornberger. Melvin D. Herriman was best man and the ushers were Edward Egloff, Thomas Curtin, Skippy Conlon, Carl Parker and Kennith Davis.

After a reception at the home of the bride's mother the couple left on a wedding trip through New England and Canada.

Zimmer—Vedral

Miss Elizabeth Ann Vedral and Joseph F. Zimmer were married yesterday at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart. The bride is daughter of Joseph Vedral of Clarkson, Nebr., and the late Mrs. Vedral, and Mr. Zimmer is son of the late Mrs. Mary Zimmer of this city. The Rev. Ronald J. Fannon performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Stephen Podany, the bride wore candlelight satin. Her illusion veil was held with a satin cap and she carried a prayer book and a white orchid. Miss Eleanor Walla was maid of honor and Mrs. Mary Anne Carmen was bridesmaid.

Top Housing Bills Lost In Legislative Shuffle

HOUSING legislation, vitally important to an estimated three million home hungry citizens, was overshadowed in the legislative shuffle by ERP, the draft, taxation, civil rights and other bills, the record of the Republican dominated Eightieth Congress reveals.

The piecemeal housing bill passed by Congress in its closing hours was a compromise satisfactory to few groups. It does only two things to promote home building: (1) lets lending institutions sell certain GI home loan mortgages to the Government so the institutions can lend more money to home buyers. (2) Permits FHA to insure up to 95 per cent of loans for nonprofit veterans housing projects.

The vital Title VI mortgage insurance provisions, the catalytic agent of the financing business which has zoomed construction of large scale home building and garden type apartment projects, was not revived. "Title II," providing 90 per cent insurance based on the long-term, economic value of the building, remains.

The Taft-Ellender-Wagner long range housing bill, knocking around congressional halls since 1946, was passed by the Senate, blocked in the House Rules Committee. The TEW called for construction of 500,000 subsidized low rent housing units, slum clearance, aid to prefab manufacturers, research in home building techniques and scores of other related provisions.

Fate of the more important housing bills introduced in the eightieth session of Congress follows:

PASSED

Housing and Rent Control Acts of 1947-48: Provided for termination of rent control in certain areas, extension to March 31, 1949, in others; approved 15 per cent rent increases, if voluntarily accepted by tenants, in leases running through December 31, 1949; decontrolled hotel rents; terminated allocation of building materials; lifted restrictions against construction of amusement and recreation places; extended Title VI mortgage insurance until March 31, 1948; provided insured financing to prefabbers.

RFC Extension Act: Extended lending powers of Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Amendments to United States Housing Act of 1937: Allows Public Housing Administration to raise limits on cost of public housing. Amends law to permit loans, capital grants or annual contributions for low-rent housing and slum-clearance projects where construction costs exceed present cost limitations.

Tobey bill, an amendment to National Housing Act, provided $750,000 additional mortgage insurance authorization to FHA under its Title VI program.

Federal grants up to $10,000 for homes designed for wheelchair living veterans. VA estimates 1800 veterans are eligible.

Veterans' temporary Reuse housing program: Authorized Federal housing agencies to exercise war housing powers of the Lanham Act in order to provide temporary housing for veterans, servicemen and their families affected by evictions and other hardships. Program converted Army barracks and other

Architects Say:

Home Pinch Will Persist Until 1975

Salt Lake City, June 26 (U.P.).—The Nation's top architects think America's housing pinch might last at least until 1975.

A report by the board of directors of the American Institute of Architects at its convention this week forecast that a population growth of 30 million more people will crowd housing throughout the Nation until at least 1975.

No break in building prices was forecast.

David S. Miller, Lancaster, Pa., president of the Producers Council, Inc., predicted shortages of iron, steel, millwork and cement would peg building prices at present levels.

Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, New Haven, Conn., warned the architects that home accidents constitute a major cause of death in the United States.

George Allen Buys Large Home Here

George V. Allen, former United States Ambassador to Iran and present director of the State Department's "Voice of America" program, has purchased a large home at 3421 Massachusetts ave. nw., it was disclosed last week.

The property is one of the few private homes in the Embassy Row section of Massachusetts ave. nw. Seller was Orville S. McPherson, former publisher of the Kansas City Journal and wartime War Production Board official.

The transaction, said to be around $50,000, was handled by Franklin Ford of the office of Victor Wickersham.

GW Seeks to Remodel Raymond Apartments

George Washington University has applied for a building permit to allow alterations and remodeling to Raymond Apartments, 814 22d st. nw. Chas. H. Tompkins Co. is the builder.

Pentagon: Monument to Engineering Skill

Fairchild Aerial Survey, Inc.

THE world's largest office building was designed in a race against time and was planned for efficiency, not beauty. Yet of all Washington's public buildings reminiscent of the classic style, the Pentagon is the least imitative. Its massive, fortress-like outline suggests at once its military function. The vast road net surrounding and feeding into the Pentagon once served as the butt of countless radio jokes. Perhaps best remembered is the one about the cab driver who motored into the intricate road net, drove for an hour without getting any nearer to the building, finally stopped his cab and told his fares: "Better get out here and walk, folks. I'm getting farther away from it every minute!"

The building's vital statistics read like a Texas Chamber of Commerce report: Covers 34 acres, contains around 32,000 employes, is three times the size of the Empire State Building and twice as large as Chicago's Merchandise Mart, rests on 41,492 concrete piles, which if placed end to end, would stretch 200 miles. Boasts the world's largest private branch telephone exchange; its concrete parking areas accommodate 6400 cars and cover 46 acres. Upper right of photo shows sprawling Fort Myer, Arlington Farms and Arlington National Cemetery. Navy buildings are at top. Pentagon's official title is "National Defense Building"

Give Summer Furniture a New Lease on Life

If its original shiny coat of paint on metal furniture has begun to peel and crack and let rust stains show through, a repainting job is not too difficult.

The new type enamel paint which has a synthetic rosin base is excellent for painting wood or metal furniture used on the porch or out of doors. Here are the simple steps for repainting:

1. Remove rust from metal furniture by wiping with cotton waste or oilcloth dipped in kerosene.

2. Brush off any scale with wire brush, steel wool or coarse emory cloth.

3. Touch up any bare metal spots with a coat of metal primer.

4. Apply two coats of enamel, allowing plenty of time for drying between coats.

Wrought Iron

Wrought iron is made from the purest form of iron, and furniture made from it resists rust to a greater extent than do articles made of cast iron. However, a protective coat of liquid wax increases this natural resistance and makes work lighter. Rust stains should be rubbed with kerosene, then scored with steel wool. If the rust is stubborn let the kerosene remain on it long enuogh to soften it.

Chromium-Plated, Stainless Steel

Tubular metal frames made of chromium-plated steel will resist rusting unless they are unduly exposed to salt air or severe weather. Daily dusting with a soft cloth is usually all that is necessary. Fingerprints can be rubbed off with a dry or lightly dampened soft cloth. Never use harsh scouring powders or steel wool.

Stainless steel tubing is highly resistant to corrosion. An occasional cleaning with mild scouring powder and water improves its appearance.

Daily dusting is necessary of course. Do not use harsh abrasives or steel wool.

Plastic

A well-rubbed thin coat of wax may be used as a finish for furniture made of plastic materials if desired. Daily dusting plus an occasional cleansing with mild lukewarm soapsuds is all that is necessary to keep this type of furniture lo oking its best.

Painted

Wood or metal furniture that is finished with good quality washable paint is easy to care for. Of course it must be dusted regularly with a clean, soft untreated duster, and occasionally it will benefit by damp dusting with a soft cloth wrung almost dry of clear lukewarm water.

Excessive soil may be removed with mild scouring powder or with whiting cleaner or with a good commercial paint cleaner. The formula for whiting cleaner is as follows:

Whiting Cleaner—2 tablespoons white soap flakes, 10 tablespoons lukewarm water, 1¼ cups whiting. Dissolve soap flakes in water. Cool until jellied. Stir in whiting. Apply with damp cloth or sponge.

Wicker Furniture

Wicker furniture can be painted successfully. Use a paint sprayer or flow on enamel paint with a full brush

Big Four-Week Home Exhibition Endorsed By Housing Leaders

By Conrad P. Harness

INTEREST in the great four-week exhibition here of new furnished home, announced in last Sunday's Washington Post, soared to new heights this week as local and national housing leaders gave the project unanimous approval.

The exhibit will consist of 10 brand new homes, completely decorated and tastily furnished, and is set for a four-week period beginning September 12. Homes will be located in all sections of the metropolitan Washington area and will range in price from $15,000 to $45,000.

The event is sponsored by 10 furniture stores, 10 home builders and The Washington Post. The latest trends in household decorations, furnishings, kitchen appliances, housing materials and equipment will be on public view in this "Homes of '48 for Better Living" exhibition.

McCONIHE

Typical of the comments heard about the novel spectacle was that of F. Moran McConihe, president of the Washington Real Estate Board: "I think the idea for mass presentation of model furnished homes is a fine idea. It will give the public a perfect opportunity for inspection of homes. Furnished homes have always been popular with the public. The display should be a big success."

Jim Pearson, executive secretary of the Home Builders Associa-

Let Air Circulate

Fan Fare On Keeping Coooooooool!

REFRESHER COURSE: To keep you cool, calm and collected on hot, humid days and nights, the air must circulate in a room at least once every two minutes . . . When you're hot, your body is blanketed by a layer of stagnant air. Air can absorb only so much moisture, and the batch surrounding you is already full of it. You, therefore, are not only hot, but sticky and sluggish, and in some cases "all in."

To get direct and quick relief, place your electric fan 2 to 5 feet above the floor and 6 or 10 feet away from you . . . For indirect air movements, place the fan a foot from the wall and let its stream play directly on the surface. This achieves a more gentle circulation, but it has been found to be thorough and just as effective, if slower.

On excessively hot night, put the fan, facing outward, on a table about 3 feet in front of an open window. Then open the other windows or doors. The fan will drive out the day's accumulation of inactive air and replace it with fresh, invigorating currents. Placement of the fan a few feet in front of the window has just been revealed as greatly increasing the fan's air exhaust capacity for night cooling.

Larger equipment, for cooling the entire home, includes window-type and attic-type cooler fans. One of these installations, which also supplants the hot, dead air with fresh and cooler outside currents, can cause as much as a 20-degree temperature drop throughout a five-room house or apartment.

wartime buildings into temporary veterans' housing.

Public law 596 allows veterans to credit their war service, up to two years, toward residence requirements in applications for homesteads under the Homestead Act of May 26, 1934.

Public law 372 allowed savings and loan associations to loan homeowners up to $1500 for property alterations, repair or improvements. Such loans would be insured by FHA's Title 1 provisions.

Disaster relief: Senate bill 2877, to provide disaster loans for housing in flooded areas of Washington and Oregon, to be financed through RFC.

Extension of FHA's authority to insure loans for new residential construction under Title VI, raising insurance ceiling by $1,150,000,000 to $5,350,000,000, with extension ending April 30, 1948.

Federal National Mortgage Corp., a secondary market for GI home loans, was provided by Congress in lieu of the elaborate TEW bill. A last-minute bill raised the ceiling for RFC purchases of GI mortgages from $250,000,000 to $840,000,000.

FAILED

Housing Act of 1948: Over-all omnibus housing bill providing for extension of FHA insuring authorizations, slum clearance, 500,000 public housing units, secondary mortgage market, tax-depreciation aids to large-scale builders and numerous other housing aids.

A bill providing for a housing census in 1950 and at 10-year intervals thereafter, passed the Senate, did not come up for a House vote.

The Veterans Homestead Act of 1948, designed to build homes at actual costs for veterans through Government loans to veterans' homestead associations, did not come up for either House or Senate vote. This bill, sponsored by the American Legion, had support from both the real estate lobby and veterans' groups. It will probably be introduced in the next session.

A bill cutting off money for premium payments by RFC to spur production of housing materials was passed by the Senate only. Later, housing expediter's functions were greatly reduced and entire premium-payment program died.

A bill to provide loans for construction of 200,000 subsidized low-rent housing units for veterans was passed by the House Veterans Affairs Committe, got no further.

The Wolcott bill to require disposal of permanent Lanham Act public housing units at public sale, cash terms, passed House, Senate didn't act on it.

Small Outlay Makes Cellar Attractive

Intelligent planning plus a small outlay can transform the cellar, usually the ugly duckling of the home, into the most popular and useful section of the house.

Until the 1930's, the space "down under" was often a hodge-podge of heating equipment, storage bins and naked pipes. The coming of radio and television and increased output of attractive, economical floor and wall coverings changed it from a necessary nuisance into a real asset.

Quality building materials in bright colors can now be used to dispel gloom in basements having small windows and little natural light. Most are in full color production after wartime lapses. For instance, ceramic tile, ideal for walls and floors in the converted cellar, is manufactured in about 100 colors.

There are as many uses for cellar space as there are homeowners' ideas for them. In crowded postwar houses, a second living room can be formed by partitioning furnace and storage bins from the rest of the basement. Other uses are rumpus rooms, gamerooms, hobby rooms and even libraries now that waterproof floor and wall materials in many colors are available.

The cellar utility room, combining playroom, laundry, workshop, photo lab or even an extra shower room, is growing in popularity. This was indicated recently by a survey conducted at a recent New York Home Show by the Tile Council of America. Ten per cent of 600 show visitors polled said they were planning utility rooms for their homes.

New Lighting Ideas Used in Modern Homes

Electric lighting engineers have kept pace with new trends in home-building and today lighting fixtures are available to augment any architectural plan or decorative scheme.

One of the newer developments is a fixture which combines direct incandescent illumination and indirect fluorescent lighting. This fills a long-standing need in dining rooms. A reflector centers incandescent rays on the table and the fluorescent tubes flood the room with light. The idea also is used in kitchens.

Fluorescent-lighted bookcases and china cupboards create novel and dramatic effects. Vertical tubes mounted behind moldings on the face of bookcases are coming into use, while tubes in the tops of china cabinets, equipped with glass shelves, shed light through the whole interior. This effectively sets off collections of fine china and glass.

A new cove lighting has recently come into use whereby fluorescent tubes are recessed into the ceiling with the side walls serving as reflectors. This overcomes a difficulty formerly experienced in low-ceilinged houses when tubes were mounted in the walls with the ceiling as a reflecting surface.

Washington Agent Sells Soda Lounge At Virginia Beach

One of the largest candy stores in the South has changed hands at Virginia Beach, Va., where Charles H. Forbes, candy manufacturer, has sold a large air-conditioned confectionery shop and soda lounge bearing his name to George Alexander, of Altoona, Pa.

Nicholas J. Gaston, Washington business broker who handled the sales transaction, said the store is located one block from the beach. The price, which was not disclosed, includes all fixtures and equipment.

Gaston said Virginia Beach business men were expecting a heavy volume of sales this year with a resultant heavy demand for properties in that area.

Opinion After Tour

Many Great Cities Near Decay, Expert Says

By Howard Pulliam
Post Reporter

PRESENT-DAY great cities are heading toward decay, warns an English planner, F. J. Osborn, chairman of the executive committee of the Town and Country Planning Association of London.

Recently completing a tour of this country, Osborn says his observations in American cities reenforce this opinion.

Furthermore, he says, if opportunity should arise for changing or replanning American cities, Americans wouldn't know what to do and probably would miss the boat.

Osborn gives his views in Public Construction, the official monthly publication of the Federal Works Agency.

Summarizing his impressions after visiting a number of American States and large cities and talking with American city planners, real estate men and university analysts, he writes:

"What I feel very definitely is that there is not yet among those who know most about cities, including the academic students, the planning personnel and the practical developers, a large solid body of agreed opinion as to what future pattern of city and country arrangement should be arrived at."

Until the United States has that, he says, he does not see how Americans can work out the minimum legislative powers and the machinery and types of skill necessary to achieve effective urban replanning.

Britain Disperses Cities

TO SHOW the need for such generally agreed-to opinion, he cites Britain's present redevelopment program which sprang into being during the war, pointing out that instructed opinion there was ready for it when opportunity came.

Great Britain, he points out, has limited city growth, dispersing industry and population, reserving open country around and between cities, building up of small towns and creation of new towns on new sites.

Had there not been a "large solid body of agreed opinion," he says, Britain probably would have "gone round and round in its search for a policy" and present comprehensive plans might not have materialized.

"Great cities are in great danger of decaying at no very distant date," he warns.

And, he adds, modern cities contain too many people to be either livable or economically efficient.

City replanning, therefore, is essential, he says, for maximum industrial and trading efficiency, restoring good housing conditions, better grouping of peoples and "better protection against modern war."

Beautiful Maryland Estate
of 150 Acres, 12 Miles from D. C. Line
This property is really one of the show places of nearby Maryland, with a large frontage on Colesville Pike and a private macadam driveway therefrom. Not only a Gentleman's Estate, but also a self-supporting property in a very high state of cultivation.
The main house is of Colonial design with beautiful lawns. 1st floor consists of spacious reception hall, large living room with fireplace, dining room with fireplace and bay window overlooking garden, modern tile lavatory, butler's pantry and roomy, modern kitchen with refrigerator and deep freeze unit. The 2nd floor has 3 master bedrooms, 3 modern tile baths, generous closet space. There is also a master bedroom and storage space on the third floor. Modern heating plant. Sidewalls insulated with 6" of rock wool, ceilings with 8", making it cool in summer and warm and economical to heat in winter. Price includes broadloom carpeting and draperies, both of which were installed by W. & J. Sloane. Entire house in excellent condition.
Other buildings, several recently constructed, include superintendent's house with bath and modern tenant house, guesthouse or maid's quarters having 2 rooms and bath, 2-car garage, large bank barn, silo, pig and chicken houses, implement shed, workshop, storage building, granary and corncrib.
Property is thoroughly fenced and is divided into meadows and fields, fed by 3 streams and a pond in a lovely setting, surrounded by a sufficient amount of virgin timber for privacy from encroachment and use.
This estate may be shown by appointment only. For further information call Mr. Leigh, NA. 9300; eves. and weekends, WI. 3799.

New Bath Fixtures Feature Glass Equipment

New developments in shower equipment include glass panels for the tub enclosure, glass doors for cabinet showers, new types of shower heads, adjustable shower arms, and new mixing valves for greater safety, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau.

Glass is prominently in the shower picture today, the bureau says. Available are glass enclosures for bathtubs, glass doors for showers, and glass panels to create water-proof shower compartments.

Sand-carved monograms and designs add artistic distinction to the glass enclosures for tubs and glass doors for shower cabinets.

One of the most popular members of the shower family is the prefabricated metal shower cabinet, the bureau says. Cabinet showers are available in a variety of sizes, the smallest being 32 inches square and 76 inches high. Cabinet showers are shipped knocked down and can be assembled in small spaces. They are leak-proof. The latest types of receptors for shower cabinets are stain-proof and nonslip.

One interesting new development in shower bathing is the adjustable shower arm which operates on a swivel joint so that the water can be directed to any place desired by the bather. It is ideal for tub baths since the shower arm can be operated from a sitting position in the tub. It is popular with women bathers as it enables them to keep their hair dry.

$90,349 Fund to Boost D. C.

Surpassing its $85,000 quota, the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade has already raised $90,349 to promote Washington as a tourist and convention center.

This was announced Saturday by Dan Holland, committee chairman, at a committee victory luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel. Holland said that additional funds in the 1948-49 drive are still coming in.

Committee officials said this is the second year in a row in which the drive to publicize Washington has far exceeded its quota, and pointed out that no campaign has ever failed its goal.

All 13 divisions in the drive reached or exceeded their quota, with the Laundry Division tops with 140 per cent of quota. The campaign officially ended with the luncheon.

That Gleam in Your Teeth

Electronics has taken on still another assignment — measuring scientifically the amount of polish that toothpastes create. Heart of this latest dental laboratory tool is an electric eye that picks up the reflection from teeth. This is amplified and recorded by micro-ammeters.

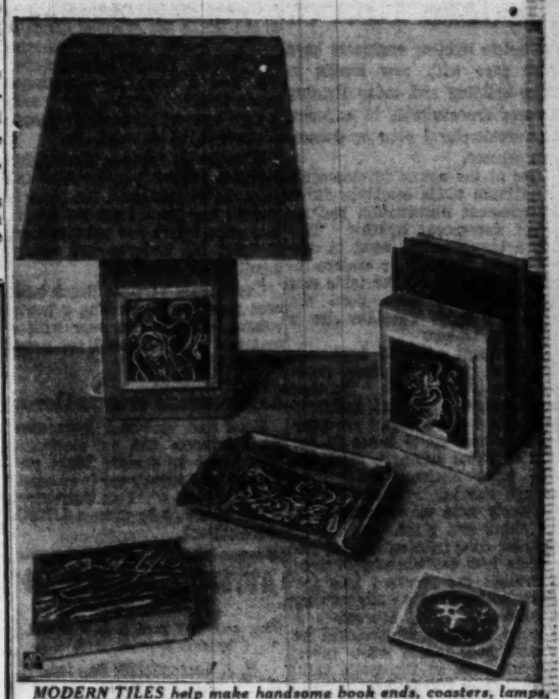
Floor Drain Should Stop Back-Water

Basement floor drains connected with a sewer should be protected against water backing up through the pipe. If not, damage to the house and danger to health will ensue.

There are several devices to keep back-water out of the basement. The most commonly used is a trap in the drain pipe equipped with a one-way valve, which gives lasting protection.

In most cases where water has come into basements, inspection has shown that such protective devices were lacking.

Gay Tiles Step Into The Drawing Room



MODERN TILES help make handsome book ends, coasters, lamps, cigarette boxes and colorful wall decorations. Designed by Warner Prins, these are distinguished by vivid colors

By Vivian Brown

TILES have come out of the kitchen. Granny used them under her teapot. Mom found them useful as hot plate rests. Modern wives collect old ones in antique shops and use them as borders for fireplaces or window sills.

Present day designers have found still other possibilities. Tiles are being attractively decorated for use as coasters, encased in picture frames and hung on the wall, combined with metals to produce smart ash trays, cigarette boxes and book ends. They are even being used for lamp bases.

Some unusual hand-painted tiles recently shown by designer Warner Prins, of New York, are distinguished by the vivid colors and subtle shadings. Mr. Prins' method is to hand-paint the tiles under glaze. He colors the bisque first, then covers it with transparent glaze, and fires it at a temperature which will permit the flow of ceramic stains to penetrate the porous body. The tiles are washable.

Many of his designs are semiabstract. Others are Chinese motifs, marine scenes, sport scenes, birds, flowers and caricature portraits.

In many a home today an old mahogany table has been pickled and its top covered with tiles. They are used as coffee or end tables.

Amateur home decorators may decorate their own tiles, have them sent to a kiln for baking and then cement them into place on the table. They can purchase tile-topped tables. Or they can select tiles which already have been decorated and combine colorful yellows, reds, browns and greens to blend in with their own decorating scheme.

One of the most interesting tile uses, which will appeal to mother, is a tile-topped play table for her youngster. She can make it herself, by buying either plain tiles which she can decorate herself or some with a motif which will appeal to her moppet. The advantage for mother will be the easy washability.

Dual Purpose Bar

Dual purpose sideboard-cellarette was designed by Mildred Whitcomb Maxson, a student at Alfred University School for New York's Craftsmen. Of walnut, it has a separate bar that slides out for easy serving, stows away under the sideboard when not in use. The piece is part of an exhibition of furniture and accessories for the home designed by Alfred students, and on display at America House in New York

Home Builders Get 70 New Members

Seventy new members this year is the recruiting record of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, according to J. Garrett Beitzell, chairman of the membership committee.

This figure already exceeds the number of members gained during the same period of 1947. In all of 1947, 107 new members were admitted.

Beitzell reported that the Washington association was now the fourth largest home builders association in the United States. He said the association's membership, besides builders, includes contractors, material supply firms, building and loan associations and other segments of the construction industry.

Metal Staining Can Be Avoided

A coating of clear varnish or lacquer should be applied to all copper and iron which adjoins painted surfaces on the exterior of a house. This will prevent the metal from streaking the siding or window frames.

On iron, a rust preventive primer should be used before painting or lacquering. The treatment should include screens as well as gutters, downspouts, flashing and other metal surfaces if stains are to be avoided.

Bethesda Starts Driver Training

Driver training classes for adults will begin Monday at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, Bethesda, Md.

The course is sponsored by the Montgomery County Board of Education, the American Automobile Association and the Montgomery County Safety Council. It will run during the regular summer term at the high school and will be conducted during the school from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Open to anyone over 16, the full eight-hour course is $15 for county residents and $25 for nonresidents. Registrations will be open at the school on Monday but enrollment is limited. Those wishing to enroll in time for the Monday class may call G. William Simonds at Sligo 4138 or Donald Workman at Shepherd 5866 over the weekend.

This Week in Washington Real Estate

A DOWNWARD DIP in home starts was foreseen this week as a result of congressional failure to extend FHA's Title VI mortgage insurance operations.

The Housing Institute, which interprets real estate trends, commented: "Even if Congress meets again in July to revise Title VI, a late summer dip in house starts probably won't be avoided. Lack of Title VI funds will limit housing production of both large-scale builders and small builders without adequate cash reserves.

"Much worse off," the institute continued, "is large scale rental construction which cannot fall back upon an alternative way of financing. With Title VI insurance commitments expended as of April 30, new rental building starts under Title VI will drop from its present rate and will eventually stop."

The Nation's organized home builders seemingly viewed the loss of the mortgage insurance as a fair price to pay for blocking public housing provisions of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long range housing bill, which now has been stymied through the last four sessions of Congress.

Writing in the National Association of Home Builders "Washington Letter," Frank Cortright, NAHB executive vice president, commented: "Home builders must now adjust their operations to meet new working conditions. By financing through conventional methods and with assistance under FHA's Title II, a good volume of housing can be produced.

"The secondary market provisions now provided for FHA and GI loans will be helpful. However, it cannot be denied that the loss of Title VI will mean less housing construction this year. NAHB estimates that the Senate's failure to accept the Wolcott bill will cost veterans and others at least 100,000 units which would have been built under this legislation.

"This is most unfortunate, but it is my opinion that it is not too great a price for veterans and the industry to pay for blocking the socialization of housing in this country," Cortright concluded.

FHA celebrates its fourteenth birthday today. Born June 27, 1934, the agency has insured more that 12½ billion dollars of mortgage and property improvement loans, Commissioner Franklin D. Richards announced.

RICHARDS

Commissioner Richards pointed out that FHA, although a public service Government agency, is self-supporting. In fact, last year its operations were some 30 million dollars in the black, after payment of all operating expenses.

The last 12 months has seen the largest volume of business in any similar period of FHA's history. More than $2,700,000,000 in mortgage insurance was written. More than 550 million dollars involved small-home mortgages.

PERSONALS: George Griesbauer, popular Washington Post real estate display advertising salesman, was given a novel plastic portable radio yesterday by office associates as a going-away present. After seven years along realty row with time out for Air Corps service, Griesbauer has joined the advertising staff of WNBW, the NBC television outlet here. Harry DeLashmutt will replace him. . . Stephen G. Grey, with J. Wesley Buchanan's Washington office for the last three years, has crossed the Potomac to work out of Buchanan's Virginia office.

Builders, Interior Decorators, Make Home Exhibition Plans

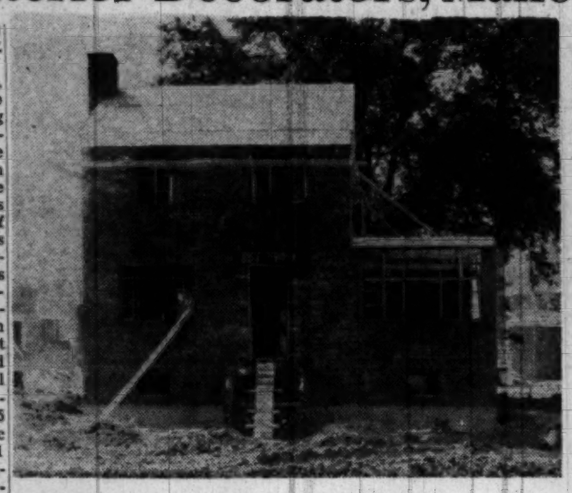
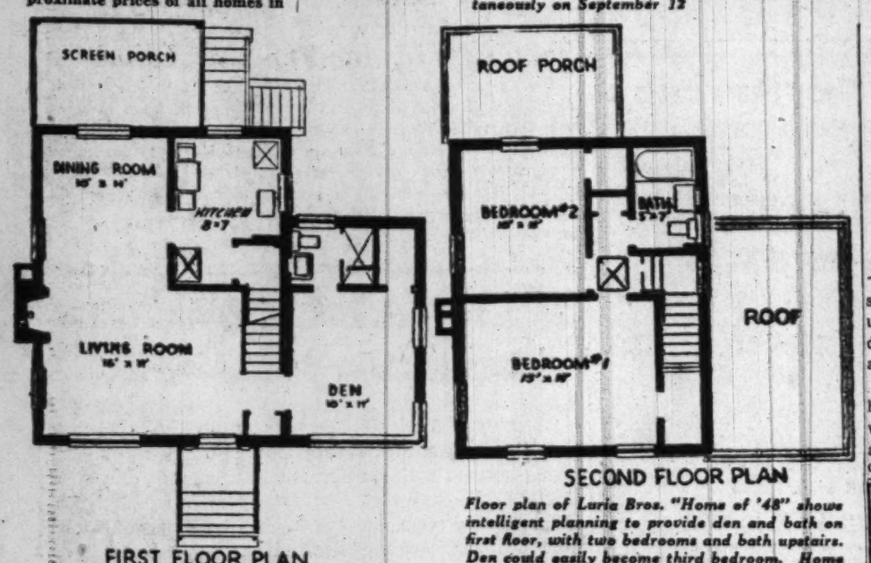
tion of Metropolitan Washington, commented: "This is one of the finest housing events ever presented to the Washington public. The Home Builders Association of Washington is proud that several of its builder-members will actively participate in this first great mass presentation of furnished homes. The four-week affair will serve as a great climax to National Home Week, September 5 to 12, and should whet the public appetite for the second annual Home Show Exposition at the National Guard Armory starting October 16 for eight days."

PEARSON

The real estate section of next Sunday's Washington Post will carry the exact locations and approximate prices of all homes in the exhibit. Builders will not be able to set an exact price tag until the homes are nearly complete, due to fluctuating materials and labor costs.



One of the 10 "Homes of '48" under construction: Roof is being put on this future exhibition home of Luria Bros. at 2637 No. Quantico st., Arlington. House and Hermann, furniture store, will provide furnishings. All exhibit homes will be opened simultaneously on September 12



Floor plan of Luria Bros. "Home of '48" shows intelligent planning to provide den and bath on first floor, with two bedrooms and bath upstairs. Den could easily become third bedroom. Home will sell for under $17,000.

A national leader in housing circles, Frank Cortright, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, a group of 13,000 home builders, pointed out that "Homes of '48" exposition will give the greater Washington area a wonderful chance to view some results of modern building skills and techniques.

CORTRIGHT

"I hope when the public inspects these homes they will observe the careful planning, good layout and excellent quality of workmanship. They will see what a fine job of building is being done by today's builders.

"Private home builders have performed a production miracle since the end of the war," Cortright added. "Within two years builders moved from war restrictions and materials shortages to building a million homes per year, a greater rate than at any time in history."

Participating builders and furniture dealers in the unique home display have been hard at work this week in the construction and planning of interior furnishings for the dream houses. Some builders expect to complete the exterior framing of their homes this month.

All homes will be closed to the public until the September 12 opening date. At a given signal, about 12:30 p. m. opening day, all homes will be opened simultaneously. Admission will be free.

Printed copies of a map and route list, showing the individual homes participating in the event, plus driving instructions to each site, will be furnished free to the public by The Washington Post.

As explained in last Sunday's Washington Post, the exhibition of homes will be representative of new houses available this year to Washington home buyers. Promoters of the exhibition have emphasized that furniture on display will be from available stocks. Visitors inspecting new and thrilling items will not hear last year's stock remark concerning new products: "Sorry, this was built for display purposes only and no more are available."

Everyone, not just prospective home buyers, will be invited to view all exhibit homes. Builders and furniture dealers have declared that items will be displayed which will interest every member of the family.

Choice of furnishings for any model home result from much skill and planning. Here, Mrs. Aida McCord and Douglas Prendergast, interior decorating experts for Mazor Masterpieces, consult a color chart, fabrics and a room plan to determine the best decorative scheme for a "Home of '48" now under construction in Silver Spring by David Milestone. Mazor Masterpieces, plus 18 other builders and furniture dealers, are participating in the mass exhibition of furnished homes here sponsored by The Washington Post. The spectacle will start September 12 and run four weeks

Glazed Chintz Can be Cleaned by Sponging

It is hard to wash glazed chintz draperies and have them the same as they were before. Many people have them dry cleaned to avoid any trouble. If washed, they should be laid flat and wiped off with a sponge wrung out of clear water, then pressed with a moderately warm iron. Keep the material flat during all processes so as not to crack the surface.

New Transparent Coating Rainproofs Brick, Cement

New York, June 26 (AP). — A transparent coating will rain-proof and damp-proof brick or cement walls and other surfaces in homes or other buildings. It's a semi-plastic emulsion which, upon evaporation of water, leaves a transparent coating on the masonry surface. It was perfected by Dr. Hugo Silbermann of the International Aquella Products, Inc.

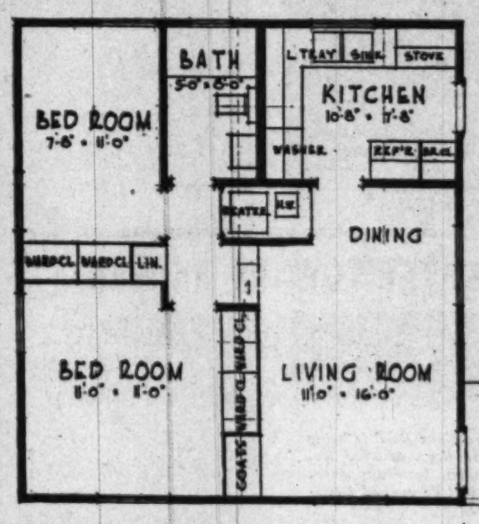
The material (named Aquaphane) is non-toxic and also protects the decorative effect of the original color of masonry. It reduces the water absorption of porous common brick by 90 per cent, Dr. Silbermann said. It's not applicable to wood, metal, marble or other solid masonry work.

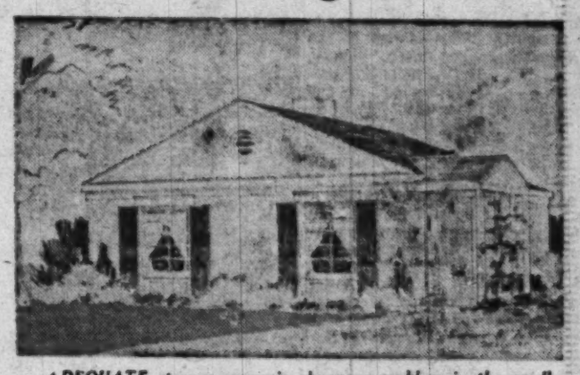
25 Lamp Sockets in Auto

Latest model automobiles have an average of 25 electric lamp sockets, the same as most homes. Luxury-lighted homes have as many as 43 outlets.

Blueprints Are Available

This Floor Plan Rates 'A' on Storage Areas





ADEQUATE storage space is always a problem in the small home. In this design wardrobe closet units from ceiling to floor help solve the problem. Laundry facilities consist of a combination sink and tray unit, and automatic washer. The automatic dryer can fit beside the washer. Native stone, redwood siding or asbestos shingle exterior is recommended. Blueprints and a specification guide for this home are available at Lansburgh's. (Plan No. 4, Homograph Planner Corp.)

Cleaning Tips for Venetian Blinds

With a clean cloth remove all dust from the blinds before attempting further cleaning. Then with a soft soapy rag, wash the slats carefully, pulling them to one side to avoid touching the tapes. Wipe dry with a clean cloth so the polish is not destroyed. Do not attempt too many in one day as they take time and care to do correctly. The wise woman is the one who includes them in with the regular dusting, using a brush made for this purpose. Then she has the washing job not more than twice a year.

FINE SMALL ESTATE IN NEARBY MONTGOMERY COUNTY

"SARATOGA ACRES"

An exceptionally well-built rambler type home with unusual barn and show ring, located on 2 acres of ground in Montgomery County, about 8 miles from Washington.

The house has a recessed doorway opening onto the center hall. On the left is a dining room connecting with a bright well-equipped morning room and completely modern kitchen. To the right of the hall is a living room with fireplace, and a step down from this a large paneled club room with massive stone fireplace, built-in bar, and picture window overlooking the large stone terrace.

The master bedroom suite has a dressing room, large built-in wardrobe, and large bath with shower. There are 2 other bedrooms with connecting bath.

The barn has 6 large box stalls with automatic water and feeders, paneled tack room, bath and groom's quarters, and large cement apron connecting to the show ring, which is enclosed by white panel fence.

The property is in excellent condition and is available at a price which is probably less than the cost of reproduction on today's market.

OPEN SUNDAY, 1 UNTIL 6

To Reach: From traffic light in Silver Spring, drive east on Colesville Road approximately 8 miles to our open sign, passing Mrs. K's Toll House Tavern.

Planners Come To Rescue Of Outdated Baths

Don't have a bathtub installed under a window.

The bathroom door should swing inward and the tub should be visible when the door is open.

Provide plenty of space for linen storage in the bathroom.

These are a few of the many helpful hints on planning of bathrooms and powder rooms offered in a new booklet published by the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau, 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago 1, Ill. The booklet costs 10 cents.

Unlike furniture which can easily be rearranged, fixtures in the bathroom or powder room, once installed, become a permanent part of the structure of the house and can be moved only at considerable expense.

For this reason, the bureau points out, advance planning of bathrooms and powder rooms, whether in new construction or modernization, will save money and time and will enhance the convenience and livability of the house.

A total of 34 plans for bathrooms and powder rooms are shown in the booklet. The volume is unique in that it is the only booklet ever published devoted exclusively to the planning and arrangement of bathrooms and powder rooms.

This Playground Is Portable

A portable playground for children pent up in apartments has been invented and built by a District construction worker, Michael Sacco, 604 4th st. nw.

In his apartment, three floors up near Judiciary Square, Sacco has a roomfull of gadgets he has built for his children, Linda Jean, 4, and Glenn, 8.

His latest gadget is a metal see-saw which (1) can be set up in a room or (2) can be taken apart and hauled in the trunk of the family car.

Playing with the collapsible seesaw made by District construction worker Michael Sacco, are, left to right, Paula Luttrell, 4, of 615 4th st. nw., and Linda Jean Sacco, 4, 607 4th st nw. Metal playground toy can also be set up in Sacco apartment for indoor use. Making playground equipment is a hobby with Sacco.

"We often take it out," Sacco says, "and set it up for the kids in an open space across the street or in some public park."

He started building things for the kids about two years ago when he worked with a group of men who made playground equipment in their spare time.

Among the gadgets in the apartment for Glenn are a roomsize chinning bar to which acrobatic rings and a pump-swing can be attached and, for Linda Jean, a hobby horse made from an old automobile spring and an indoor, room-size sand box.

The see-saw is Sacco's pride and joy and he has applied for a patent on it. Made of metal tubing pivoted on a 26-inch-high tripod and with hardwood seats and bicycle hand grips, the see-saw can be unscrewed into six small, easy-to-handle pieces.

Michael Sacco, 607 4th st. nw., with collapsible see-saw he designed and built for use by his children. Toy unscrews into six small, easy-to-handle pieces. Glenn Sacco, 8, watches dad put the unassembled see-saw into the family car for easy transportation to a nearby playground

Supplies Calcium

Salad a Day Helps Keep Doctor Away

The New Broad Leaf Endive Is a Fine Summer Salad

Green, leafy vegetables, which supply your family with vitamin A and calcium, include the leaf crops which are served uncooked in salads. If you like bowl salads, you can serve one at least once a day without complaint.

Many leaves can be used for bowl salad, including all the greens which are also cooked. But our chief reliance will probably be on leaf lettuce and endive, especially the form known as escarolle or broad leaved endive.

During hot weather we must depend on escarolle, which takes 90 days to mature. By sowing a row at the same time as the first lettuce sowing, we may have it ready in midsummer when trouble with lettuce usually begins. Three sowings of endive, made 20 days apart, will provide you with daily salad leaves until freezing weather.

The best quality of both broad and curly leaved endive is obtained by giving the plants plenty of room in the row so they mature loose heads. The leaves grow crisp and turn cream colored at the base. Newer varieties lack the bitter tang which older forms used to have before frost had sweetened them. It is no longer the practice to bleach the leaves by tying them up, or placing the heads between boards, as this reduces the vitamin content of the leaves.

Endive not only stands hot weather better than lettuce, but it remains in good condition longer in the fall, being improved in quality by frosty weather.

For Radish Quality Sow Every Week

Radishes Provide a Welcome First Harvest in the Garden.

Radishes share with green onions from sets the welcome which is always given the first harvest from the vegetable garden. But never sow more than a week's supply of early radishes at a time.

The early type, such as Scarlet Globe, matures in three weeks, and in another week turns pithy; so if you have not used them all, there will be a sad waste of good radishes and garden space.

To avoid waste, sow not more than 7 feet of row each week until hot weather or double the sowing, but use a second early, such as Icicle, and start using it when half-grown. For hot weather, sow one of the long, slow growing varieties; and in midsummer put in the winter varieties, which are largest of all, but of good quality and can be used until Christmas.

But remember to sow radishes thinly, and give each plant plenty of room to mature. The seed come up in a few days, and many gardeners sow their first crop by mixing a few radish seed with the seed of slow germinators, such as carrots, parsnips, parsley and beets, all of which can be sown as soon as the soil has been prepared.

Be sure to use not more than a tenth as many radish seeds. They will come up long before their slow germinating companions, and "mark the row."

Especially in Summer

Day-Old Squash Is Tasty Dish

Among the delicious vegetables which only home gardeners can enjoy at their best are baby squash—immature fruits of summer squash and marrows. Harvested a few days after they have formed, these tender fruits should never be picked until just before they are to be served. A few hours' delay will cause them to toughen and lose flavor.

Any variety of summer squash may be eaten in the baby stage, but the vegetable marrows are most popular for this treatment; and Italian marrows, otherwise known as cocozelle and zucchini are most in demand. They are among the fastest growing vegetables; in 60 days they will produce huge bushes and begin to bear their fruits. Because of their bush habit, they can be grown in the corner of small gardens, but need space at least 4 feet square for each bush.

Italian Marrow Can Be Used at Any Stage of Growth

If baby squash are desired, they must be picked as soon as they reach the desired size, which may be anywhere from 2 to 6 inches long, less than an inch in diameter. By picking all fruits young, others will keep coming; but if one is overlooked it will quickly attain huge size, and production of others will slow down.

Italian marrows are delicious at all stages of growth, from 2 inches to 2 feet long, and from an inch to 6 inches in diameter. The smallest are boiled with the skin on and served with melted butter, or sliced cold and served with mayonnaise. When the fruits mature and the skin hardens, the seeds are removed, and the fruits baked. Medium size fruits may be sliced and fried like egg plant.

Poland, Italy Work Out Car Details

Warsaw, Poland, June 26 (AP).—The Polish government and the "Fiat" motorcar works in Turin, Italy, are going to do a lot of business this year. Poles are slated to buy 1600 passenger cars, 350 4-ton trucks, 550 7-ton trucks, 100 10-ton trucks, 180 motorbuses and 50 motorbus trailers.

The Italian firm also has licensed Poland to build Fiat cars here. A factory, capable of producing 10,000 cars annually, is to be ready for operation within three years.

British Continue St. George Search

Hamburg, June 26 (AP).—The British Control Commission has difficulty identifying its patron saint. Officials of the monuments and fine arts division thought a statue of a man on horseback putting a dragon down for the count was Saint George. It was found in a Hamburg scrap metal yard. They proudly announced that the long missing Saint George and dragon looted from the Zeebrugge, Belgium, British war memorial had been found.

Reporters and cameramen were informed and a press release issued. But a few hours later an official called the reporters again. A second look by experts at the statue had shown it to be German. There was no duobt about the dragon's identity—but the man wasn't Saint George of England.

Passes the Buck

Oklahoma City (U.P.).—William T. Billups talked himself into the Oklahoma Cockers Breeders Association in an eloquent speech nominating E. E. Finefrock. Finefrock said he preferred to pass the office on to another member—Billups—and the club elected Billups.

Chinese "Corked" Yangtze Too Well

NANKING (AP).—The Chinese did such a good job of corking up the Yangtze to stop the rush of the Japanese into central China in 1937 that they are having trouble getting it uncorked.

A barrier of sunken ships 180 miles east of Hankow delayed the Japanese all through the war. They removed two of the ships, but even so it slowed river shipping, especially in low water.

Now China, with the Communists cutting so many railroads, badly needs the waterway. Twenty salvage firms found the ships firmly sunk in the silt, and gave it up as a bad job. So the government has directed the Chinese navy to begin preparations to blast out the sunken hulks.

250,000 Non-Residential Buildings Erected in 1947

The building industry has built 250,000 new nonresidential buildings, in addition to starting nearly 900,000 dwelling units last year, according to an analysis prepared by the Construction Industry Information Committee, Melvin H. Baker, chairman, declared.

"Included are 3000 churches, 2800 schools and libraries, 43,000 stores and warehouses, 13,600 factories and workshops, and more than 3200 office buildings," Baker said.

"More than 500,000 new nonresidential buildings have been started since VJ-Day, in addition to two million housing units started.

"The number of new nonresidential buildings for which building permits were issued in urban areas last year was 133 per cent greater than in 1942 and 73 per cent higher than in 1945.

"About 2000 new amusement buildings were undertaken during the year, plus 500 public buildings," he added.

Let's Get Down to Earth

Wrong Use of Weed Killers Can Ruin Garden

By James H. Beattie

IT'S all very well to advise against working garden soil while wet, but during rainy weather something must be done to prevent crabgrass, ragweed and other unwanted plants from taking over the garden.

Recent interest in chemical weed killers has led many to wonder if these can control weeds around garden fruits, vegetables and home ornamentals. A correspondent recently asked: "Why not use 2,4-D preparations to control weeds in my vegetable garden? I have read that it is being employed in a large way for controlling weeds during the early stages of growth of corn and for killing weeds in grain fields. Why not use weed killers between the rows in my vegetable garden?

Unfortunately, evidence now available shows that only three of our garden crops, asparagus, corn and white potatoes are resistant to damage by the 2,4-D preparations. In the home yard or garden these plants are usually grown closely adjacent to other fruits, vegetables or flowers and it would be impossible to treat resistant plants without injuring the others.

One gardener reported this sad experience: Having had excellent results with herpicides for ridding the lawn of dandelion and other weeds, he decided to try the treatment in his vegetable garden. Extreme care was taken to apply the spray only to the weeds between the rows, but there was sufficient movement or "drift" of the material to cause an almost complete loss of his tomatoes, beans and other plants.

Caution Recommended

HERPICIDES have not developed to the point where they can be recommended for general use in the home garden. Extreme caution is required when using the material anywhere around the home yard. Dust or spray applications to the lawn for the control of wild onion, dandelion, plantain and other broad-leaved plants, and to borders for poison ivy, honeysuckle and other objectionable plants is attended by considerable danger from movement of the spray or dust to adjacent susceptible plants.

Extreme caution is required when applying weed killers. Be sure solution does not reach garden vegetables or home plants

Progress is being made in developing improved materials and devising safer methods for their use but we still have no perfect solution for the weed problem in the home garden. Cultivation is still the main reliance for disposing of weeds.

Some weeds make an almost unbelievedly rapid growth in wet weather. Lambs quarter and ragweed are two of the worst offenders. Usually located adjacent to plants where they have escaped attention, their removal without interfering with the root system of the plant is a problem. If pulled out, a large mass of soil is likely to be removed.

A better plan for the removal of these weeds consists in cutting them off with a knife or pruning shears. If cut low, at the surface of the soil they are unlikely to cause further trouble. This treatment is particularly effective for removal of weeds in sweet corn and potatoes. Potatoes are quite sensitive to any disturbance of the root system during the latter stages of their growth. If large growing weeds are kept out the task of harvesting will be materially lessened.

Control of Garden Pests

CONDITIONS are particularly favorable during wet weather for the development of many serious disease enemies of garden crops. Control of insects and diseases is complicated by the difficulty in keeping a protective dust or spray residue on the plants. While it is discouraging to dust or spray and have a deluge of rain immediately thereafter, the conditions require added precautions to protect the plants as far as possible, from damage. This means more frequent application of the fungicides and insecticides.

The old well known Colorado potato beetle has been quite troublesome this spring. Fortunately it is easily controlled. Numerous excellent preparations are available to control this insect. One old fashioned remedy consisting of a mixture of arsenate of lead, or calcium arsenate, one part to five or six parts of cheap or damaged wheat flour has been used this spring with marked success. The flour forms a paste on this foliage and keeps the poison in place for many days of rainy weather. DDT dusts or sprays are particularly effective because they cause almost complete control of both the potato beetle and leaf hoppers. The latter are mainly responsible for the spread of certain diseases and the life of the plants is greatly extended, usually meaning increased yields.

Cucumbers and other members of the vine crops require care during the prevailing wet weather. Diseases and insects seem to have a special fondness for this group of plants. Diseases in particular are rampant under moist conditions and their spread is often aided by the presence of insects, especially aphids and the cucumber beetles.

Nicotine sulphate sprays or dusts are easily applied and give almost complete control of aphids. Rotenone dust or spray should constitute the main line of defense against the cucumber beetles. A two per cent DDT dust has been reported as effective against the cucumber beetles but slight injury to the plants was also noted. It is believed that rotenone supplies the best answer to this problem.

Daily Spraying Advised

JAPANESE beetles are here and they are due to stay about a month and a half. Thus far two general methods of attack have been effective against this pest. The so-called milky disease treatment, available in commercial form as Japademic and by other trade names, destroys the hibernating larvae in the soil. Spraying or dusting with DDT, using 5 to 10 per cent dust or a spray prepared by using 5 teaspoonfuls of a 50 per cent wettable powder to each gallon of water is effective.

The spray or dust must actually come in contact with the beetles either when applied or by alighting on the treated plants. This presents a problem as opening flowers and growing shoots of roses, dahlias, etc., present uncontaminated feeding areas between the weekly sprayings or dustings. Some overcome this difficulty by using a small hand sprayer or duster to make daily applications.

Neither DDT, the various arsenicals, cryolite or other materials of this nature should be applied to small fruits or to portions of vegetables that are to be eaten. Rotenone-rosin or a lime-aluminum sulfate spray are recommended for this use.

'Lovable' Robot Pets Devised By Scientist

BRISTOL, England (AP).—A robot tortoise with a "mind" has reached the blueprint stage at Burden Neurological Institute. Conceived by Dr. W. Gray Walter, director of the institute's physiological department, the tortoise is designed to react just like the real thing.

He said the tortoise probably would be very large at first, "when I get the time to build it." He chose this particular creature because of its "convenient shape." It's size may be reduced when it becomes possible to make microscopic valves, michrophones and photo-electric cell to control it. When completed, he said he would challenge anyone to tell whether or not it was living, without prolonged observation."

Dr. Walter pictured something like this happening: "As you stand by the fire a robot tortois lumbers along and nestles closely by your leg. You exclaim in astonishment. The tortoise sheers off nervously and takes refuge under the sofa, but a low whistle brings it back again. It will even seem to possess all manner of lovable qualities conspicuously missing in other robots."

Drop of Blood Used for 30 Tests

BETHESDA, MD., June 26 (AP).—With new techniques, a single drop of blood can be used in 30 chemical tests to determine the effectiveness of malaria drugs. The drugs often are tested on chicks, but only small quantities of blood can be obtained from the chick.

The methods of analysis were described to the American Chemical Society by Edward S. Josephson and Joseph Greenberg of the tropical disease division, National Institute of Health. The methods also can be used on humans, especially children, when it's advisable to work with tiny quantities of blood obtained by pricking the finger, they said.

Stray Cat Stops Carolina Press

Columbia, S. C., June 26 (AP).—A stray cat from an adjoining alley stopped the presses at the State, morning newspaper here, for 30 minutes recently. The cat wandered into the press room, jumped on the web of newsprint stretched through the press. The paper broke under the weight, sending the cat sprawling into a pit beneath the press.

A half hour later pressmen had the press restrung with paper and had hauled a dirty, grease-soaked cat out of the pit.

Porky Raises Cain

Dayton, Wash. (U.P.).—A porcupine waddling across the highway caused one car to go into the ditch, another car to smash into the first and two other cars to smack together when they couldn't avoid the pile-up. Bent fenders, radiators and grilles added up to $1000 in garage bills.

Works in Pay Phones, Juke Boxes

If Your Nickel Isn't Dated 1913, It Buys Almost Nothing

By Ruth Constad

NEW YORK, June 26 (U.P.).—Since inflation gave us the 59-cent dollar, the big question is: what's become of the nickel?

Well, most people wouldn't give you two cents for it. It no longer will buy a clay pipe, a cookie cutter or a comic book. And out of the hundreds of thousands of items on department store counters, it won't purchase one.

A survey revealed that people are still using them for phone calls, juke boxes, stamp and coca-cola machines. But store proprietors agree that when it comes to ringing nickels up for a cash sale they're practically extinct.

Can't Buy Aspirins

IT'S true that five pennies will still get you a shrunken chocolate bar, an undersized apple or two skinny doughnuts. But they won't even buy you aspirins to relieve your high-priced headache.

You can use your nickel to buy a few pipe cleaners, a bathtub stopper, four extra-large safety pins or a rubber cane tip.

But when papa squawks about the food bill a sure cure is to hand him a nickel and send him down to the corner grocer. He will have a choice between a third-of-a-loaf of bread, one-sixteenth of a pound of limburger cheese, a handful of rice, or an onion.

And he won't fare any better in the hardware store. For a nickel he can have his pick of a hose clamp, a hook to hang knives on, four large screws, or a wick for his cigaret lighter.

Two Hatpins for Nickel

AT Woolworth's five and dime emporiums five cents doesn't buy much, either the counters offer two hatpins, a pocket comb, a spool of thread, a pair of shoe laces, a rubber eraser, a pen point, or a tape measure, for one nickel. The price of dice has soared to 10 cents a pair.

Macy's offers a shade pull for a nickel. The florists will part with one sunflower for five cents.

But times really aren't so bad when you can buy nickel coffee, nickel lunches (on the Bowery) and a five-cent cigar.

In fact, the coin may be worth a mint to you. If you've got a 1913 nickel with a Liberty head instead of a bison, coin collectors will pay $1000 for it.

214 Wolves Killed From Red Plane

Moscow, June 26 (AP).—S. M. Gorbunov has been given more than 60,000 rubles in prizes and a large quantity of consumer goods for shooting and killing 214 wolves from an airplane. Soviet Agriculture says Gorbunov is a worker in a Kazan factory which makes spare parts for tractors. His job is to fly the parts to tractor stations and see to their installation.

On one of his trips he noticed a group of wolves. He signaled his pilot to fly lower and ended up on this trip by killing nine of them. He bagged the others on later trips.

Ban Stays Despite 'Wrath of Gods'

Bombay, June 26 (AP).—The Bombay government has issued a communique refusing to withdraw a ban on cockfighting in the Ankola area of the north Kanara district as requested in mass petition by farmers. The petitioners said "since the ban was imposed the god Jataka has become angry and the area has suffered heavily from epidemics and other diseases" (spread by Jataka).

The communique explained the reasons for epidemics and asked the populace to cooperate with the health authorities "rather than depend on methods akin to witchcraft in the belief they are suffering from the wrath of the gods."

Youth Rinses Mouth And Dislocates Jaw

A 20-year-old youth who dislocated his jaw while rinsing his mouth was one of 142 District residents treated at local hospitals last week for injuries resulting from home accidents.

Such injuries, reported by the District Red Cross Accident Prevention Service, also killed two persons who were victims of falls. Fatal home accidents listed for this year now total 133.

One woman had a narrow escape when her young son accidentally shot a bb into her right eyebrow. Ten persons broke bones in home falls, three adults being injured when they fell in their bathtubs.

Children were hospitalized for a variety of injuries. A 19-month-old cut his lips when he put a razor blade in his mouth, and an 18-month-old girl badly burned her tongue when she stuck it on an electric sweeper while the current was turned on.

Youngsters also required treatment last week for eating or drinking the following: Half a jar of skin cream, a creosote solution, a potassium mixture, and overdose of aspirin compound, lye solution and paint.

Two children were burned when they pulled hot coffee and water on themselves, while a third, a 16-year-old girl, burned her neck with a hair-straightening iron. Plaster fell from a ceiling and injured a girl's head.

The Red Cross also reported that a man of 36 cut his arm while tinkering with a lawnmower, a boy cut off the tip of his finger with a saw in his father's workshop, and an electric fan cut the shoulder of a 5-year-old, necessitating several stitches.

Highway Safety Teachers' Course To Open Tuesday

American University will conduct an institute for instructors in highway safety and driving from Tuesday to July 9.

Aimed at preparing high school and college instructors for teaching road safety both in the classroom and behind the wheel, the institute will feature lectures, seminars, films and field work.

The course is given with the help of the accident prevention department of the Association of Casualty and Surety companies, the American Automobile Association, Automotive Safety Foundation, Highway Users Conference and Interindustry Highway Safety Committee. It recently received the indorsement of the District Traffic Advisory Board.

Rodeo Scheduled At Falls Church School July 3-5

A rodeo will be held on the high school grounds in Falls Church July 3, 4 and 5, with part of the proceeds going to the new Falls Church Teen Canteen.

Participating will be 60 head of cattle and 30 performers. Shows will be held at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. each day, and grandstands to hold 2000 people are being built.

County Officials Will Go on Stage

High officials of Fairfax County will leave their dignity at home Tuesday night to cavort around the stage at Fairfax High School in a minstrel show benefit for a Boy Scout community house.

Sponsored by the Fairfax Rotary Club, the show will include Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown, Trial Justice Harry L. Carrico and Fairfax Mayor Robert D. Graham as end men. In another part of the show, Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh will swish around in a hula-hula skirt and Clerk of the Court Thomas P. Chapman, jr., will play the part of a Russian ballet dancer.

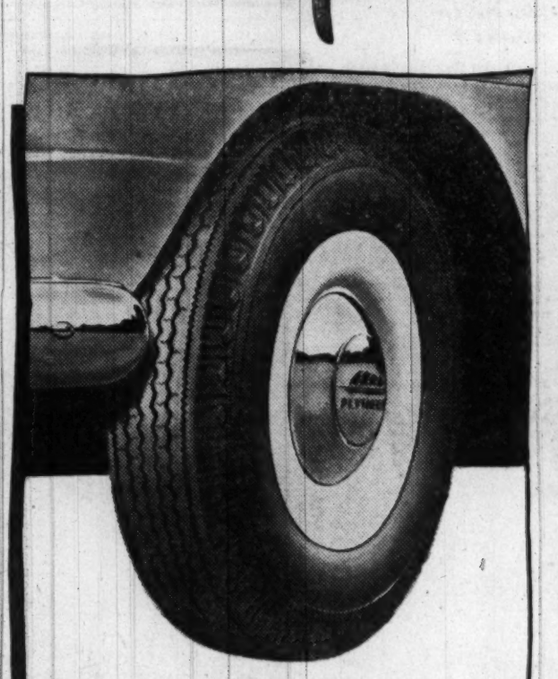
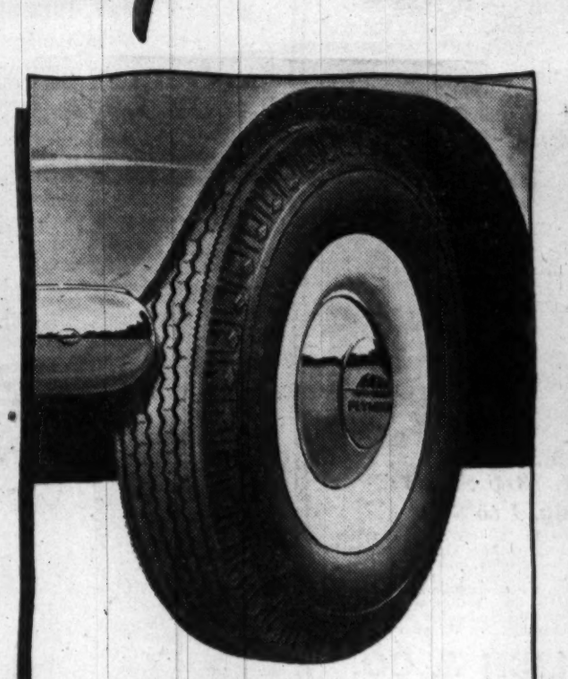
Plymouth does it with a Triple Play—for Safety!



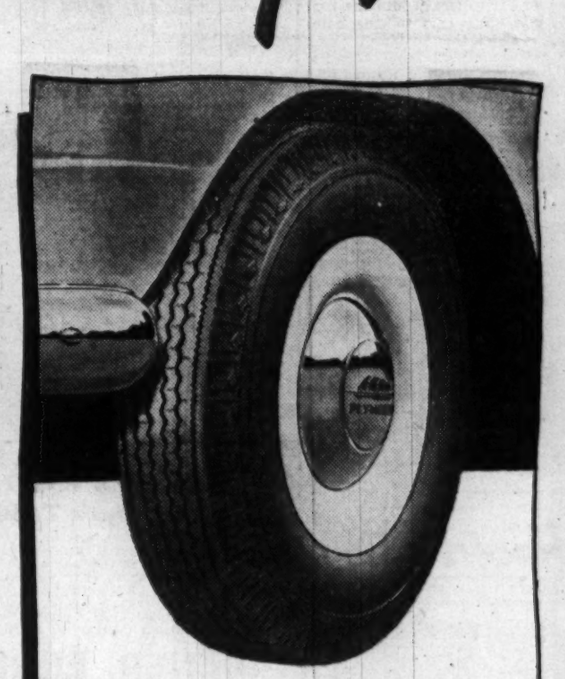
1. Super-Cushion Tires

Bigger, fatter, softer, these revolutionary new tires soak up road shocks from the side as well as below. Super-Cushions hug the road better. The improved tread, with notches molded in crosswise, gives greater traction. Teamed with Plymouth's Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes, Super-Cushions make stopping easier and surer. Teamed with Plymouth's new, wider Safety-Rim Wheels, they give you the most complete tire-failure protection ever. The tires reduce chances of failure because they run cooler. But should trouble occur you have the famous Safety-Rim Wheels to rely on.



2. New, Wider Safety-Rim Wheels

Safety-Rim Wheels take most of the danger out of blowouts, punctures, tire failures of any kind. As you know, ordinary rim wheels depend on air pressure alone to hold the tire in place. When the air lets go, the tire pulls away from the rim. But with Safety-Rim Wheels, patented retaining humps are there to hold the tire straight and tight on the rim as Plymouth's Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes bring you to a safe, easy stop. With road-gripping Super-Cushion Tires, these features make an unbeatable safety combination.



3. Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes

Engineers call this feature the greatest advance in car control since trail-blazing Plymouth pioneered hydraulic brakes in the lowest-priced field. Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes increase braking effectiveness by a third . . . give you maximum controllability—and that means maximum safety. Their action is accurate and non-erratic. They lighten needed foot pressure by 25%. With Super-Cushion Tires and new, wider Safety-Rim Wheels they make it possible for even emergency stops to be sure and easy. Only Plymouth has this amazing safety trio in the lowest-priced field.

Play Safe with Plymouth

In the lowest-priced field, Plymouth—and Plymouth alone—offers Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes and Super-Cushion Tires on new, wider Safety-Rim Wheels. Why do without them when every new Plymouth has these great safety advances as standard equipment? And they're only the beginning of the Plymouth value story. Check the Quality Chart at your dealer's and you'll find that Plymouth shares 20 performance, comfort and economy features with high-priced cars—far more than any other car in its field. Yes, if it's Verified Value you want, you'll place your order for Plymouth.

Will the Movies One Day Grow Up?

By Richard L. Coe

YUCKETY-YUCKETY-YUCKETY: "Are the Movies a Menace?" asks the July Coronet . . . Ezra Goodman, author of an article which evidently has taken considerable time and care to produce, comes up with 12 categories on which the films presumably fall short and winds up with some interesting quotes from Hollywood big-wigs . . . Best of these comes from Producer Walter Wanger who urges "special chains or theaters with low overheads where advance types of pictures would play to select audiences. Such pictures will be comparable to a limited edition in the book field and would allow thematic and technical advances."

Such an idea we've often discussed with the moguls, who sneer at it as visionary and impractical . . . The way Wanger puts it still makes sense.

As for that "Menace" question, if you analyze those topics Goodman breaks his criticisms down to, you'll find they all stem from the same causes . . . Childish concepts all the way down the line, from commercial producers to a public divided into pressure groups and a wolfish appetite for some of the sleazier Hollywood efforts . . . We read the article with the radio turned on and came to the conclusion that the movies are not a whit more of a menace than political conventions.

MARY MacARTHUR is staying on for another week at Olney before sailing for England to join her mother for the Helen Hayes London debut in "The Glass Menagerie." . . . Miss MacArthur will do the "brat" role in "The Philadelphia Story," with Diana Barrymore as the star . . . Not every week will you get the chance to see the offsprings of a Barrymore and a Hayes acting on the same country stage . . . Visiting Mary at the moment out at Olney is 10-year-old Jamie MacArthur, a bright blond type whom Mama Hayes figured the countryside of lonely Olney would benefit.

FORMER GOVERNOR Jim Davis of Louisiana, is coming to visit the Capitol in Washington and we don't mean the one on the Hill, either . . . Such are the winds of political fate, the former Chief Executive of that gur-ate and gul-orious State will be headlining the Capitol Theater stage show the week of July 15 . . . He's bringing along a six-piece hillbilly band . . . For once in his hurried life, it looks as if nimble Connie B. Gay missed a headliner for his Constitution Hall Saturday nights . . . Connie insists, though, that you have to be more than a freak to be on his show . . . You've got to be good, screams Connie.

FRANCES STARR has left her Kalorama rd. fastness for the coolness of Maine and a return to the boards at Ogunquit . . . The beloved Starr will be playing "The Corn Is Green" and the role of the Welsh teacher should be a fine one for her . . . Too bad Olney can't lure Miss Starr for this one; surely her Washington neighbors would enjoy seeing Mrs. Wetten in the role Ethel Barrymore first played at the National.

FRANK FAY and his "Harvey" company are certainly getting to feel at home in Washington—and G street's Olmsted's . . . Tomorrow night they begin their seventh week in that cheerful, philosophic comedy . . . Last week they all took their roles and the complete "Harvey" out to Walter Reed for a performance before one of the most heart-filling audiences ever . . . When George Gaul and the National's orchestra heard of the special matinee, they asked: "What about us?" . . . "You don't have to go," the men were told . . . "HAVE to!" they thundered, "We want to go." . . . And play they did at Walter Reed . . . Tonight the "Harvey" people will take a busman's holiday jaunt out to Catholic University to see Jean Kerr's revised "Jenny Kissed Me," which opens the university's summer drama season with a one-week run.

T/SERGT. CARL DILKS, now at Andrews Field, was stationed on Wake Island and taken prisoner at the start of the war . . . Along with Colonel Devereaux and his Marines, Dilks' outfit were portrayed in Paramount's "Wake Island." . . . But Dilks never saw the film . . . So Friday night Paramount screened the picture for the sergeant and his party.

SHOWFOLK are always proud of their record when it comes to charity . . . Next Wednesday at 8, Sidney Lust's Cheverly Theater will present a film and variety show for the benefit of the family of Charles Caldwell, the Prince Georges County police officer who was killed in line of duty recently . . . "Green Grass of Wyoming" will be the picture and WOL's Bill Brundige will head a group of acts including Nora Williams, Bob Freed and Frances Parker . . . Tickets for Wednesday night are on sale at all the Prince Georges County Lust theaters, which last weekend collected almost $2000 for the Caldwell fund.

J. EDGAR HOOVER and Louis B. Nichols, his assistant FBI director, are proud of Twentieth Century's "Street With No Name," which opens Thursday at the Palace . . . This story, and a cracking good one, of the urban crime gangs on the up across the country, highlights the depressing fact that the crime leaders of today and tomorrow are the 17-year-olds of a few years ago who then constituted the biggest proportionate crime age group in the land . . . The film, Nichols told us, was two years in the making.

"Legit" Theater Fate in D. C. Awaits Bids

Belasco Site Once Traded for a Donkey

By Dorothea Andrews

THE FATE of the legitimate theater in Washington—at least for the immediate future—will be settled Thursday, at 2 p. m., when the Federal Works Agency will open sealed bids to lease the Belasco Theater.

And if it accepts one of those bids, Washingtonians may see Broadway shows here this fall. However, the IF is of mountainous proportions.

The FWA "reserves the right to reject any or all proposals." Further, a successful bidder may have to vacate, on a year's notice, any time after the first five years of the lease, which would run from September 1, 1948 to August 31, 1958.

It might turn out that the successful bidder will be a movie representative, in which case Washington would be without a "legit" theater. No restriction was placed on bidders by the FWA when it announced in May that it would accept bids.

The Government has stipulated that anyone leasing the Belasco will have to furnish his own equipment, heat and water facilities—this despite the fact that the Belasco is now heated by the Central Heating Plant.

Some of the bidders are piqued at terms of the FWA proposal, which they have called unfair. J. G. Frain, executive secretary of the Washington Art Center Association, Inc., declared, "It appears that every possible obstacle to make the restoration and operation of this theater unreasonably hard and unrewarding has been incorporated into the proposals for bids."

Ban Now On

THAT THERE should be sharp interest in the outcome of the Belasco Theater is evident, for Washington faces a theatrical blackout by August 1 unless Actors' Equity rescinds its ban on the National Theater.

The ban will be in effect as long as the National continues to refuse admission to Negroes. Theater Operator Marcus Heiman has stated that it is not up to him to break with a pattern of segregation already established in Washington. The National is now slated to become a movie house.

The old Belasco was the Stage Door Canteen during the war

The history of the Belasco Theater and the site it occupies is vivid Americana. The land first came to prominence when it was owned by Henry Clay, who traded it for an Andalusian jackass which Commodore John Rogers had brought back from Spain.

Commodore Rogers built a home there, which later became a boarding house. One of the roomers was Clay himself; another was John C. Calhoun, who lived there while Secretary of War. Chief Justice Roger B. Taney stayed there before his appointment to the Supreme Court bench.

During the Civil War, Secretary of State William H. Seward lived in the house. On the night of April 14, 1865, while Lincoln was being assassinated and Seward was sick in bed, Lewis Payne, compatriot of Booth, rushed into Seward's bedroom and stabbed him in the throat.

William H. Belknap, Secretary of War under President Grant, also lived in the house for a time. It was then bought by James G. Blaine, whose heirs owned the land when the theater was built.

Miss Russell Starred

IT WAS originally known as the Lafayette Square Opera House, and as such opened on September 30, 1895, with Lillian Russell starring in De Koven's opera "The Tzigane." In succeeding years, Mme. Schumann-Heink and Jenny Lind were among those who sang before Washington audiences.

In 1905, the building was taken over by David Belasco and the Schuberts, and the name changed to Belasco. Helen Hayes and Ruth Chatterton both made their debuts at the theater, as did Ina Claire.

It was at the Belasco that Flo Ziegfeld asked Will Rogers to join his company, and it was also at the Belasco that Rogers had a White House tiff.

One of the jokes in the show "Midnight Frolic" had Rogers saying:

"The American public will never get much accomplished until they get a President who gets seasick and who can't play golf."

Always Disputes

Artists Have Affinity for Hot Water

By W. G. Rogers

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP).—Creative workers must like hot water—they're always getting into it. Police raid bookstores and confiscate what someone calls salacious novels. Statues are removed from museums because they are too nude. Paintings are tossed out for showing too much skin or for being too modern in manner or too radical in thought.

But the most controversial art form of all is probbaly the mural. If it's painted on a museum wall, where most people who see it are art amateurs, it's in a comparatively, though not wholly, safe place. But it's apt to be in a postoffice, library, school or Government building, and it invites criticism from the layman. He objects to the way his tax money has been spent, or to the "modernistic" art which he scorns as tommyrot, or to the painter's ideas which he thinks are dangerous.

There's nothing new about mural disputes, though there's a new dispute in connection with a Diego Rivera wall painting in a lush Mexico City hotel. Mural disputes are not new to Rivera, either. His murals in the Detroit Institute of Art were untrue to life, local citizens complained back in the early 1930s.

Clashes With Church

IN 1936 some satirical frescoes of his were removed from another Mexican hotel. At present he is having trouble over the phrase "God Does Not Exist," which he painted in a panel in the dining room of the eight-million-dollar Hotel Prado. The Archbishop of Mexico refused to bless the building unless the words were deleted; Rivera, refusing to delete them, suggested that the archbishop bless the hotel and damn the mural.

Rivera's most widely heralded fight came in connection with the Rockefeller City murals in which he included a head of Lenin. He was fired, and the mural was removed.

But just to show that you can't please all the people all the time, the Sert murals which now cover the ground floor in the same building were criticized because, like the rest of the gigantic architectural pile, they lack color.

Lack of color was one of the charges brought against Puvis de Chavanne's pallid mural series in the Pantheon in Paris. The same artist did the same sort of job in the Boston Public Library. Conservative artists objected to the

45-Minute Record Means Great Savings

By Paul Hume

COLUMBIA RECORDS is about to place on the market a phonograph record which plays 45 minutes on one 12-inch double-faced record.

Developed by Dr. Peter C. Goldmark, CBS director of engineering research, they permit the playing of the majority of the symphonic and concert literature without interruptions every four minutes for the changing of the record.

DR. GOLDMARK

The new records, designated in Columbia's publicity, as LP (Long Playing) Microgroove, are cut with 224 to 300 grooves per inch instead of the present 90. Vinylite surfaces reduce noise to a minimum. The savings they represent to the buyer and collector of records will be tremendous.

At present the seventh symphony of Beethoven requires five 12-inch records, both sides. Such an album today costs $7.25, plus tax. On Columbia's new records, it will be played on a single 12-inch disc, costing $4.85, plus tax.

Will Be No Pause

THE MUSICAL difference lies in the wonderful fact that whereas all previous recordings of the Beethoven seventh have contained two interruptions of the first movement for record changes, the new system of recording will bring you the first movement without pause. After the customary break between movements at the discretion of the conductor, you will hear the second movement also without pause. At this point the record will need turning over, and on the reverse side you will hear the two final movements.

There are few symphonic movements requiring more than 22½ minutes to perform. That is the time limit on a side of the new records. Similarly, there are relatively few works requiring more than 45 minutes to play.

Recordings, formerly taking up about 8 feet, can now be housed in little more than 12 inches. Another advantage of this recording is that it does not render obsolete any equipment you now use for your records. But now we come to the temporary drawbacks and unavoidable questions.

The new discs must be played at 33 1/3 revolutions per minute, instead of the usual 78. To convert your present machine, Columbia has collaborated with Philco to market a machine selling for $29.50 which makes it possible to play these records on your own phonograph. In addition, Philco is planning to manufacture all its future machines with the dual playing speed.

Public Demand Lacking

PHONOGRAPH manufacturers have long experimented with dual-speed turntables, but public demand was lacking and the 78 rpm speed persisted.

Chief question in the slower speed is: will the medium priced machine, with an average motor, turn absolutely evenly, at 33 1/3 rpm? Slower speed is a strain on a motor not designed to play at that speed, and, of course, any variation in speed will be reflected instantly in a wavering of pitch and tone.

In addition to the difference in motor, the new records require a lighter pickup, one with a playing stylus one-third the size of the conventional phonograph needle at the point of contact. These adjustments are necessary to compensate for the much narrower grooving on the new discs, and are incorporated in the Philco gadget to be attached to your present machine.

150 in 'Glory' Drama Cast

Williamsburg, Va., June 26 (AP).—"The Common Glory," Paul Green's symphonic drama of the struggles, hardships and final triumph of American colonists in their fight to achieve self-government, opens its second season with elaborate new scenery, new lighting effects and more than 150 experienced players.

Two of Broadway's younger leading men, Walter Brooke, cast as Thomas Jefferson, and John Morley, as narrator, top the list.

"The Common Glory," which played to 90,000 persons from every State and several foreign countries in 1947, will be staged every night except Monday from July 2 through Labor Day.

The stage is on the banks of Lake Matoaka. The lake will be visible to the audience when the play is not in progress.

Radio in Review

Pearl Back But 'Sharlie' Is Missing

By John Crosby

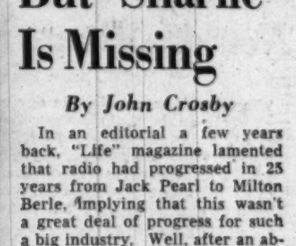
In an editorial a few years back, "Life" magazine lamented that radio had progressed in 25 years from Jack Pearl to Milton Berle, implying that this wasn't a great deal of progress for such a big industry. Well, after an absence of years, Mr. Pearl is back on the air again, signifying, I guess, that even the small progress noted by "Life" was illusory.

Mr. Pearl established himself from about 1932 to 1937 as some sort of national institution simply by telling tall stories which his sidekick, Cliff Hall, persistently refused to believe. When challenged by Mr. Hall, Pearl retorted invariably and inevitably: "Vas you dere, Sharlie?" Few lines have ever brought such fame and fortune as that four-word question but eventually, as it must to all jokes, the humor palled. Mr. Pearl fell into disfavor.

Shelves Expression

ON HIS new show (NBC 8:30 p. m. EDT Wednesdays), the summer replacement for "The Great Gildersleeve," I braced myself for half an hour in preparation for that "Vas you dere, Sharlie?" It never came. Mr. Pearl still talks an outlandish German accent, his sibilants fizzing like champagne; he still tells tall stories but he has laid aside "Vas you dere, Sharlie?"

I rather enjoyed hearing Mr. Pearl again, largely, I suspect, for sentimental reasons. (Good old 1932!) Pearl now operates under his own name rather than his pseudonym, Baron Munchausen.



PEARL HALL

As a comic device he operates his own business, which is in perpetual difficulties. Cliff Hall has returned with the veteran comedian, his credulity still taxed to the utmost by Pearl's stories.

Incidentally, German dialect comedy may puzzle some of the younger generation who have never heard such a thing. When I was a boy in Milwaukee, German accent comedy rested securely on a foundation of truth.

Pearl also found space to include a magnificent tussle with a telephone which persistently gave him wrong numbers, here again playing heavily on the sympathies of the elder listeners who probably haven't heard that in years.

Well-Known Voice

JULIE Conway, who possesses a voice which may well be second only to Bing Crosby's in national renown, achieved that eminence by declaiming just four words. Up until last year, you could hear Julie four times a day—twice each on the "Ma Perkins" and Jack Smith shows—squealing rapturously "Ooooh," that Oxydol sparkle!" Since last year, the slogan has been changed and Julie now employs her capable lungs on: "That new, new, NEW Oxydol sparkle!"

JULIE

Julie is unhappy about dropping the "pooh" or the squeal, as

Real Life-Colored Films Devised by 2 Parisians

PARIS, June 26 (U.P.).—The world may see real life-colored movies soon as the result of a revolutionary new way of making colored motion pictures announced here.

The system, devised by two middle-aged French inventors, Armand and Lucien Roux, is called Rouxcolor.

It consists of using a special spectrum lens attached to an ordinary camera and a similar type lens on the movie house projector. Ordinary black and white film is used.

The new lens has 40 finely ground pieces of optical glass in it, Armand Roux explained.

17 Years of Work

ROUX said he and his elder brother had been working on the idea for making exact-colored movies for 17 years. He said they had done all the work themselves, designing the lens, grinding the special prisms for it, and testing out the finished product.

The two brothers worked in a shabby laboratory on the fifth floor of a Left Bank loft building. There, with the aid of friends who lent them money, they started tinkering in their spare hours in 1930. They made experimental lenses which produced better color movies than present processes.

Just before the war they finally got a nearly perfect color print.

Hidden From Germans

DURING the German occupation, Armand Roux said he and his brother hid away the new lens and the blueprints so the Germans wouldn't get them.

After the war, with the financial aid of Hollywood and some French bankers, the two brothers set to work to produce a practical method of making the complicated spectrum lens. The first lens was turned out only a few weeks ago.

When Marcel Pagnol, famous French screen writer and producer, saw experimental films taken with Rouxcolor, he junked the black and white version of his latest picture, "The Pretty Miller's Wife." Pagnol will re-shoot the film in Rouxcolor.

New 45-Minute Record

The other item not clear in our mind, is: what about such works as the Tschaikowsky Sixth Symphony, Schubert's C Major, Rachmaninoff's E Minor symphony, and the other works which take, say 50, 55, and 60 minutes. All but 5 or 10 minutes will go on two sides of one disc. Will we then have 5 minutes more on another disc, plus something else we might not want in our library?

Columbia has already prepared a number of their best-selling classical and popular records in the new form. They plan to add albums from their present catalogue to the LP list, and to record most of their new sets on both standard and LP discs.

It seems to us that this is the most practical solution to the problems of interrupted performances and rising costs of records, as well as storage space. Tape recording is a home device of some value, but it does not approach acceptable standards in reproduction. Wire recording, still in experimental stages, shares with tape the disadvantage of making all previous equipment obsolete.

C. U. Offers 'Jenny Kissed Me'

The Catholic University Theater will open its summer series of three plays tonight at 8:30 with a revival of Jean Kerr's comedy, "Jenny Kissed Me."

The play was chosen for summer revival because of its unprecedented popularity during the past winter season. Its original run of three weeks was sold out within two days after its opening, and hundreds of patrons had to be turned away during the remainder of the run.

To accommodate these and those who wrote to the university requesting another opportunity to see the play, "Jenny" has been completely remounted scenically to fit into the new and larger theater building.

The revival run will be confined to a single week. It will be followed, during July and August, by two new productions to be announced later. Tickets may be reserved by calling Michigan 6000.

Cotten Knows Fur-lined Cups

HOLLYWOOD, June 26 (AP).—The artist Salvador Dali has painted fur-lined teacups, and film actor Joseph Cotten thinks he knows what they'd be like.

In "Weep No More," with Alida Valli, Cotten is required to sip from a cup of scalding tea, and then let the cup fall to the floor when the liquid burns his lips. But the cup mustn't break; that's important to the plot.

The property man solved the problem by lining the cup with adhesive tape.

This prevented the delicate china from shattering, but after doing the scene half a dozen times Cotten said he felt as if he'd spent the afternoon licking postage stamps.

If Grant Could Catch Himself

HOLLYWOOD (AP).—"Now, if I could just catch myself," said Grant Withers, "we'd save an awful lot of time and trouble."

Withers is working in two pictures simultaneously, "The Plunderers," in which he portrays a sheriff, and, on an adjoining sound stage, "Homicide for Three," in which he's the black-hearted villain fleeing desperately from the law.

"I could corner me," suggested Grant, taking off his sheriff's badge to move over to the next stage, "and then I could fight it out with myself. I could fix up the whole deal by squealing on myself. Because, you see, I'm the only one who knows where I am. I think it's a wonderful idea for confusing the audience—provided I can figure it all out myself."

European Orchestras on Film

Some of the major European symphony orchestras have been recorded in a series of film shorts, now being shown in Europe and destined for distribution in the United States shortly. The orchestras include such organizations as the Vienna Philharmonic, the Orchestre Nationale of Paris and various Swiss, Italian and Belgian orchestras. The sound film runs 10 minutes in length.

COUNTRYSIDE SCION: Diana Barrymore, of the celebrated acting family, who opens Tuesday night at the Olney Theater in Philip Barry's comedy, "The Philadelphia Story"

Diana Barrymore Opens on Tuesday At Olney Theater

Heading into its fifth week this Tuesday, the Olney Theater in Maryland comes up with another star, Diana Barrymore, in Philip Barry's comedy of the sexes, "The Philadelphia Story."

The action takes place on the Philadelphia Main Line, and it was first produced in New York City at the Shubert Theater, in 1939 by The Theater Guild. It was a tremendous success, both in New York and on the road, with Katharine Hepburn as the star.

Featured with Miss Barrymore in the Olney cast are Dean Harens and Robert Wilcox. Other players include Watson White, Jane Seymour, Peter Scott, Maurice Manson, Anne Francine, Grant Gordon, Paul Keyes and Dan Stapleton. The settings have been designed by S. Syrjala.

"The Philadelphia Story" will be staged by Harry Ellerbe, who performs his last directorial task for Olney this season.

This afternoon and tonight Olney presents the last two performances of Noel Coward's "The Marquise," starring Lillian Gish. Matinee is at 2:45, evening at 8:45.

James Dunn 'Harvey'

James Dunn of the films is the new Elwood P. Dowd of "Harvey." He replaced the British star Jack Buchanan, who played the role for a month after the departure of Jimmy Stewart.

Lettvin Gives Rochberg Sonata Premiere Tonight

THEODORE LETTVIN
. . . premieres work of George Rochberg.

NEXT Sunday the National Symphony, directed by Howard Mitchell, begins its series of 12 Watergate concerts.

Music to be heard at various concerts includes Copland's Fanfare for the Common Man, Milhaud's Suite Provencale, Five Miniatures by Paul White. Bastille Day, July 14, will bring an all-French program including Debussy's Clair de lupa, Ravel's Pavane, and the witty Divertissement of Ibert. The same program presents Albert Spalding playing Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole.

THIS week's music, of which there is less than we have had in months, finds a new sonato by an American composer. Theodore Lettvin's piano recital tonight at the National Gallery premieres the work of George Rochberg, native of New Jersey. Lettvin hails from Chicago.

Other great music of the week is to be heard today at 4 at Washington Cathedral, when the men's choir and the organist, Paul Callaway, present a program drawn entirely from the sixteenth century.

Student recitals of the week include pupils of Edward Carey, Thursday at 8:15 p. m., in the Second Baptist Church, 17th and E. Capitol sts.

The East Washington Heights Baptist Church evening service tonight will be entirely musical, with instrumental and vocal solos, and choral works by its choir under the direction of Violet Ihre.

PEABODY CONSERVATORY in Baltimore announces an imposing list of soloists for its Friday recitals next year: Vronsky and Babin, Piatigorsky, Chloe Elmo, Rudolph Firkusny, Spivakovsky, Thibaud, the Troop Family Singers, Italo Tajo, Sylvia Zaremba, Eva Likova, and Pierre Bernac with Francis Poulenc. These are names of artists whose work will in most instances serve as worthy models for the students of Baltimore's leading musical institution.

Again the SPEBSQSA: An Alexandria chapter of interested "Barbers" are meeting with Washingtonians in assistance, Tuesday, June 29, in the Alexandria recreation hall, 1605 Cameron st.

And more pupils: Alma Wolking students will be heard Wednesday in St. Matthew's Cathedral Club, 1814 N st. nw., at 7:30 p. m. P. H.

Unnecessary Stamps A Trial to Collector

By William M. Stuart

ONE cannot question the fact that many unnecessary stamps are being forced upon the Postoffice Department and there seems little to be done about it. The real culprits are members of Congress who have successfully engineered the passage of many bills for issuance of stamps. Officials of the department are against such action of Congress but appear helpless to stem the tide of new issues. The department stands upon its earlier 1948 stamp program, calling for a small number of issues.

Probably politics is the answer to so many new stamp issues, for even the Postmaster General has been overruled by Congress. At one time a vetoed stamp bill was finally issued, again upsetting the department's program. Collectors believe there is danger to philately in the wholesale issuance of commemorative stamps.

It might be well for every collector to register his protest against the above practice with the chairmen of the Senate and House committees of Postoffices and Post Roads.

The Division of Stamps is expected to issue a statement in a few days announcing the record of bills passed and lost in the legislative rush of the final days of Congress. Congress did pass several bills but others were passed by one house only, thus killing them for the session.

THE Woodridge Stamp Club met on Monday evening at the recreation center, 1818 Rhode Island ave. ne. The meeting scheduled for July 5 will not be held.

The Capital Precancel Club will meet tomorrow evening at the Week Stamp Shop, 1229 New York ave. nw.

In spite of the shooting, a special series of stamps was issued in honor of the ninth Inter-American Conference held in Bogota, Columbia. The stamps consisted of three postage and two air mail issues and also two miniature sheets.

The postal values are 5 centavos brown, showing Plaza de Bolivar and Metropolitan Cathedral; 10 centavos orange, with picture of National Capitol; 15 centavos blue, the Ministry of Foreign Relations. The air mail stamps, 5 centavos brown, courtyard of the Chancellery, and 15 centavos blue, Rafael Nunez Courtyard. The sheet of postage stamps, a 50 centavos gray, shows a map of North America and a coat of arms. The air mail sheet shows 50 centavos brown with a map of South America and coat of arms.

AT THE Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., Tuesday evening in Pythian Temple the speaker was James N. Wong of New York, vice president of the New York Chapter of the Chinese Stamp Society. He spoke on conditions of the stamp market in China and touched on the dangers of inflation in that country. At the meeting on Tuesday evening the annual election of officers will be held.

The Record Player

Maynor Puts Great Voice On New Disk

SCHUBERT: Serenade; also: Liebesbotschaft. Dorothy Maynor, soprano, with George Schick, pianist. Victor 10-1372. 75 cents.

Maynor's voice, often beautifully recorded, is lifelike and quite lovely on this disk. She will be heard in Washington at the opening of the Watergate symphony season, on the Fourth of July. If you can't wait until then to hear her, this record is a fine sample of her art.

Tschaikowsky: Symphony No. 44. Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy. Columbia 736. $7.10.

What I love is the stuff they put in blurbs about records. The publicity accompanying this set says "Ormandy, however, is one of the greatest of present day Tschaikowsky Interpreters." Who says so? I don't happen to agree. Where does that leave us? Well—I guess it leaves us with the usual conclusion that it all depends on how you like your Tschaikowsky.

If you like it stretched out of shape, with great retards and great hurryings in each section, then Ormandy suits you fine. In this recording, for instance, the principal themes of the first movement are seldom allowed to flow at an even tempo. Almost every time they are swollen to bigger than lifesize at their first announcement, and then often hurried on second appearance. This goes on for too much of the work. The recording is handsome technically.

BOCCHERINI: Minuet; also: Bolzoni: Minuet. Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fielder, conductor. Victor 10-1418. $1.

Two old favorites, played the way you are accustomed to hearing them, but by a better orchestra. Good recording, noisy surfaces.

Tschaikowsky: Andante Canabile, from string quartet; also: Kreisler: Liebesleid. William Primrose, violist. Victor 12-0287. $1.25.

Arrangements for viola are even more of a necessity than for violin. In this case Primrose treats these so beautifully that you are glad to hear them again. This is no guarantee of the number of times you will turn to them if they are in your library.

Foster: Seventeen songs. Nelson Eddy, baritone, with chorus and orchestra. Columbia 745. $6.

Ten of these songs are seldom heard, which gives a Stephen Foster album no little reason for existence. Eddy sings with unfailing beauty of tone, and a nice sense of varying moods.

Ravel: Rapsodie Espagnol. Boston Symphony Orchestra under Koussevitsky. Victor 1200. $3.50.

Up to now there has been only one recording of this work we thought worthy. That was the old Stokowski version. Now it is definitely superseded. This recording has the requisite sensuous appeal, rhythmic drive and gorgeous tonal flair. It is also about 15 years more recent than the Stokowski set.

Koussevitsky understands the Ravel idiom as few conductors today do. He never fails to underline the French genius' rhythms, but he is able to expand melodic lines at the same time. Famous test spots in this work, such as the string sighs in the first movement, and the tempo of the habanera are perfectly molded. A great set in every way. P. H.

Summer Display

National Shows New Acquisitions

John Quidor's "The Return of Rip Van Winkle," now being in a special summer exhibition of American paintings at the National Gallery

By Jane Watson Crane

WHILE most of the American paintings brought out for summer display at the National Gallery have been shown previously, there are a few new exhibits. Wandering through an austere assemblage of historical portraits, one occasionally comes on a genre painting.

Latest acquisition is a study in sepia by John Singleton Copley for his big canvas, "Death of the Earl of Chatham," which has hung in the House of Lords in London and is the property of the Tate Gallery.

The main interest here is again historical. William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, died in 1778, very shortly after he was stricken in the House of Lords. Chatham, though very ill at the time, had insisted on being present to make a final plea against permitting America to be severed from the British Empire. Copley the following year undertook the ambitious task of reconstructing the scene on canvas. While the massed figures gave him no such opportunity for individual portraiture as in his smaller paintings, the artist painted 55 portraits for this work.

For many years the original "Death of the Earl of Chatham" found no purchaser. As was the custom at the time, Copley had several engravings made of the work—the best known by Bartolozzi, and a smaller plate by Delattre. But the Bartolozzi reproduction took much longer than he anticipated, and perhaps the lack of timeliness contributed to his disappointment in sales.

IN THIS GROUP, from the Portrait of Pocahontas by an unknown artist to the very human contemporary painting of General Eisenhower by Thomas Stephens, the Gallery has the "makings" for a National Portrait collection, which is contemplated and has been discussed a number of times.

Most of the genre paintings are also of historical interest. A perennial favorite is John Quidor's canvas illustrating the legend of the return of Rip van Winkle, which has more life and movement than any other work in the group. Quidor, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, was disregarded until recently, when the caprices of taste and research brought about a "revival" and his works were sought after. Many of his subjects were drawn from Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker History of New York."

ON LOAN is a version of one of the series of election pictures done by the Missouri artist, George Caleb Bingham. The painting here resembles but is not identical with the better known "Verdict of the People" belonging to the Mercantile Library in St. Louis. Bingham, like Copley, had engravings made from his paintings. There is known to be at least one replica of this election picture, with identifiable variations from the original.

It is a pity that the National Gallery does not have in its permanent collection a painting by Bingham, who since his "revival" in 1934 has become far more than a Missouri favorite. Besides the election studies, which lend considerable insight into local character, he did a memorable river series, including the "Fur Traders Descending the Missouri" owned by the Metropolitan. Shades of his "Emigration of Boone" are seen in some of the historical murals painted by American artists in our own time.

Closest painting to the present in the National Gallery group is Childe Hassam's "Allies Day, May 1917," a colorful study of flags set out against tall buildings on upper Fifth Avenue in New York.

The Artist's Freedom of Speech

This is the panel bearing the phrase, "God Does Not Exist," which has gotten Muralist Diego Rivera into trouble again

commissions given to Delacroix to paint walls and ceilings in the Palais Bourbon, the Hotel de Ville and the Louvre, but while his work was being criticized, he was confiding to his journal, and no doubt telling everyone, too, that an ingres ceiling was of "wholly shocking proportions," the figure drawing bad, and the decoration in general "pretentious, awkward, affected."

The greatest muralists have drawn the fire of critics, employers, rivals. Leonard da Vinci was too slow in painting the "Battle of Anghiari" in Florence, said the signoria which hired and paid him and retaliated by letting Michelangelo do some work promised at first to the older artist. And Michelangelo himself got the job of decorating the Sistine Chapel despite Bramante's objections.

On the whole, however, artists stick together, as in several current disputes. The young Artists Equity Association has inquired into five cases brought to its attention by members within about a year.

Artists, like writers, claim freedom of speech; it's as impossible for a man to paint what he doesn't believe in as to write it. A censored book, however, isn't burned, it still exists; an obliterated mural may mean the destruction of a couple of years' labor.

Lillian Moses Has Work Up At Her Home

THIS afternoon Lillian L. Moses is giving a private showing of her paintings at her home, 105 Shadow rd., Kenwood, Md. Featured will be a series of portraits of women in uniform, World War II. Also shown will be a group of still lifes, flower paintings, as well as portraits in oil and water color. Since most of the work is privately owned, this is not a sales exhibit.

Mrs. Moses has in the past had frequent exhibits in Washington. A member of the Washington Water Color Society, she has also shown with the Society of Washington Artists.

An exhibition of the work of Winold Reiss, who specializes in depicting the American Indian, will open Wednesday at the Playhouse, 727 15th st. nw. The management of the theater says any who wish to visit the gallery without attending the theater may do so simply by obtaining a slip from the cashier.

An Indian head painted by Reiss is reputed to be that from which was modeled the likeness of an Indian brave to be found on the Buffalo nickel. Reiss has exhibited in Paris, Vienna, Budapest, Berlin, Munich, Stockholm and London, as well as throughout the United States. In recent years he has devoted his time to murals and the decorative arts.

The art exhibition at Center Market City, 5th and K st. nw., is continuing until June 30. The show is open Wednesday from 6 a. m. to 1 p. m.; other days, except Sunday, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

One hundred and sixty oil paintings and water colors of the people and scenery of Tibet are still on view at the Smithsonian's National Collection of Fine Arts. The exhibition is on display in the foyer of the Natural History Building, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

On Monday the Pan American Union will exhibit 20-odd landscapes in oil by the Venezuelan painter, Carlos Otero. The show is sponsored by Dr. Gonzalo Carnevali, the Venezuelan Ambassador.

An exhibit is opening on Tuesday at the Downtown Gallery in New York with the worthy goal of demonstrating that at least 8,060,000 families in this country can own and live with original works of art. The gallery people figure that that many families make $5000 a year or more and thus can afford original art. More than 80 works chosen for the $5000 and over group are on display. The artists include high-powered names like Dove, Kuniyoshi, Marin and Shahn, among many others.

Stratovision Gives Video Wider Range

By Wayne Oliver

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, June 26 (AP).—The flying television station, claim developers, has proved itself technically as a means of delivering programs over wide areas.

They say stratovision—the use of high flying planes for relaying television programs—now is ready for practical application as soon as suitable equipment is built.

The codevelopers, Westinghouse Electric Corp. and the Glenn L. Martin Co., contend stratovision can make possible these developments:

1. Coast to coast network television much earlier than otherwise would be available.

2. Television service to areas that might not have stations for months or years, if ever.

Young Engineer's Idea

STRATOVISION has been under development since 1945 when the idea was advanced by C. E. Nobles, young Westinghouse engineer who now is only 30.

Tests have been stepped up in recent weeks. Results, the sponsors say, exceeded expectations.

Wednesday night the first public, previously announced demonstration was given.

Ordinary home receivers were set up in this agricultural and manufacturing community of 38,000 population, well out of range of the nearest television station.

However, with a specially equipped plane rebroadcasting from a point some 4 or 5 miles above Pittsburgh, telecasts of Station WMAR-TV in Baltimore—nearly 300 miles away—came in clearly. The normal stage of a ground television station is 35 to 50 miles. The program was the Baltimore station's telecast of the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia.

The broadcast, said Westinghouse and Martin officials, could be picked up not only in Zanesville but by anyone with a television set within some 250 miles in any direction from Pittsburgh, over which the plane was circling.

EIGHT such flying television stations, say Westinghouse officials, would make possible a coast-to-coast television network and would bring television to more than three quarters of the Nation's population.

Westinghouse already has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to operate a stratovision plane over Pittsburgh.

Other television experts took a cautious, wait-and-see attitude toward stratovision. They said it might run into a number of difficulties in practical operation as compared with the conventional methods of relaying television over long distance—underground coaxial cable and radio relay towers.

Westinghouse experts say they believe the obstacles already have been licked, or can be.

Radio Looks to Video To Keep Plants Busy

RADIO MANUFACTURERS are looking more and more to television to keep their factories busy now that they've pretty well caught up with the backlog of demand for radio sets.

J. J. Kahn of the Standard Transformer Corp. of Chicago told the Radio Manufacturers Association convention there this week that television set production in four years is expected to equal the present radio production rate—200,000 sets a week.

Kahn said radio production probably would decline from its present rate. But he said the increased television output should more than make up the difference in view of the greater numbers of parts and amounts of material required for television sets.

The Philco Corp. of Philadelphia says it will double its television output by the end of the year. William Balderson, president, predicts the dollar value of Philco's television production will exceed that of its radio output in the final quarter of the year.

The Magnavox Co. of Chicago made its entry into the television field during the week with showings of 12 models ranging in price from $299.50 to $1750. And the Zenith Radio Corp. of Chicago, a major radio producer, announced it had acquired rights to build television sets under patents of the Farnsworth Television and Radio Corp.

ABC CLAIMS the first half hour of its "Stop the Music" give-away program on Sunday night tops NBC's Fred Allen show in the latest Hooper ratings.

The one-hour "Stop the Music" program with rich cash awards was put on by ABC in an effort to buck NBC's strong lineup of Sunday evening comedy programs.

Radio is only now making its appearance in western Samoa, South Pacific island group under New Zealand trusteeship. A station has been opened at Apia, the capital, and each of the 150-odd villages has been equipped with a receiving set by the New Zealand broadcasting service. Practically the entire population of each village turns out every evening for the new station's programs.

National Unit Continues Training of Musicians

NEW YORK, June 26 (U.P.).—The National Orchestral Association will continue during the 1948-49 season its good work of training musicians for the country's symphony orchestras.

A steady source of competent musicians has been created by the association for orchestras old and new. The roster of players in the country's leading symphonies who have been trained is impressive. The association is a membership affair and is not profit-making.

Rehearsal activities for the season will begin on October 4. About 90 rehearsals are held in an average season, on three days a week from 4 to 7 p. m. The training program puts the musicians through their paces in a wide range of the symphonic repertory.

The orchestra, as usual, will give a series of public performances at Carnegie Hall. No tickets are sold, admission being on a supporting membership basis only.

FM Going in for Baseball

Frequency modulation radio, like television, is going in heavily for sports. The FM Association here says more than 200 FM stations are carrying play-by-play baseball broadcasts this year.

An arrangement between the Los Angeles Times and the Columbia Broadcasting System gives CBS a key West Coast outlet for its television network. The joint ownership and use of KTTV will provide CBS with a station adjacent to Hollywood's movie talent supply for originating programs when the television network eventually becomes Nation-wide.

N. Y. Hotels Add Television

Two more New York hotels, the Taft and New Yorker, now are offering their guests rooms equipped with television.

The Roosevelt put television in 40 rooms last November. It reports room service business—beverages and meals—for these rooms is 300 per cent above nontelevision rooms.

New TV Sets Feature Larger Screens

Two new lines of television sets featuring larger screens are to be unveiled Monday. Crosley will show its new line in Cincinnati and Emerson will unveil its latest models in New York.

Ratheon of New York has announced a new set selling for $179.95 that operates on either alternating or direct current. The set, called daytheon-Belmont, has the small 7-inch viewing screen and weighs only 30 pounds.

Even Radio Feels Slump Sometimes

Although television has given the industry a big lift, radio and television manufacturing is by no means a gold mine for all who try it.

The Radio Manufacturers Association says 29 radio and component manufacturers failed during the past year. Ten were manufacturers of radio sets, two were producers of television sets, and the remainder were makers of radio equipment and parts.

Church To Be Radio Sponsor

The Episcopal Church will become a radio sponsor in the fall. On October 1, it will start a Friday night series of dramatic programs over the Mutual network. The aim of the program is to encourage greater church attendance.

Belasco Site Once Traded For a Donkey

An obvious dig at President Warren G. Harding, the joke brought a request for Will Rogers to cut it from his act. This, he refused to do, and on a subsequent appearance at the theater, he stepped out of character long enough to remark:

"All my life I have been making humorous observations and comment about the great and near great. Invariably, it has been accepted in a spirit of fun and with an appreciation that no malice was intended. I regret that I have offended the President, but I can also say that he is the first prominent American to object publicly to my stage liberties. I am sorry he can't take a joke."

THE presidential touch was frequently evident at the Belasco. President Taft once threw a bouquet to Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini there, T. R. Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson were occasional visitors, as was Calvin Coolidge.

Coolidge was credited with killing off John Drinkwater's Robert E. Lee because he was spotted, sound asleep in his box, during a romantic interlude in the play. One New York critic said the presidential nap was better criticism than any he could write.

During the depression years, the Belasco Theater fell on evil times, and was frequently dark. Finally it was adapted to movie use, playing such films as "Ecstasy," which starred Hedy Lamarr.

After the Government purchased the property—including the nearby Cosmos Club for $1,400,000—the theater was dark until October 3, 1942, when it was opened by the American Theater Wing and War Service, Inc. as the Stage Door Canteen.

From then until its closing at midnight January 23, 1946, it provided more than two million servicemen with entertainment, and its more than 6000 volunteers served several million meals. When it was closed—last of seven Theater Wing canteens in the United States—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitiz mounted its stage to express their thanks for those who had served in the canteen.

Julie Drops That 'Oooh' Reluctantly

she calls it. It was the zing she put into that "oooh" that got her the job originally. Dozens of girls tried out for the job but, until Julie arrived, none could produce an "oooh" which combined transports of bliss with sufficient lung power to penetrate to the farthest recesses of the kitchen. Once they heard Julie's "oooh," the ad agency executives knew they had finally located the one and only Oxydol sparkle girl.

Julie hails from Granite City, Ill. She still harbors ambitions to be an actress and is studying theater technique with the idea of some day combining musical comedy and radio work. Her present connection to radio is not, however, a triumph of commerce over art.

Rhapsodizing over Oxydol seems like an easy way to earn a living but it isn't exactly. In addition to three Blu-Whites a day and between rehearsals and performances she worked from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 p. m. At one point in her crowded day, it took a small portion of N.B.C. and C.B.S. personnel to get her from one studio to another in time.

Before she got into the singing commercial profession, Julie had quite a stint of more orthodox vocalizing behind her. She sang at the Pump Room in Chicago, did the ingenue lead in Dwight Wiman musical in California and sang with Kay Kyser's band, which was her first experience with radio.

Mr. Roberts' Lines are Laundered for Television

The first CBS television broadcast of backstage scenes and excerpts from a current Broadway play, "Mr. Roberts," brought one complication. Joe Marr as "Doc" was saying his lines as written for the stage version—some of which are a bit too salty for the air.

"Just look at those poor dumb blanks down there," said Marr.

"Hey, you can't say that on television," yelled Henry Fonda, who plays the title role.

Fortunately, it was only a rehearsal and the lines were laundered before they went on the air.

Charleston Regains World Port Status

By Alderman Duncan

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 26 (AP).—The 278-year-old seaport of Charleston, commercial capital of the South in Colonial days, is once more a bustling center of world commerce.

Cargoes of textiles, lumber, tobacco, machinery and other products are moving in growing volume across docks which two centuries ago stood piled high with rice, indigo and deerskins. The landlocked harbor of Revolutionary and Civil War fame again is studded with freighters flying the pennants of seven seas.

This rejuvenation of Charleston reflects two influences: (1) the general upsurge in postwar ocean traffic; (2) the awakening of an entire State to the importance of world trade to the South's accelerating shift from an agricultural to an industrial base.

Authority Board Created

DURING the war, the South Carolina General Assembly created a five-member authority to develop the State's major port, Charleston, and its two smaller ports, Georgetown and Beaufort. After VJ-Day, the authority acquired the 20-million-dollar Cooper River terminals here which the Army had used as a port of embarkation, and two million dollars worth of additional facilities which had been under municipal control.

With this modern establishment at hand, the authority deployed solicitation agents throughout the rich tributary area reaching in midcontinent, and set up a traffic bureau to maintain rail, truck and water rates competitively with other ports.

The result has been a flourishing trade reminiscent of the pre-Revolutionary era, when Charleston ranked as the largest and wealthiest settlement south of Philadelphia. Those were the days when England was relying on Carolina to supply her budding textile industry with indigo and thus free her from dependence on French and Spanish dyestuffs.

In 1769, historians report, Britain employed 140 ships in trade with South Carolina alone, as against 46 ships for all of New England, 30 for New York and 35 for Pennsylvania.

After the Revolution, however, the indigo industry virtually disappeared and the skin trade increasingly was taken over by Georgia and Florida.

Served as Base

CHARLESTON came into the limelight again during the War Between the States when it served as the base of Confederate vessels running the Northern blockade. But after the conflict, commercial shipping returned at a slow pace. The harbor, although one of the Nation's finest, lacked a channel deep enough for modern vessels until 1880, when work on the harbor improvements was begun with Federal funds.

After World War I, foreign commerce increased and Charleston for a time advanced substantially among the ports of the country. But as the years passed, shipping again declined.

Now, under State auspices for the first time, the port of Charleston has made another comeback. The public authority which oversees it calls Charleston "the South Atlantic's fastest growing port" and, as proof, points to the statistics.

At the beginning of 1947, not a single steamship line operated regular service out of Charleston. Today, a dozen lines are providing regular sailings to and from the port in coastwise, intercoastal and foreign trade.

During 1947, cargo freight, exclusive of coal, skyrocketed 125 per cent over 1946. Coal exports advanced 28 per cent during the year, with the Southern Railway loading 1,647,250 gross tons onto ships by use of the only tipple south of Newport News.

Using Charleston Port

MANY Piedmont textile mills which formerly relied upon North Atlantic ports are now exporting and importing through Charleston. In a recent month, four million dollars in textiles alone were shipped out of the port. Balancing exports are such importations as the million pounds of rayon fiber received from Holland and Belgium in February.

Charleston also looms large in the tobacco picture. Sixty-five million pounds of flue-cured weed from the Carolinas, Georgia and Tennessee were consigned to authority warehouses last summer for shipment abroad. This represents 10 per cent of the entire country's 1946 tobacco exports.

Forestry products likewise share the spotlight. Each month for the next two years, more than a million board feet of Costa Rican native hardwoods will arrive in Charleston for furniture, veneer and plywood factories throughout the South. On the export side are heavy shipments not only of lumber but of paper products from large mills here and in Georgetown.

Charleston now ranks among the first four banana ports in the country, being only a 3-to-5-day sail from the Central American planations. Among other major imports are petroleum, ore and general cargo ranging from furs from Persia and spangled cloth from Italy to paintings from France and narcissus bulbs from the Netherlands.

Idaho Angler Lands 9-Foot Lake Fish

Glenns Ferry, Idaho, June 26 (AP).—Roy Knigge, a Glenns Ferry rancher, caught himself a couple of fish the other day.

All of which isn't exactly news in Idaho where last year 170,000 of a State population of less than 600,000 bought themselves fishing licenses. But the finny rascals Knigge pulled out of the Snake River were sturgeon and together they weighed 490 pounds—one of the biggest catches since the season opening April 1.

The largest of the Knigge catch weighed in at 237 pounds and was a record nine and one-half feet from its blunt snout to its split fin tail.

Whistle Stopping

Like a Quiet Spot? Try Ocean Grove

By Orval Hopkins

NOW HERE'S a spot, if you like calm and want to get away from places where all is nervous: "Ocean Grove, N. J.," it says, "is a vacation resort distinguished by its religious and cultural atmosphere. There are no saloons, nor entertainment of the blatant, tawdry type and, on Sundays, its gates are closed to all vehicular traffic." . . . The Fay Traffic & Service Corp., an outfit which says it will offer a new type of comprehensive economic service in general traffic representation to airlines and other carriers, has opened offices at 1703 K st. nw. . . . Missouri Pacific is distributing a new illustrated travel folder featuring the California coast from San Francisco to San Diego. Not that it's a new idea, but I guess MoPac is trying . . . Bill Sharpe, the Tarheel, has a booklet out called "Fishing the North Carolina Coast." It's available for half a buck from Marina Publishing Co., Wilmington, N. C. . . . Swissair (Swiss Air Transport Co., Ltd.) is staging an inaugural flight on July 11 between the United States and the new intercontinental airport at Zurich.

THERE'S A soaring contest at Elmira, N. Y., next weekend and it ain't for trapeze people or ski-leapers . . . Model airplanes . . . Trans World Airlines says it has put 12 new sleeper-type Constellations in its hanger, giving it a 34-plane fleet for transAtlantic service . . . The Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., which obviously prefers to walk on the gloomy side of the street and which snorts at people who look for a silver lining, has a couple of parties it calls the "Killjoy Twins"—inflation and taxes. This satanic duo, says NNLI, has boosted the cost of your 1948 vacation 20 to 100 per cent since 1940. NNLI trots out these figures: A 12-day cruise from New York to Nassau, Havana, and Miami cost as little as $120 in 1940; today it costs a minimum of $218.50. Round trip air line fair, Chicago to San Francisco, was $149.95 in 1940. Today the same ticket costs you $237.82. Transportation taxes, it says, are responsible for most of the increases. Gasoline is up about 40 per cent, says NNLI. In 1940 the United States average price was about 18½ cents; today it's 25¾. The motor tourist in 1940 could get a room with double bed and shower for $2.50 to $3 in 1940. Today the same setup costs him $4. And, says NNLI, if you decide to spend the vacation in your backyard, wearing your old shoes and your 1938 pants, and plan to roast wieners —well they're up nearly 200 per cent and buns are up 90 per cent. Marshallows are 70 per cent higher.

CAVALIER YACHT CLUB'S benefit ball will be held at Virginia Beach on Tuesday . . . G. Bland Hoke, manager of the Bedford Springs (Pa.) Hotel, checks in with some phrases about his hostelry, including "gracious living," "surrey rides" and "steak roasts." The AAA says everybody (well, virtually everybody) is entranced with Mexico. Prices no higher than expected (that covers a multitude of inns, of course), gas and oil not difficult to get, hotel tourist accommodations "adequate." . . . Here's American Express offering a tour of "12 days through America's land of twilight nights . . . Journeys into tomorrow with return the same day."

THE PUBLICITY PEOPLE either have outdone themselves or just gotten tired of it all this week. I can't be sure which. The Salem (Oreg.) people, for instance, say, "Oregon's upland streams, deep forests, alpine (sic) lakes, sandy seashores, green meadows and shining mountains, etc." The Sante Fe Railway speaks of the Hopi Indians "coming into the land of the friendly palefaces. Even United Airlines, which ordinarily operates with considerable caution, refers to the "quaint picture-towns of Monterey and Santa Barbara." This is fine, only you got to look sharp or the quaint paisanos will get your last peseta.

Millions in Sunken Gold Lies Along U. S. Coast

THERE IS GOLD in the sand. From Nantucket to Tristan da Cunha, from Cocos to Hispaniola, from Nova Scotia to Vigo Bay, treasure is to be found.

"It is a matter of record," the National Geographic Society says, "that treasure worth countless millions lies in hundreds of sunken ships only a few fathoms down, all along the world's coasts."

The recent discovery near Sandy Hook, N. J., of gold coins two centuries old may inspire "a mild rage of beachcombing" among vacationists this summer, the society said.

It may also lead to "better-equipped salvage expeditions" and "could even produce a popular-price divining rod for shore cottagers' use."

Gives Some Tips

FORECASTING that "the new look at coast resorts this summer will be the downward look," the society supplied a few tips for treasure hunters:

1. The British frigate Hussar in 1780 sank in New York's East River, 30 miles north of Sandy Hook after hitting a rock. It went down with four million dollars —possibly much more—in pay for British Redcoats. The treasure has never been recovered.

2. Also in 1780 the British frigate Lexington, carrying gold and silver bullion from Vera Cruz, Mexico, sank in the Hell Gate passage not far from where the Hussar went down. The gold and silver are still there.

3. In 1789 the warsloop De Braak sank in a storm a mile off Lewes, Del., with 15 million dollars worth of precious metals. Repeated salvage efforts have failed.

4. In 1909 the British liner Republic foundered off Nantucket with three million dollars in American "gold eagles" and two years later the liner Merida went down off Cape Charles, Va., with five million dollars in coins, bullion and Mexican jewels.

Many Huge Losses

THOSE, however, were "small change" losses. In 1702 British and Dutch fleets sank 16 Spanish galleons in Vigo Bay, Spain. The galleons took to the bottom an estimated 150 million dollars worth of loot they were bring back from Caribbean raids. Only a small part has been recovered.

Nearly as much treasure was lost in 1643 when a West Indian hurricane drove 16 Spanish ships on the shoals north of Hispaniola. A small part of their cargo of gold, silver and jewels was salvaged.

In 1715 another hurricane sank 14 Spanish ships and 65 million dollars in treasure off Long Cay, Fla.

Pirates, among them Blackbeard and Captain Kidd, are supposed to have buried treasures in Nova Scotia, Cape Cod, Block Island, and Long Island.

Billy Bowlegs and Jean Lafitte cached rich loot farther south along the Atlantic Coast.

Traffic Head Appeals to Kids in Safety Drive

WITH the vacation season under way, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp yesterday appealed directly to children to remember safety rules this summer.

"In the vast majority of instances it is the unpredictable action of children which has led to accidents," he said.

"This by no means releases the motorist from exercising the utmost care in driving," he added. "It does, however, stress the fact that children, too, have a responsibility in this matter of accident avoidance."

Fatality Marked Period

DURING the 1947 summer vacation, which extended from June 18 to September 2, there was 1 death and 276 injuries to children 14 years old and under, he revealed.

The three leading causes of last year's injuries to child pedestrians, he said, were: not crossing at crosswalks (87), playing in the street (18), and running between parked cars (13).

Others included: hitching rides on autos, trucks or streetcars; coasting in the street; crossing against traffic signals; roller skating in street, and running from behind passing cars.

Right of Way Failures

CHILDREN on bicycles suffered injuries most often from failing to yield the right of way (15) and failing to pay attention to their cycling (8). Others rode bicycles on the wrong side of the street, went through red lights, passed stop signs, traveled the wrong way on one-way streets.

Most child pedestrians were injured between the hours of noon and 8 p. m., Keneipp said. Bulk of the bicycle accidents occurred between 2 and 5 p. m.

Sad Connecticut Angler Finds Big Ones Really Do Get Away

A VERY sad angler is living with a memory in Darien, Conn. He is L. V. Young, who provides more proof that the big ones often get away. He recently lost a squaretail trout at Rangeley Lake in Maine, a trout that would have pressed and probably broken the 14-pound, 8-ounce world record for the species.

Fishing with Guide Wallace Hamm, the Connecticut angler hooked the giant trout on a No. 4 Governor fly, trolled on a 9-foot leader. The powerful fish was brought to the boat after a long and lively battle but the leader was so long that Young couldn't lift the fish near enough to the surface to be reached with the landing net. He didn't dare reel the leader into the rod guides for fear of the knot between the leader and line becoming snagged should the fish make another sudden run.

The huge fish could be seen fanning leisurely under the boat for more than five minutes. But, finally regaining its strength, it tore away with a mighty rush that actually put a reverse curve in the hook.

Guide Hamm said the trout was the largest he had ever seen hooked in Rangeley waters, and believes it would have weighed close or a bit better than the world record fish which was taken by Dr. W. J. Cook in 1916 on the Nipigon River in Ontario.

Way Out West in Peekskill

Some girls take part in a Brahma calf scramble at Cimarron Dude Ranch, Peekskill, N. Y., 50 miles from New York City. There are about 100 dude ranches in the East

By Adelaide Kerr

NEW YORK, June 26 (AP).—The dudes are hitting the trail again, pardner, to ranch life way out East.

Riding is just part of the activity on a big Eastern dude ranch. On some, you can also play pingpong, tennis, badminton and croquet; shoot archery, pitch quoits, skeet shoot, swim in a pool or lake, see movies and go on weiner roasts, picnics and hay rides. On one ranch there is a little Western town, with a trading post and a Last Chance bar.

Come Saturday night, the dudes—both men and women—get dressed up and throng to the hall for the big square dance.

Sunday is rodeo day on most ranches. After a horseback ride to church and a big dinner, the dudes throng to the corral to watch the ranch hands in the mounted quadrille—a square dance done on horseback—and to see the boys "buck out" some of the rodeo stock. The flags fly. The steers bellow. The horses flash past in a cloud of dust. The cowboys yip and the dudes cheer. Sometimes they fall off the fence.

How Many

NOBODY knows how many Eastern dude ranches there are. Vern Walters, Western-born pioneer Eastern dude rancher who runs Cimarron Ranch at Peekskill, N. Y., with his Brooklyn wife, Lu, estimates there are nearly 100. Most are in New York. There are also a number in New England and the South.

They are much smaller than Western ranches. One hundred and twenty acres is good size. They take many more guests than the Westerners and big ones house many of them in dormitories. They generally have fewer horses and give dudes but one ride a day. Dudes ride in groups, morning or afternoon, accompanied by cowboys.

Eastern dudes are generally young white collar workers who like a lot of activity. Hence the whirl of entertainment.

Not all Eastern dude ranches provide it, however. Some are little more than boarding farms with few horses, little riding space and little planned fun. At the best ones, dudes and stock are under the care of seasoned Western cowboys.

Says Vern Walter, "sixty per cent of the people who come to us never have been on a horse. But we give them instruction, and many learn very fast. Then—when they have fallen in love with ranch life, they go on to Western ranches and we take on a new crop. Reservations this year are bigger than ever."

Blue Jeans

EASTERN ranchers say the Eastern dude doesn't spend as much money on fine clothes as some of the Western variety do. He is conteht to wear blue jeans with inexpensive boots or shoes and a wide-brimmed felt hat. He likes a little flash in shirts, though—purple and plaid and such.

One of the first-time dude's biggest troubles is learning how to mount. He is likely to try to climb up a horse like a ladder. Once in the saddle, he wants to gallop off and look as much like a Western movie as possible. He has to be taught to take it slowly and to learn how to handle his horse.

One lady dude on a New York ranch couldn't get any speed out of her mount one morning. Throughout the ride she trailed further behind the rest than a cowboy riding drag (bringing up the rear in herding cattle). As the cowboy held the last gate open for her, he asked with a grin:

"What are you doing, Ma'am? Riding drag?"

"I don't know what his name is," said the scowling lady dude, "but he certainly is terrible! Slowest horse I ever saw!"

Foreign Air Lines Competing With U. S.

By Charles Corddry

UNABLE to compete with United States airlines in volume of international flying, foreign lines are making an effort to outdo them in special customer attractions.

On a foreign airline you can get a sleeper across the central Pacific. You can avoid plane changes between New York and the west coast of South America. You can enjoy French or Scandinavian atmosphere, as the saying goes, en route instead of waiting until you arrive in those places.

Special courtesies, and schedule frequencies which give travelers a wide choice of departure times, are two of the main competitive factors in international flying. Rates are set by conferences, so from that standpoint it makes little difference how you travel.

U. S. Has Planes

SO FAR, because of inability to buy enough American planes, the foreign lines have lagged far behind this country in volume of operations. If you are in a hurry, an American line more likely has a schedule going where you want to go with space available.

The foreign lines thus concentrate on making you happy by plying you with special services and such unique attractions as their particular nationalities make possible. In doing so, they have an eye to a future when there will be plenty of seats and berths available and sales effort will determine whose are filled.

They haven't done so badly up to now. The most recent study of transatlantic passenger traffic shows that from July to December of last year foreign airlines filled 25 seats per trip compared with 26 for their American competition.

Americans Dominant

THE survey, made by the Civil Aeronautics Board, shows that United States airlines flew 70.29 per cent of the trips and carried 71.24 per cent of the transatlantic traffic outbound from and inbound to New York. Total passengers by United States and foreign lines numbered 114,128 for the six months.

The board said United States lines appear to have a favorable competitive position in the transatlantic trade for the immediate future. Those lines are American Overseas, Pan American and Transcontinental and Western Air. Their foreign competitors are Air France, British Overseas Airways Corp. Royal Dutch Airlines, the Belgian line Sabena, Scandinavian Airlines System and Swissair.

Trans-Canada Air Lines has jumped into international competition with a four-engine luxury plane of Canadian make, the North Star. It is basically a Douglas DC-4 with some DC-6 improvements and is powered by British engines which boost its speed above 300 miles an hour. It carries 40 passengers in two spacious compartments.

11th Carvel Hall Tourney Gets Going Next Friday

By Marian H. Barre

THE Fourth of July weekend adds a day of grace to the eleventh annual Carvel Hall Tourney opening Friday evening in Annapolis and continuing three full days thereafter. All events on the program are two-session games save the curtain raiser, men's and women's pairs, to be held concurrently the evening of July 2.

Mixed pairs will play Saturday afternoon and evening without elimination. The open pair championship on Sunday goes through an afternoon qualifying session, with finals that night, plus a second-flight section for eliminated partnerships. Concluding event is an open team-of-four match beginning at 12:20 p. m., Monday, with finals at 6:30, all teams playing throughout in board-a-match competition.

Among the defenders are six local experts, Mrs. Dora Schwartz and Mrs. J. R. McGhee (nee Moorman), holding the women's title, while the line-up of Mrs. M. Boschan, Mrs. S. Newlands, C. C. Johnson and John J. Parish finished in a three-way tie for team laurels. The teams they tied show the topflight competition at Annapolis in '47. Bridge Ace Charles H. Goren captained an outfit playing Edward Cohn, W. E. McKenney, Mrs. Marie Basher and Peter Leventritt. The other team was Mrs. R. C. Young, Maurice Levin, Mrs. Paula Bacher and David Warner. (There are seven Life Masters in that list of names.) New York and Philadelphia claim the above-mentioned luminaries.

MASTER-point games scheduled here this week include the La Salle Studio monthly at 6 p. m. Monday; on Tuesday at the same hour the Federal Bridge League match at Pierce Hall; at 8 p. m., Wednesday, finals of the Washington Bridge League's annual individual, where players are graded into sections according to their national rating.

Changes in the schedule occur the latter part of the week when local games would conflict with the Annapolis championships. Games affected include the usual Friday night match at Euclid Studios, which will be canceled on July 2, and the Agriculture Bridge Club's monthly matinee each first Saturday, which will be postponed until July 10.

Rumors are in circulation that the Federal League is "changing its night." Contrary to these reports, the league announces a complete summer schedule with a game each Tuesday. A special event on July 13 lists men's and women's pairs.

Federal League President George Kathan, who is a member of the executive committee of the ACBL, attended a meeting of that body on June 20 at the Park Central Hotel in New York. Plans were discussed for the twenty-first Summer Nationals, opening in Chicago on July 31 at the Stevens Hotel.

SEVERAL new duplicate series at the Capital City Chess Club start the first week in July, when prizes will be awarded to winners of the concluded contests.

Another club finished up a season contest last week. This was the Agriculture Bridge Club, which holds the usual "fifth Wednesday" match on June 30, at 1355 Euclid st. Rumor hath it that Dr. C. C. McDonnell is leading the race for contest honors.

First master point game at the new Connecticut Ave. Club, 2605 Connecticut ave., will be held at 7:45 this evening, the ACBL sanction having just been received. This is the latest addition to the monthly schedule.

The protest period extending until June 30, scores in the Washington Bridge League Individual Tourney will not become official until late that evening when the final round is in progress. Forty-four masters are competing in Section A, with 52 entries in junior Section B. . . . President Gorton recently appointed Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Herlihy as joint chairmen of the new player group. The Army couple previously did yeoman service in California, where the ACBL's West Coast unit has made a record for gathering duplicate beginners into the fold.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Dormandy, who won their first master points this season, made top score in the Euclid Studio nationally awarded monthly on June 19. With a total of 133 points they had a 2-point edge over east-west winners, J. G. Stone and David Murray. Second-place awards went to Mrs. Dora Schwartz and Dr. A. F. O'Donnell, north-south, and to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rosson, in the other position.

Great American Adventures:

Train Travel

IF EVERYTHING GOES according to schedule, Americans will buy more than half a billion railroad tickets in 1948, race wildly around station platforms trying to guess where the trains will stop, juggle suitcases up steep and narrow iron steps, lurch perilously down aisles and settle possessively into plush seats.

What happens after the wheels begin to turn is about what you should expect if you lock humanity in a box and move it rapidly through time and space. Proximity begets thoughts of love or mayhem between total strangers, frazzles the nerves, loosens the tongue, often addles the head. Even Emily Post fails to explain what to say when a sharp curve throws you into a strange lap or brains you with a Gladstone bag. Cartoonist Walter Dower shows you some of the mishaps an experienced train traveler expects.

THERESA HELBURN

"She has done more for the theater than any other living woman"

THE ANNOUNCEMENT recently of the establishment of the Theresa Helburn Chair of the Drama by Bryn Mawr College "because she is our most distinguished alumna and has done more for the theater than any other living woman," brought a reflective light into the hazel eyes of the co-administrator of the enterprising Theater Guild.

Bryn Mawr's "most distinguished alumna"

While she was studying for her B.A., which she received in 1908, Miss Helburn had been an extremely enthusiastic exponent of the drama. She organized, managed, acted in and wrote plays. But at that time, the collegiate study of the theater was an isolated experience, unrelated in the curriculum to the study of the liberal arts and sciences.

Favors Integration of Drama

"I have often thought," declared Miss Helburn, who has had a hand in more Broadway productions than any other woman, "that if, when we were producing an historical play the history department had related it to its background, if we had received the help of the art department with scenery and costumes, the production of an amateur campus play would have made a greater contribution to my general education."

Under the new Bryn Mawr plan, a physics major may take on the lighting of a production, a history major may write an historical drama and have it produced, a student majoring in art may design the sets, and all will receive academic credit for their dramatic activities. On the other hand, a student majoring in theater may undertake a project with any of the other departments and also receive credit.

One of the founders of the Theater Guild in 1919, and for the last ten years its guiding genius with co-founder, co-administrator, Lawrence Langner, Miss Helburn feels that the Bryn Mawr plan has gone a long way, as she puts it, "in making the theater part of life."

"Bryn Mawr," she said, "has taken a fine step by including the study of the theater along with the regular college curriculum, so that every college student will one day have as complete a cultural approach to the art of the theater as he will to literature and the fine arts. This method of relating the art of the theater to life will result in more mature, more responsive and intelligent American theater audiences.

"Even if, as a result of the plan, great actors and playwrights are not developed," she continued, "the finest audiences will be created — audiences which will demand and support the finest in the American theater."

Was Miss Helburn surprised at the honor Bryn Mawr conferred on her? "Yes indeed," she answered with a smile. "And quite flattered, too."

ON PARADE...

The fact that fishing is good in Maine is not news, but it is news when two pretty Portland girls take off in a plane for a day's fishing in Lake Chemquassabamticook, in the heart of the Maine wilderness, a fisherman's paradise that can be reached only by air (see pages 8-9). PARADE's Pat Terry photographed Patty Gould and Jean Dinsmore on their trip to the lake, where Gene Letourneau, Portland "Press-Herald" columnist and woodsman, met them in his canoe (see photo), then gave them a profitable lesson in the fine art of hooking brook trout.

Flying has been 22-year-old Patty's chief hobby since she learned how to pilot a plane two years ago. She's also interested in music and sports, and writes music notes, movie reviews and woman's page news for the "Press-Herald." Jean, who also is 22, is executive secretary to a Portland department store manager. Jean is fond of music and is enthusiastic about such sports as skiing and sailing.

Since their 360-mile plane jaunt, Jean and Patty have decided to add trout fishing to their list of hobbies.

NEXT WEEK...

What does the average moviegoer think about American movies? To find out, PARADE sent a wire recorder-photographic team to Houston, Tex. For down to earth opinion of typical moviegoers, don't miss PARADE, next week ... Also in the same issue, some fashion pointers for men and a timely article on safe cycling for the pedal pushers in the family . . . Another quiz and a recipe by Beth Merriman. All in PARADE, next Sunday.

THE COVER...

The four serious-faced horsemen on today's front cover are the spit-and-polish color guard of El Paso's versatile Sheriff's Posse. No public function that includes a parade is "official" without their leading the march. Expert horsemen, they cut a particularly fancy figure on parade astride their well-groomed palominos. Along with the American flag, the guard carries the state flag of Texas. This color photograph was posed for PARADE's cameraman Ben Ross at Cowboy Park, the posse's 24-acre stamping ground on the outskirts of El Paso. For more about the posse turn to pages 19-21.

Youth's best friend in Jacksonville, Fla., is home-spun Judge Walter Scott Criswell, here posed with four of his pals in Duval County's Juvenile Court.

A City Fights for its Children

Through its courts and civic groups, Jacksonville guards their future

BY FRANK DE BLOIS

FOR SOME REASON, MOST small boys like to play with matches and swipe cakes from the kitchen. This rarely gets them into serious trouble, but with Jimmy K. it was different. At nine, he began to start fires, and he stole money from his schoolmates.

Psychiatrists would say that Jimmy was a profoundly troubled boy trying to find a place, somehow, in a world he couldn't understand. In his clouded little brain, stealing was adventure, and fire had assumed the same bright shape as a dream.

Finally, Jimmy was brought before Judge Walter Scott Criswell in the Jacksonville, Fla., Juvenile Court. Judge Criswell, who for 25 years has looked across his desk at disturbed little boys like Jimmy, peered this time into Jimmy's past.

He found that Jimmy's mother and father were dead and that Jimmy was living with an aunt who worked all day and had little time to spend with him. Unhappy and alone, Jimmy began to find an outlet in stealing and starting fires, in truancy and in escaping in other ways from a lonely and impossible world into a small, unhappy cloister of his own.

Sociologists estimate that there are at least a million children in the United States just like Jimmy—not really bad but merely driven, by a set of circumstances they can't control, to war on a world which they feel has deserted them. But Jimmy was luckier than most of these boys. An understanding judge and an alert community, which has learned to fight for its children, probably saved him from a life of delinquency and crime.

Judge Criswell made Jimmy a ward of his court and sent him to the city-sponsored Jacksonville boys home. This home, established by the town's citizens under the leadership of James C. Lanier, juvenile probation officer, is now supported by Community Chest funds. It houses 34 boys.

"These boys," says Judge Criswell, "are wards in our custody, not criminals in confinement."

The Jacksonville home is in no sense a reform school. The boys who live there attend public schools in the community and are never made to feel they are strangers. Many of them are not delinquent at all, but merely "dependents" who have come from homes broken by divorce, sickness, death or poverty, or from homes where the social or moral atmosphere was found not sympathetic to child-raising. There are also children at the home who have been sent there for re-adjustment because they couldn't seem to get ahead successfully in school.

"Sometimes," reflects Judge Criswell, "we are liable to forget about the kids who get stuck in the third grade. But these kids have feelings, too. They want to be wanted, to count for something, to belong and be loved just as much as any other kids."

No boy is ever "sentenced" to the home. He is sent there by Judge Criswell to stay until his family life is adjusted, until a place is found for him outside the home, or until he has been helped to reassume his place as a well-adjusted boy in society. Records show that 75 per cent of the boys eventually return to their parents.

Like depression and war, child delinquency is a social illness that has no easy cure. It is a product of insecurity, poverty, dissatisfaction and frustration and will finally end only when man's other ills have ended, too. But Jacksonville, with no pat answer to the problem, keeps fighting it aggressively.

COURT HOUSE

This building houses Judge Criswell's warm-hearted court where children are accorded sympathetic consideration. Most wards of the court, Judge Criswell says, are "ordinary kids who just need a break."

"County home" is a title with shabby connotations, but there is little shabby about life at Duval County's parental home for girls. Here, accent is on a family atmosphere.

At dinner time, girls take turns waiting on each other and also on table of staff.

Although they attend regular public schools, girls learn to knit, sew at home.

Softball is favorite sport of girls. Home tries to build healthy, outdoor attitude.

Picnics around fireplace in yard help build group spirit, quell loneliness in the girls.

"A child needs good soil to grow in"

THE BOYS HOME IS JUST ONE of several citadels which the people of Jacksonville have erected in their war on delinquency. Duval County operates a girls' parental home nearby at which 50 girls are receiving the same kind of therapy that is applied at the boys' home. The Kiwanis Club has erected an emergency cottage where homeless children are taken while their cases are being investigated. The community's foster homes are reputed to rank among the finest in the South.

As a supplement to its fight against existing delinquency, Jacksonville has continued its twin fight for prevention of children's crime in the future. Churches, schools, the welfare department, women's clubs and the sons and daughters of Jacksonville's civic leaders all are aiding this campaign, which is headed by Mrs. Walter S. Jones. Mrs. Jones' "Teen-Towners" is an organization, staffed by youngsters, designed to build Jacksonville's adolescent population into a forward-looking, civic-conscious adult unit.

Organized in 1943, the "Teen-Towners" elect their own officers, learn civic responsibilities, hold forums and sponsor dances. Now housed in their own building, the "Teen-Towners" today have 3,000 members, each of whom pays dues of one dollar a year.

For young children, the Civitan Club and the Junior League of Jacksonville have established a children's museum which sponsors classes in nature study and crafts, after school and on Saturdays, and a program of field trips in the summer.

Fighting For Tomorrow

"WE'RE FIGHTING DELINQUENCY TODAY," says Judge Criswell, "and—what's even more important—we're trying to make sure that we don't have to fight it all over again the day after tomorrow."

Delinquency, the judge insists, stems from one principal source: the home. While the actual burden of education belongs to the schools, the schools themselves are open only six hours a day and, on the average, account for only about one fourth of a child's waking time. The home has him for the remaining three-fourths. Judge Criswell agrees with other students of the subject that parents' opportunities for influencing and guiding a child are far greater than those of his teachers.

Most delinquent children, the judge has found, are the victims of sub-standard or sordid home environments. In many of the homes of delinquent or dependent children in Jacksonville, he discovered, the parents were separated or one parent was dead. Frequently, the mother was working and often the entire family was either wholly dependent on charity or was living on a bare-existence level.

Jacksonville's juvenile court is conducted informally and without gavel-pounding. Judge Criswell usually sits down and talks casually with the parents, the child, welfare and probation officers and even teachers before he makes his decision. If the child is a first offender, he usually is returned to his par-

Jacksonville's dependent boys live in this home, supported by Community Chest funds.

Group singing around piano helps lonely boy forget, aids him in his re-adjustment.

In home's kitchen boys learn to cook on chef's night out. Beginners sift the flour.

In barracks, boys do housework. Discipline, however, is subordinated to development.

Kiwanis Club's "House of Friendship" is novel idea to protect children. This building provides temporary home for children left homeless by fire, accident or desertion.

ents. If the child is badly maladjusted by trouble at home, inadequate supervision or a sense of extreme loneliness, the judge may decide to send him to the home of a relative, a foster home, the Jacksonville Boys' Home or the county home for girls.

"Most times I find a child goes bad because the soil is bad," the judge observes. "Then, when you transplant him, he starts to grow again."

Children Become Wards of Court

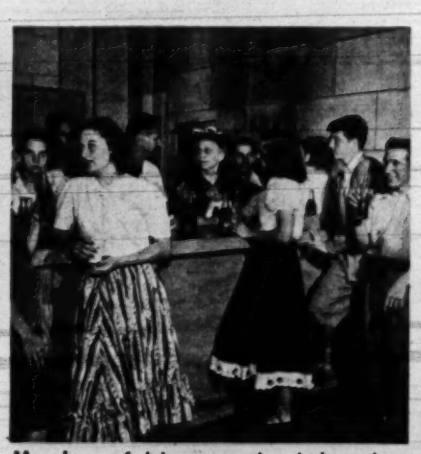
CHILDREN SENT TO THE homes become wards of the court and are under its protection. In order to follow each case, Judge Criswell's court has been made a registry for the collection of alimony, child-support money and all fees in divorce cases handled by the circuit court. In this way the juvenile court can keep track of both the children under its wing and those who have been returned to their parents.

"In this court," Judge Criswell explains, "we don't talk much about crime. A child under our care becomes a ward in our custody, not a criminal in confinement. And, it seems to me, this is the only sensible way to treat him. You can't tell me that a kid is a criminal just because he's unhappy."

Because of his belief that parental irresponsibility is the cause of most juvenile delinquency, Judge Criswell has taken an active interest in the rehabilitation not only of children—but of their parents as well. In this work he had been aided by Jacksonville's social workers, its doctors, its churchmen and by Alcoholics Anonymous.

"If a parent has a bug in him," he says, "you've got to root it out before his child can really make a comeback."

"Teen-Towners" dance at club hall is highlight for Jacksonville's smart young set.



Members of club are youths who've taken keen interest in community life. THE END.

Flying For Fish in Maine

Two Portland girls, on a 360-mile plane jaunt "down east," visit an angler's paradise—and the big ones didn't get away

DEEP IN THE MAINE WOODS, some 20 miles from the Canadian border in the northwestern part of the state, is a lake with the fabulous, jaw-breaking name of Chemquassabamticook. (Maine residents, with the typical down-east instinct for brevity, simplify matters by calling it Lake Ross.) It is miles from any town and far from roads or forest trails. Literally alive with fat brook trout, the lake is a landlocked paradise for fishermen—that is, fishermen who can figure out a way to get there.

Patty Gould and Jean Dinsmore, two Portland girls, neatly solved that problem recently by flying to the lake for a day's fishing in a plane specially equipped with pontoons for water landings. They left Portland in the morning, made a landing on Moosehead Lake (Maine's largest) then took off again for Chemquassabamticook, arriving there about three hours after they had left home.

At the lake, the girls were met by Gene Letourneau, Maine sportsman, newspaper columnist and wildlife authority, who had flown up several days previously. Gene has been fishing in Maine lakes since his boyhood and knows Chemquassabamticook, as he says, "like the back of my hand." The surrounding territory is the kind of happy hunting ground that brings a gleam to a sportsman's eye. The woods abound in moose, deer and bear, while the lake itself is on the "flyway" for migrating ducks and geese. Spruce and fir growth push in a dense tangle to the water's edge, leaving little beach for canoe landings. The plane is virtually the only link to the outside world. Even the canoe used by Patty and Jean on their fishing trip had to be flown to the lake.

Breath-taking scenery like this is what the girls saw as they flew over Moosehead Lake.

On the west shore of the lake is a small log cabin — the solitary evidence of civilization. Here, Patty and Jean swapped their city clothes for hunting shirts and dungarees. Gene gave them a quick lesson in the fine art of fly casting and then paddled their canoe to the spot where he knew the trout were waiting. In a matter of minutes, the first one struck, and before long Patty and Jean caught five beauties, averaging, Gene estimated, about two and one-half pounds apiece. The girls kept only one fish each. The rest were thrown back into the lake, because Gene's rule is that you keep only what you can eat.

Patty and Jean paddled back to the cabin, stowed their baggage—and the fish —into the plane, then flew back to Portland to enjoy a dinner of fresh trout.

At the lake, Patty taxied the Stinson Voyager over to where guide Gene Letourneau waited in his canoe. She and Jean (standing) transferred their baggage from plane.

In primitive cabin, lone habitation on the lake, girls put on their fishing togs.

Pointers from Gene on trout flies and art of casting prepared girls for fishing.

Wild deer grazes unconcernedly as Patty, Jean and their guide head for trout lair.

Catch: Two two-and-one-half-pounders. Girls hooked five, kept only a pair of trout.

At the controls of her plane, Patty discusses the route back to Portland with Gene. It was Patty's first visit to Chemquassabamticook, Jean's first fishing trip. THE END.

KEY LARGO

Lauren Bacall and Humphrey Bogart are teamed again, this time in a screen version of "Key Largo," the Maxwell Anderson stage success. Bogart plays the disillusioned ex-Army major who meets up with a notorious gangster (Edward G. Robinson). Lauren is sulky and sultry, but best acting is done by veterans Bogart, Robinson and Lionel Barrymore, who is cast in role of crusty owner of gang's hideout. (W.B.)

EASTER IN JULY SHOULD NOT UPSET MOVIEGOERS

A DATE WITH JUDY

Elizabeth Taylor finds romance with Robert Stack (above) in "A Date with Judy." On the screen, familiar radio program is lightly-amusing and distinguished chiefly by the beauty of Miss Taylor who does Technicolor a favor every time she appears in it. Jane Powell plays the role of Judy; Elizabeth is her friend, Carol Pringle. Wallace Beery, Carmen Miranda and Xavier Cugat add shenanigans. (M.G.M.).

MR. BLANDINGS BUILDS HIS DREAM HOUSE

Everyone who has considered buying or building a home will enjoy Cary Grant and Myrna Loy (Mr. and Mrs. B.) in this whimsical adaptation of the best-seller. Their troubles and your laughs begin when they abandon city life, buy an old country place that topples in their faces. Often so true to life that it's embarrassing. (Selznick).

BY KAY SULLIVAN

WITH BLAND DISREGARD FOR THE SEASON, unless you call the shooting in "Key Largo" or "Street with No Name" fireworks, Hollywood has turned the calendar about and decreed Easter in July. "Easter Parade," an elaborate musical starring Fred Astaire, Judy Garland, Ann Miller and Peter Lawford, is a treat for eyes and ears. And if you think that Santa Claus belongs exclusively to snowtime, don't fail to see "Texas, Brooklyn and Heaven," a romantic comedy which has not one, but several of the white-whiskered gentlemen in its hilarious ending. July moviegoers will find some exceptional fare in store for them. Indeed, the sensitive performances of Peggy Cummins and Rex Harrison in "Escape," or the grimly-realistic treatment of crime in "Street with no Name" is worth skipping a weekend at the beach.

EASTER PARADE

Ann Miller has dreamed of dancing with Fred Astaire ever since she broke into movies. Her dream comes true in "Easter Parade," a spectacular Technicolor musical which blends music, dancing and comedy in showmanly fashion. There's a plot thrown in somewhere about a dancer (Mr. Astaire), two pretty dancing partners (Miss Miller and Judy Garland) and a rich playboy (Peter Lawford), but happily it's well buried beneath an extra-large order of dancing, music and high jinks. Nimble-footed Astaire proves as adept as ever at his own elaborate brand of stepping. But the best part of this story of Broadway circa 1912 is the scintillating musical score. Nobody, but nobody can write like the inimitable Irving Berlin. Even in July, Easter can seem logical under these circumstances.(M.G.M.).

TEXAS, BROOKLYN AND HEAVEN

Shapely Diana Lynn discovers that working as a Coney Island entertainer is not the job for her in this involved story of a boy and girl who leave Texas to find fortune in New York and find each other instead. The boy is Guy Madison, whose handsome appearance rates higher than his acting. There are lots of laughs in the film. (U. A.).

ESCAPE

Peggy Cummins and Rex Harrison are a talented and unforgettable duo in the suspenseful "Escape." The John Galsworthy story tells how Harrison, unjustly imprisoned, escapes but is mercilessly hunted down. Peggy Cummins is the girl who befriends him, finally inspires him to finish sentence. (Filmed in England by 20th-Century Fox.)

THE STREET WITH NO NAME

Would-be bank robbers would do well to see this chilling story of the ceaseless, scientific battle waged by the F.B.I. against criminals. Richard Widmark plays the role of gang leader; Mark Stevens, the agent who tracks him down. One of a long line of documentaries, this has punch throughout, a dramatic finale. (20th). THE END.

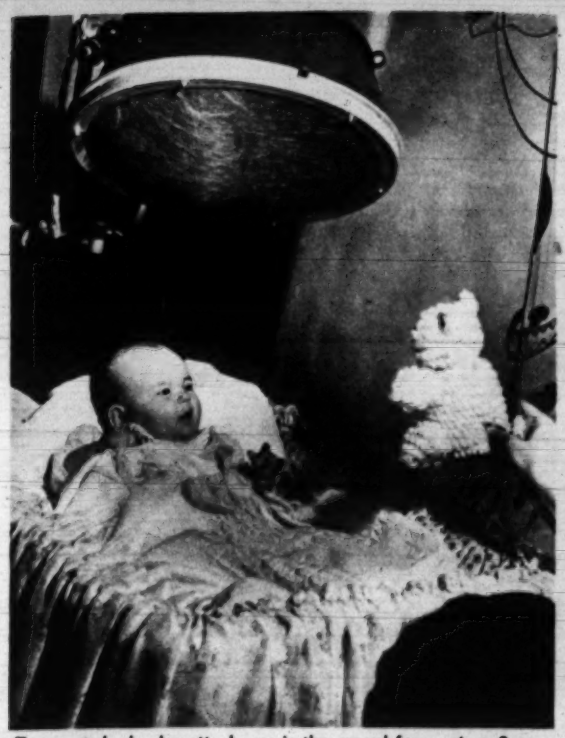
MOPPETS begin glamor careers in cradles

TIME WAS WHEN YOUNG LADIES endowed with that highly desirable attribute called glamor waited until they reached the ripe old age of 18 or 20 before turning on their charm for magazine photographers. Today, a modeling career begins in the bassinet. Babies ranging in age from six months to one year are registered with model agencies for commercial photography work. They are paid on an average of $10 an hour for posing, sometimes earn as high as $100 a week, and have their own social security cards.

Some leading camera favorites, who often appear in magazine ads or on covers, are pictured on these pages. Registered with the Harry Conover model agency in New York, they were chosen for that photogenic appeal which can cause several million magazine readers to exclaim, "How cute!"

Mothers with their photogenic progeny wait at a model agency for interviews and possible bookings. Studio directors and photographers look for alertness, mobility of expression. As a rule, posing is limited to an hour a day.

"Interviewing" tiny models is Harry Conover, head of model agency, with whom mothers confer on assignments.



Toy puts baby Loretta Lowe in the mood for posing. Spun-glass shield on flood lamp protects her face from heat.

Coaxing smiles from infants tests ingenuity of camera crew Some models remain with same agency from babyhood.

Ad in which Linda (right) appears fails to impress her, as Jean Reeve, Conover executive, shows mothers. THE END.

THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Al fresco feasting is fun for the Fourth of July, especially if you serve a delicious Chicken Barbecue.

Chicken Barbecue

THERE'S A LONG WEEK-END coming up next week, to celebrate the glorious Fourth. We can count on one ideal day for the picnic among the three, so let's plan ahead right now. As American as Independence Day itself is the barbecue. Whether you pack a portable grill in the car, or set it up in your own back yard, the tantalizing fragrance of charcoal-broiled chicken will whip all appetites to a new high. Make the savory barbecue sauce well ahead of time. As soon as the chicken is done, it is a matter of minutes to heat quick-frozen French-fried potatoes to sizzling goodness in a heavy frying pan over the glowing coals. With a crisp, cool cucumber salad and cheese-stuffed dill-pickle slices for extra measure, the meal is ready. For dessert we would choose fruit and cookies topped-off with satisfying hot or iced coffee.

Ingredients for barbecue sauce are measured into a saucepan.

A dish mop, kept for this purpose, is perfect for basting the barbecue.

An apple corer hollows out dill pickles for cheese stuffing. THE END.

Chicken Barbecue

1 (8 oz.) can tomato sauce
1 can water
1 tbsp. grated onion
⅛ tsp. powdered sage
¼ tsp. dry mustard
1 lemon, juice
1 teaspoon salt
Dash cayenne
1 tsp. sugar
1 garlic clove
Few grains pepper
½ cup melted fat
¼ tsp. rosemary
3 broilers, halved

Measure first eleven ingredients into a saucepan. Simmer 20 minutes. Remove garlic. Melt fat slowly with rosemary. Brush broilers on both sides with this mixture. Place on grill over glowing coals, skin side down. Broil 5 minutes; turn; broil 5 minutes. Add any remaining melted fat to barbecue sauce, and baste the broilers. Continue grilling and basting for ¾ to 1 hour, turning frequently. When chicken is done to a turn, serve piping hot. Yield: 6 servings.

Pickle Kings

3 large dill pickles
1 jar pimento spread

Cut a slice from each end of pickle; scoop out pulp, leaving thin shell. (Add chopped pulp to salad dressing.) Stuff pickles with cheese; replace cut slices at open ends of pickles. Chill thoroughly. When ready to serve, cut in crosswise slices.

"Sweet and slow" is Guy Lombardo's formula for success. His style, both sneered at and imitated, has made him all-time endurance king of bandleaders.

SOME LIKE IT SWEET

And that's the way Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians have been playing it since 1923

IF A JIVE-MADDENED HEP-CAT ever tries to convince you that Guy Lombardo's music brought about the 1929 market crash, don't believe a word of it.

It is true, however, that on October 29, 1929, prices on the New York Stock Exchange fell through the floor. And it is also true that Lombardo and his Royal Canadians that evening opened an 18-year-run at the Roosevelt Grill in New York.

It was "Black Thursday" on Wall Street but, to Lombardo, it was the sunniest day of his life.

In their debut, the Royal Canadians played to a sparsely-occupied and heavy-hearted house. In their now famed hurdy-gurdy style, they ground out Stardust, My Blue Heaven and I Love You Truly and, finally they brought down the house with I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby, a piece that seemed to fit the mood of the evening.

Last fall, the Royal Canadians opened their 18th season at the Roosevelt. In the years between, bands had come and gone, but Lombardo had remained as big as ever. In 1947, the Royal Canadians won their usual honors. They grossed more than a million dollars and topped all bands in recording sales. A radio editors poll named them the band-of-the-year, and Down Beat—the professional musicians' magazine—recrowned their leader "the king of corn."

Canadians Can Do No Wrong

TO CONNOISSEURS, Lombardo's saccharine-sweet, slightly sticky music sounds as though it were blown through instruments filled with water, but to fans who like it sweet, the Royal Canadians can do no wrong; and millions like it sweet.

Despite their sneers, many bandleaders have tried to mimic Lombardo's technique. They have tootled off-key, wadded the bells of their horns with cotton and played their saxophones with gloves on. But they never quite make it.

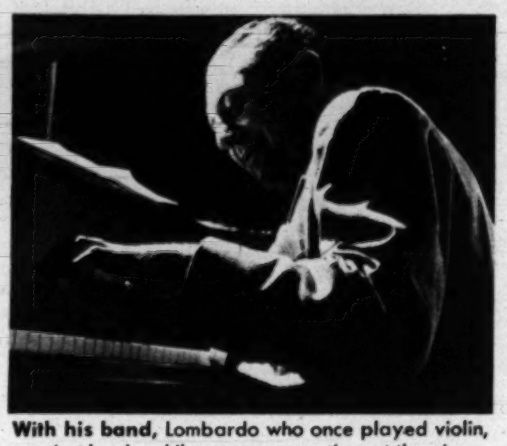
This mystifies the successful Lombardo. "Our style is sweet and simple," he says. "We're not trying to make anybody mad."

Lombardo was born in London, Ontario, in 1902, the son of an Italian tailor who brought musical instruments home for the kids. Guy started on the violin and organized his first band in 1923 with two of his brothers, Carmen and Lebert, and seven other boys, six of whom are with him still. Their first engagement was at a hometown dance.

The band later was joined by another brother, Victor; a sister, Rose Marie, and a brother-in-law, Kenny Gardner. Guy's fourth brother, Joe, can't play a note. He's an interior decorator and has decorated Guy's home on Long Island, their parents new home in Greenwich, Conn., and the Hotel Roosevelt Grill.

At the wheel of his speedboat, Tempo VI, Lombardo roars past judges' stand during 1946 Gold Cup race at Detroit, which he won in record time. Next to his music, Lombardo's greatest love is speedboats.

Boats in any form are Lombardo's hobby. Here he gives tips on hull design to five Boys' club members.



With his band, Lombardo who once played violin, now just leads, whiles away spare time at the piano.

Lombardo's boat is docked near his home in Freeport, L. I., designed by his brother Joe. There, Guy lives quiet life of country squire and yachtsman with his wife and their wire-haired terrier "Sparky."

In 1924 the Royal Canadians, who had made a marked impression on Canadian audiences, opened at a lake-front club in Cleveland. On the night of their debut, the band played enthusiastically for more than an hour when the club's manager called Guy aside and asked him when he was going to stop tuning up.

"Leave me alone," said Lombardo. "I'm playing for people in love."

Success Came in New York

LATER THE BAND MOVED TO Chicago, the jazz mecca of the bootleg era, and opened at a club occasionally patronized by leaders of the gangland set. On one occasion, the band was playing "I Got a Woman Crazy for Me" when a yegg-man at a band-side table emptied the contents of his sawed-off shotgun into a couple of business associates. Pandemonium followed.

The next day the band left for New York.

Once established at the Roosevelt, Lombardo's rise was rapid. During the 1930s his band led all the rest and even in the war years the Royal Canadians held their lead. Right now, Lombardo's following is greater than ever.

Today, Lombardo, secure in his position in the world of music, has turned to other interests. He owns a speedboat with which he has been threatening Gar Wood's 16-year-old American motorboat record; he runs an airline from New York to Westhampton, L. I., and he is now recording his own radio show.

In all these pursuits Lombardo has been so successful that it often astounds him. Luck, he feels, has been continually with him. "And just think," he says, "it began on Black Thursday."

HY GARDNER'S NEWSREEL

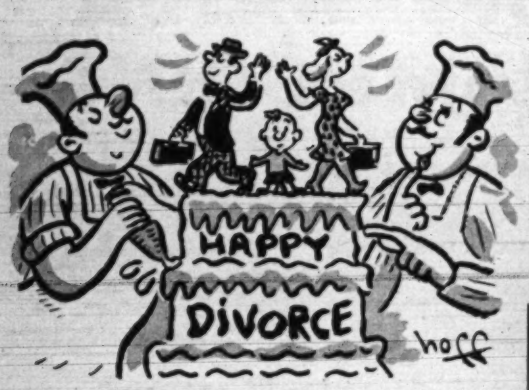
THE AMERICAN DIVORCEE, CLASS OF '48 . . . The divorce rate has gone up so frightfully, divorce can almost be considered a major American industry. Yet, the subject has its humorous aspects, as well as its heartbreaks.

In New York, Wilma, a fashion salon, designs just as many divorce gowns as wedding gowns—probably for the same patrons . . .

In some communities, divorcees now wear Parisian-inspired black wedding rings to show they're ready for a second whirl . . .

Another new vogue is the Divorce Shower. Some break-ups being friendly ones, the ex-groom throws a back-in-circulation party for his ex-bride, inviting all her pre-marital bachelor friends to attend. The reverse side of the invitation carries a replica of their divorce decree . . .

Even the traditional wedding cake has competition. A Hollywood caterer is doing a thriving business selling "Divorce Cakes." These are similar to wedding cakes, except that the familiar little figures of the bride and groom are dressed in sportsclothes, and walk in opposite directions. There's even a new superstition created around this festive delicacy: if you tuck a slice of divorce cake under your pillow, you'll never get married again! . . .



According to the personnel director of a Hartford, Conn., firm employing hundreds of girls, he has less trouble with divorcees than with previously unentangled gals. "They make better permanent help," he claims. "Divorcees don't suddenly up and quit to get married. Once they're burned they're afraid of matches and worry more about furthering a career than trapping a husband!"

Down under, in Australia, a newspaper conducted a survey to determine the state of minds of a hundred men and women who'd broken up their marriages. Thirty-seven per cent said they were reasonably happy, but still had doubts that things couldn't have been smoothed over if they hadn't been too hasty; 16 per cent gloated that single blessedness made them feel years younger; 23 per cent took on new spouses within two years; nine per cent wed again within six months and six per cent remarried before the ink dried on their decrees . . . Seven per cent married the same wife a second time; one per cent married the same wife a third time . . .

Probably the most devastating commentary on divorce is one attributed (perhaps apocryphally) to Winston Churchill. Comedian Vic Oliver, once married to Churchill's daughter, supposedly asked his father-in-law who he thought would emerge as the outstanding leader of World War II. "Why Mussolini, of course," nodded Churchill. "Mussolini?" gasped his ex-son-in-law, "how do you figure that out, sir?" "Because," the sharp-tongued statesman reportedly snapped, "he at least had the good sense to shoot his son-in-law!"

Parades's Guest Quiz...

VERNON L. CLARK

PARADE'S QUIZ MASTER today is Vernon L. Clark, a Des Moines business man and volunteer national director of the United States Savings Bonds Division. Americans own around $31 billion in Series E Bonds, and the chances are that you are probably among the owners. How much do you know about your bonds? Here's a test which will confirm your judgement in buying savings bonds regularly through the payroll plan where you work, or, if self-employed, through the bond-a-month plan where you bank. Answers will be found at bottom of this page.

1. How many people are on the payroll savings plans where they work and buy savings bonds every payday?

2. Approximately how much does each of the above individuals save each month in the form of savings bonds?

3. What is the total monthly savings of the above group?

4. Can you ever lose a penny of your savings in savings bonds?

5. Is the payroll savings plan for buying bonds a new idea?

6. How much do savings bonds earn for you?

7. How much can you save through the payroll savings plan if you save $18.75 monthly out of your pay and buy bonds?

8. Do you actually "buy" United States Savings Bonds?

9. How much total interest is being paid each month to Americans who own savings bonds now?

10. Does it cost you anything to join the payroll savings plan?

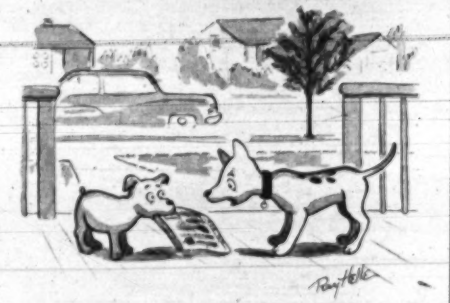
11. Can the self-employed buy savings bonds regularly?

12. What is the limit on the amount of Series E Savings Bonds any American can buy in any calender year?

13. Are there any Americans who are not eligible to buy United States Savings Bonds?

THE WEEK...

IF YOU SEE ODD CONTRAPTIONS flying through the air this week, don't get alarmed. Chances are they're gliders beating air tracks to Elmira, N. Y., for Wednesday's 15th National Soaring Contest at Harris Hill, "The glider capital of America." But, the week isn't solely set aside for gliders. Included in a varied assortment of events are: TODAY: Midsummer field archery tournament at Eden, N. Y.; AAA auto races at Williams Grove, Pa., and Tri-State singing convention at Linville, N. C. MONDAY: Anniversary of the establishment of Church of England by Henry VIII in 1491. TUESDAY: Feast of Sts. Peter and Paul and primary election day in North Dakota. THURSDAY: Frontier days rodeo, continuing through the Fourth at Prescott, Ariz.; Hollywood Bowl's centennial pageant, and opening of statewide bass season in Pennsylvania. FRIDAY: Continuing through July 9 is Iced Tea Week; national convention of 82nd Airborne Division in New York City; Valley Hunt Club horse show at Bradford, Pa., and Bay Area industrial exposition at San Francisco. SATURDAY: New York State horseshoe pitching tourney in New York City; All-Indian Powwow at Flagstaff, Ariz.; 58th anniversary of Idaho's admittance to the union and the big Firemen's Jubilee at Linesville, Pa.



"Boy, are you going to catch the devil. You're holding it by the race results."

ANSWERS TO PARADE'S GUEST QUIZ

1. 7,500,000. 2. $20 per employee. 3. $150 million. 4. No, because they are never redeemable for less than you paid for them. If you should lose your bonds through fire, theft or loss, the Treasury Department will issue new bonds dated the same as the original bonds. 5. No. It was started in 1935 when the Treasury first issued this type of savings bond. It was then known as a "baby" bond. 6. One dollar for every three dollars if held for ten years. 7. In one year, $225; in five years, $1,159.44; in ten years, $2,498.94. 8. No. You can't spend money on savings bonds. They actually cost you nothing for you still have your money in your hand. You merely take these interest bearing securities from your government in place of the dollar bills which do not earn any interest. 9. $106 million. 10. No. Your employer bears the entire expense. 11. Yes. Through the bond-a-month plan where they bank. 12. $10,000 maturity value. 13. Yes. Two Americans, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Treasurer of the United States are forbidden by an Act of Congress from buying any U. S. Government securities.

On horseback, uniformed members of El Paso's Sheriff's Posse ride the open range on one of their frequent maneuvers.

The Posse Rides Again

El Paso's unique band of horsemen act as law enforcement auxiliary

POSSES ARE RIDING AGAIN — not in the sense of old vigilante days, but as law enforcement auxiliaries with decided social overtones. The modern models—called Sheriff's Posses—are groups of business, professional and cattle men banded together to preserve traditions of the old Southwest and, at the same time, serve their communities.

Pattern for the Sheriff's Posses, rapidly spreading throughout the West, is the one at El Paso, Tex., a hardy group of 125 which strikes a neat balance between sport and duty. Founded in 1936, members are commissioned deputy sheriffs and in emergencies are called out by El Paso County's Sheriff Allan G. Falby who is free in praise of the posse.

"It has taken an active and highly important part in law enforcement duties," he proudly declares. "During the war the members performed invaluable service to our community. Practically every one took intensive training in a F.B.I. course. They are always ready for duty, and I never hesitate to call them. In all these years there has never been a case of a man abusing the privileges which membership gives, or dodging the responsibilities which it demands. The men have often been used in roadblocks and have covered highway intersections, both in manhunts and on traffic assignment."

At other times, the posse promotes good fellowship and an interest in horses. Each member owns a steed and is responsible for its care and for his riding equipment. Non-political and non-sectarian, members range from bank president to cowhand. Financial standing or social position play no part in the operation of the organization. For example, the mayor of El Paso is a rank-and-file member. At posse breakfasts he washes his own dishes and, on the range, carries his own bedroll.

The posse in El Paso is a law enforcement auxiliary of Sheriff Allan G. Falby's forces.

Two years ago, the group bought a 24-acre area, dubbed it "Cowboy Park" and set up official headquarters. Here, members gather on Sunday mornings for western-style breakfast. Rodeos and races are held regularly. For novices trying their hand at roping, calves are replaced by more tractable goats. At parades and other important civic functions, the posse serves as a mounted guard of honor.

President of the El Paso group is Calvert C. Tucker, head of a natural gas company. He looks forward to the day when every county will have a posse.

"It creates a wonderful spirit of fellowship and answers a definite need as an aid to the law enforcement bodies of the community," he says. "The sheriff of any county in the country can do the same thing that has been done here. In El Paso we have a loyal, volunteer force of good citizens on hand to meet emergencies. Holding a Sheriff's posse card is not just a courtesy. It is an honor and carries with it a duty which we cherish and respect."

Posse members stable their horses at Cowboy Park, 24-acre headquarters on the outskirts of El Paso. The more hardy often go on taxing 150-mile rides.

El Paso Possemen Mix Duty With Pleasure

At Sheriff Allan Falby's call group is ready for action

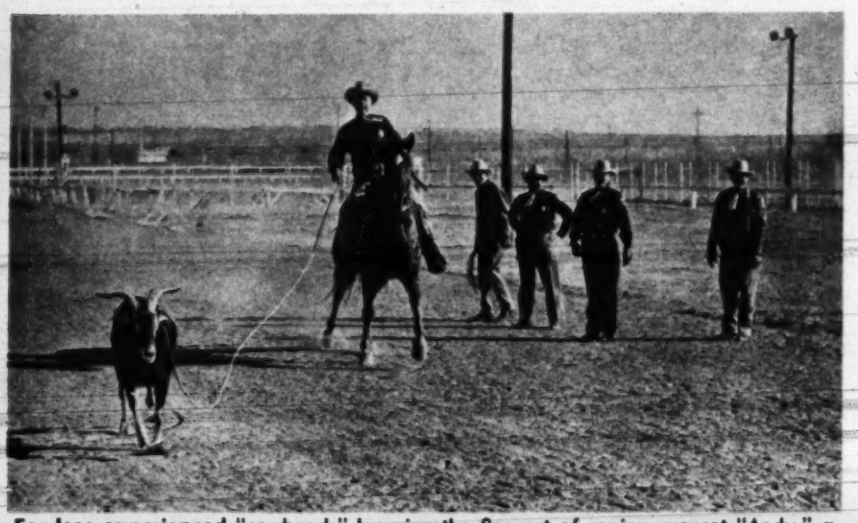
EL PASO'S UNIQUE SHERIFF'S Posse is a versatile group. One day, hard-riding possemen may scour the countryside for an escaped prisoner. Twenty-four hours later will find them patrolling the Mexican border to thwart illegal immigration. Whatever it might be "they do it speedily and well" in the words of Sheriff Allan G. Falby.

Scarcely a week goes by without a call to comb the desert or mountains for lost hunters or tourists. Less hectic jobs put members in the role of traffic officers. This is particularly so on holidays when visitors flock to town in unusually large numbers.

Generally, possemen on duty are mounted, but in an emergency they speed to a troubled area in cars. The organization is by no means strictly a law-enforcement body. Week ends at Cowboy Park are set aside for social activities, and non-member bids are eagerly sought. The park's autocratic caretaker is Mrs. Lottie Shaw. She and her husband "run" the place, and even the boldest posseman listens attentively when she expounds a grievance.

The official uniform includes a ten-gallon hat, short yellow tie, maroon shirt, boots and spurs, with trousers of the wearer's choice. Of paramount importance, however, are the badge and shoulder patch. Members supply their own uniforms, but the badge always remains the posse's property.

Merrymaking possemen stand in line as Bob Paschal, the day's chef, serves portions of ham and eggs at western-style breakfast, a regular Sunday morning ceremony at park.



For less experienced "cowhands" learning the fine art of roping, mascot "Andy," a goat, substitutes for a calf. When not on active duty, men gather for a day's sport.

No old-time powwow in the Southwest is complete without the traditional poker game. Revolvers on the table here are just for atmosphere. Except when called out by the sheriff, guns are never loaded.

There's nothing quite like a prairie campfire to induce song and jest. It also helps on a nippy eve.

Sometimes, the boys experience a bit of woe shedding their boots, particularly after a strenuous day.

In an emergency, the sheriff summons the posse. Here, Calvert Tucker, president, gets ready for duty.

When a prisoner recently broke jail, the posse trailed him to the banks of the Rio Grande. THE END.

Are you letting your daughter enter Marriage Blindly?

Every Bride Should Know These Intimate Physical Facts . . .

Before a girl marries she should be fully aware how necessary douching often is to intimate feminine cleanliness, health, marriage happiness, to combat odor and after menstrual periods. In fact, the question today is NOT whether to douche, but rather WHAT to put in the douche.

Here's Scientific Truth You Can Trust: Scientists tested every generally known antiseptic-germicide they could find on sale for the douche. And NO OTHER type liquid antiseptic-germicide tested proved SO POWERFUL yet SO SAFE to tissues. This ZONITE principle was developed by a world-famous Surgeon and an eminent Chemist. What better recommendation could you desire?

Cautions Against Weak or Dangerous Products

Pity the old-fashioned woman who, from ignorant advice of friends, still uses salt, soda or vinegar for the douche. Foolish woman! Doesn't she realize these 'kitchen makeshifts' are NOT germicides in the douche? They never in this world can give the great germicidal action of ZONITE with its marvelous deodorizing properties.

Yet ZONITE is so inexpensive, any woman should be able to afford its wonderful benefits.

A Modern Miracle!

ZONITE positively contains no phenol, no mercury—no harsh acids—overstrong solutions of which may damage tissues and in time even impair functional activity of mucous glands.

You can use ZONITE as directed as often as needed without the slightest risk of injury. It's absolutely non-irritating, non-burning, non-poisonous.

ZONITE actually destroys and removes odor-causing, clinging waste substances. Helps guard against infection. It immediately kills every germ it touches. You know it's not always possible to contact all the germs in the tract. But you can BE SURE ZONITE DOES kill every reachable germ and keeps them from multiplying. Scientific douching directions with every bottle.

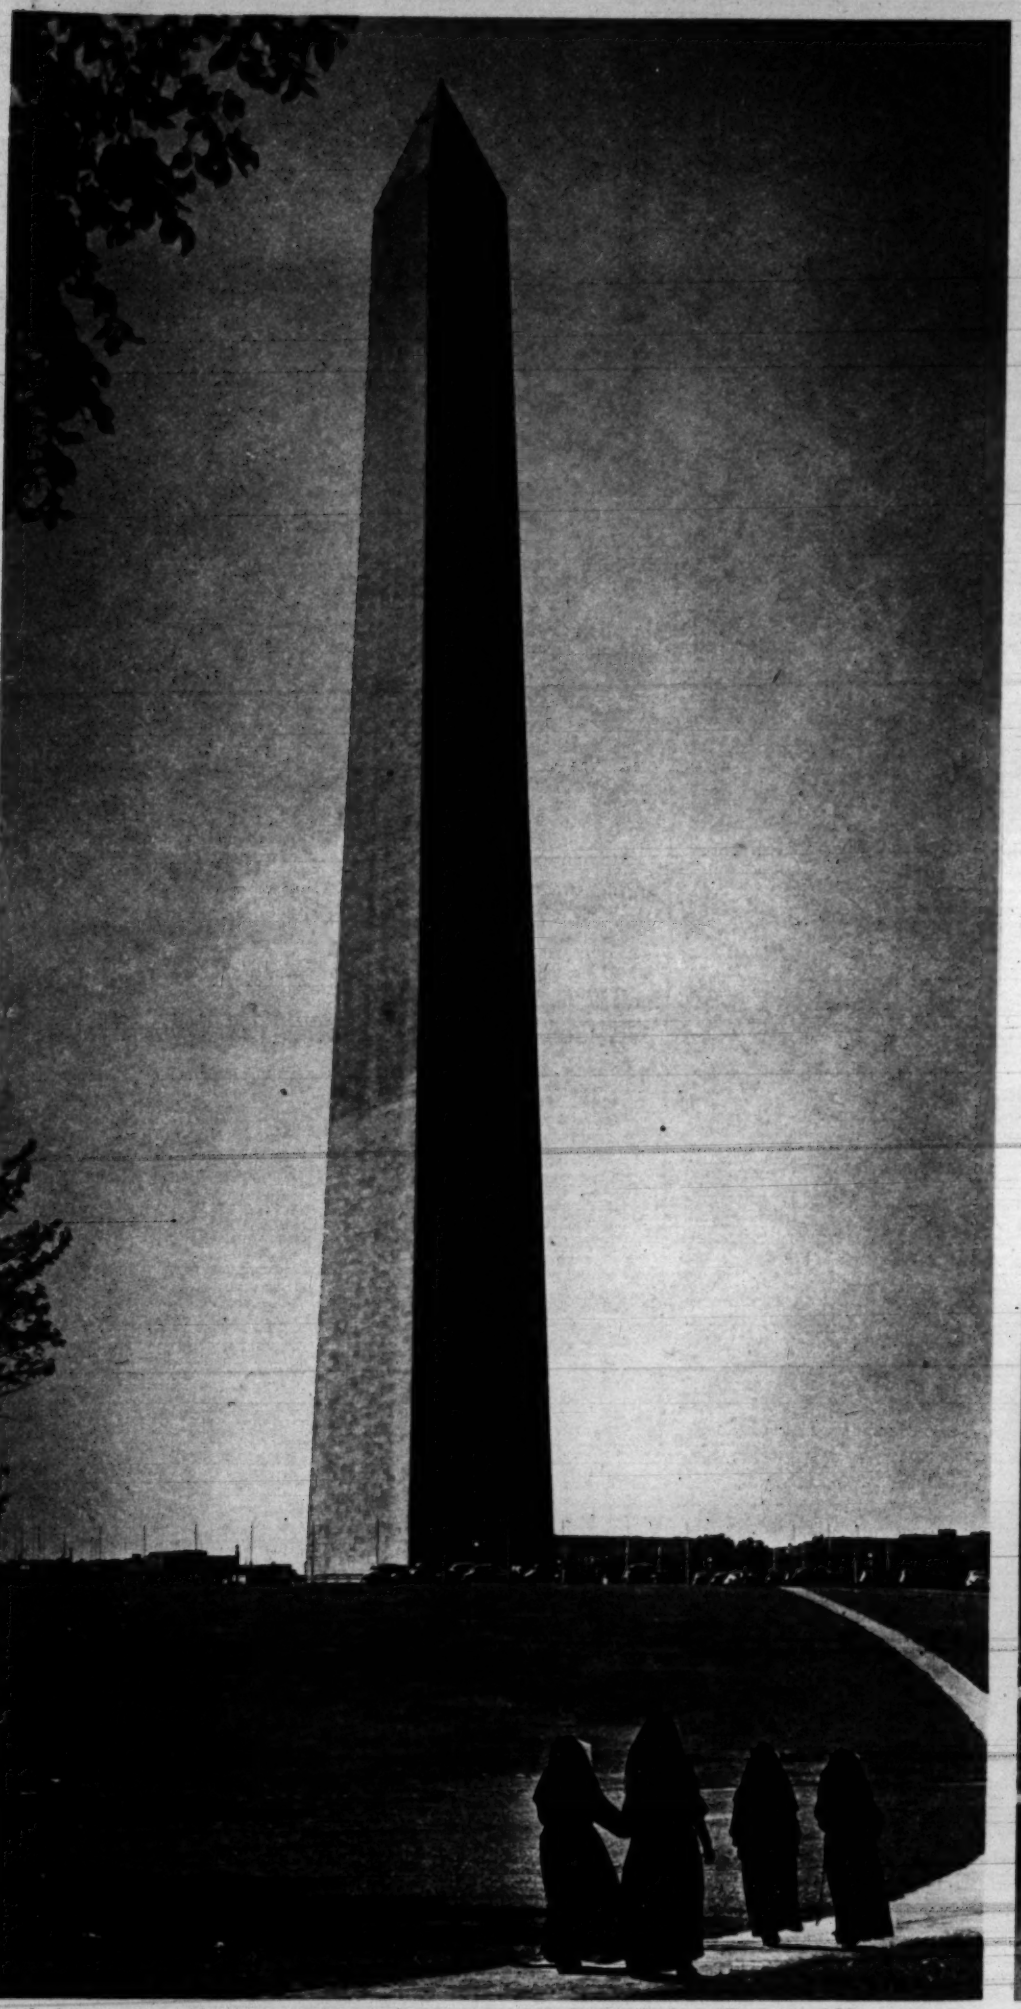
It's a Rugged Climb to Top of a Mountain Peak

The rugged range in Teton Grand National Park, Jackson's Hole, Wyom., annually attracts hundreds of the nation's most hardy mountain climbers.

Next week, PARADE goes to the top of its highest peak, 13,766 feet above sea level, with renowned climber Walter Prager and his wife, Eleanor.



A pilgrimage to the Washington Monument: four nuns head for the obelisk which is 555 feet high, 55 square feet at the base. There are 898 steps to top of monument. It will be 100 years old, next Sunday.

All roads lead to Washington: Driving from Virginia this couple crosses the Potomac River for view of the Great Emancipator's statue.

MASS MARCH TO NATION'S SHRINES

DURING THE WAR YEARS, THE CITY of Washington, D.C., bulged with government agencies, servicemen, and civilian employees. The tourist trade was at a standstill. Sightseeing was virtually limited to a cautious peep past an Army guard. And the folks from home were too busy at war work, or overseas far from the capital city. But now, once again, the tourist trade headed for Washington is booming. Old-fashioned tourists, as well as world-travelers, are on the move. Surveys reveal that approximately 3,000,000 sightseers visited the capital's historical institutions last year. City authorities predict an increase in local business volume of $60,000,000 a year.

In addition to the home folks, foreign dignitaries consider our capital an international mecca. Judging by the ever-increasing influx of United Nations visitors, Washington is fast becoming the favorite sightseeing city of the world.

Most frequented shrines include, Mount Vernon, the White House, the Capitol, the Smithsonian Institute, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, the Washington Monument, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier—and, in spring of course, the cherry blossoms.

They come by ship and plane, bus, auto and train. The young and energetic make the rounds on bicycles, stopping for photos of White House.

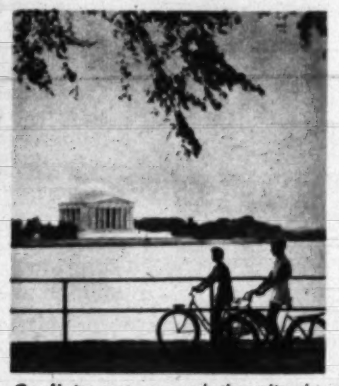
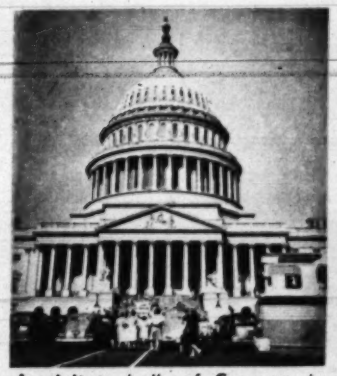
After exploring the Capitol building, a group on tour listens to girl guide explain the paintings which line the famous dome.

About a dozen different touring lines operate in city, offering guide-lecturers with each tour.

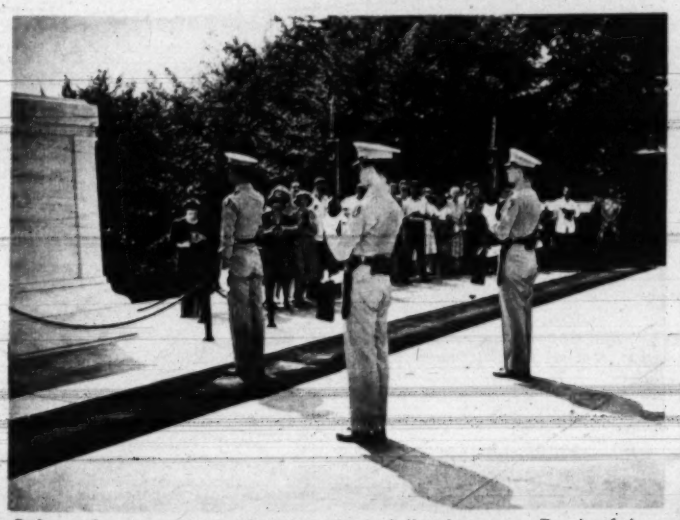


Cyclists get around the city in leisurely fashion, pausing at a lake to see Jefferson Memorial.



A visit to halls of Congress is a must for all visitors. Entrance and dome are in the background.

A replica of the statue which graces capitol dome draws sightseers at the Smithsonian Institute.



Solemn homage is paid to America's fallen heroes at Tomb of the Unknown Soldier as the change of the guard assures vigil. THE END.

What Do You Think About the Movies?

A few weeks ago, PARADE sent a wire recorder-photographic team to Charleston, S. C., to find out what average youngsters think about present-day America. To continue this series of word of mouth reports, PARADE takes you to Houston, Tex., next week, to find out what the average moviegoer thinks of the movies.

COMFORT

Kills dandruff germs removes loose dandruff—makes hair shining, soft, easy to comb and keep in place.*

NEW "DOUBLE-ACTION"
HAIR IMPROVER

Rub Lucky Tiger on your hair and briskly into your scalp. See how loose dandruff goes, how itching is relieved, how fresh your scalp feels. Lucky Tiger kills on contact the germ *pityrosporum ovale called by many authorities a cause of infectious dandruff. And see how your hair gleams, how easily it falls in place at a touch of your comb. Note, how it stays in place far longer. At drug stores, barber shops, get Lucky Tiger Regular—or Lucky Tiger with Oil, if hair is extra dry.

New R. D. X. tablets help you to help yourself reduce

If you've been putting off reducing because you have more than your share of "human nature" and can't seem to resist fattening foods, here's what you've been waiting for!

R.D.X. tablets are made to help you curb your desire for fattening foods. You eat many foods you choose and like.

No longer need you torture yourself with violent exercise or take the risk of dangerous drugs. No longer need you have pangs of conscience—and be fat!—because you can't stick to a reducing diet.

The R.D.X. plan may help you lose unwanted pounds while you eat three meals a day of certain foods you like and choose.

How R. D. X. Helps Reducers

You don't like what you see in your mirror. The clothes you can no longer get into are a constant reminder that you are stouter than you should be. But it's hard to stay on a reducing diet when you crave fattening foods.

Here's how R.D.X. tablets help you. Taken before meals, they safely help to curb your appetite for unneeded foods. Taken between meals R.D.X. tablets help stave off the hunger pangs that cause you to overindulge in fattening snacks. Thus reducing becomes more pleasant, a more enjoyable way of eating.

Your Doctor Should Approve

Has your doctor told you to take off weight? Then ask him about the wonderful new R.D.X. tablets and Reducing plan in each package.

R.D.X. tablets contain no harmful drugs and are a new development of a known nutritional principle.

R.D.X. is a dietary supplement for reducers, consisting chiefly of a high concentrate of ascorbic acid in a high grade protein base.

Let The Scales Show You

You do want to lose weight, don't you? Perhaps nothing could make you happier than trimming off some of your extra body fat. Then do this: Buy a package of R.D.X. tablets. Read the R.D.X. Reducing plan enclosed—and follow it implicitly for just ten days.

See if you don't actually feel better and look better while the scales show how unwanted pounds disappear!

What's more, the R.D.X. plan helps you to keep your weight where you want it, without depriving yourself of many foods you enjoy.

NOTE: R.D.X. is not a reducing drug—R.D.X. is a dieting aid designed to help you control your appetite for fattening foods.

Which of These "Human Nature" Habits Is Keeping You Fat?

Can't Resist Fattening Foods?	Eating Between-Meal Snacks?	Icebox Raiding At Bedtime?
Eating more than you need for your energy requirements puts pounds on you. R.D.X. tablets should help you to eat less.	Too many tidbits and sweets may pile unwanted fat on you. R.D.X. tablets should help satisfy between-meal hunger.	It's only human nature to want something to eat at bedtime. R.D.X. tablets should help you to curb this habit.

R.D.X. TABLETS HELP YOU EAT LESS AND STILL ENJOY THAT SATISFIED FEELING!

"PROVE-IT-YOURSELF" TRIAL OFFER!

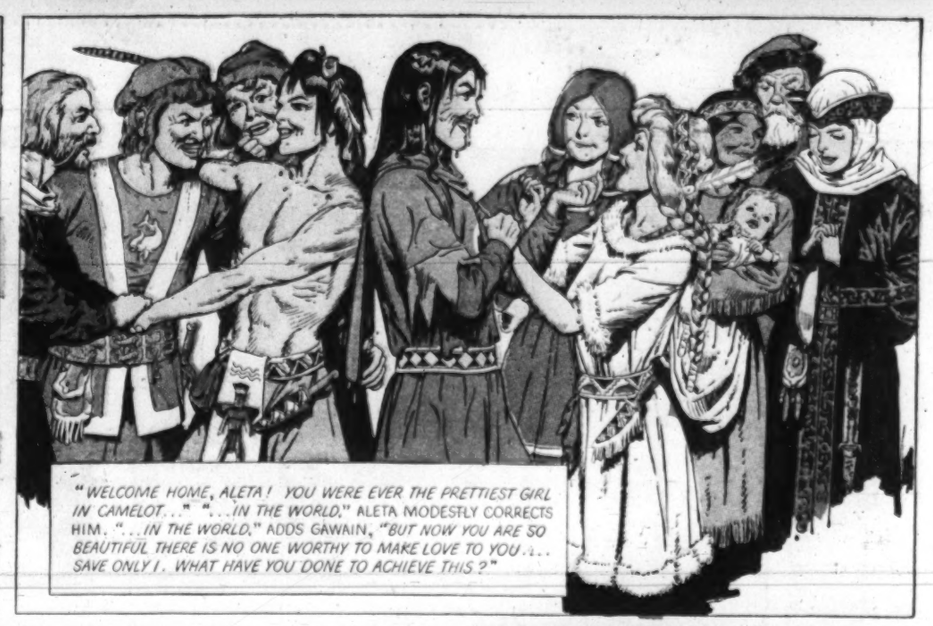
Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Registered U. S. Patent Office

Synopsis: SO PRINCE VALIANT AND ALETA, DRESSED IN INDIAN COSTUME AND PADDLING A BIRCHBARK CANOE, RETURN ONCE AGAIN TO CAMELOT. THE MEETING OF VAL AND SIR GAWAIN IS ALL THAT COULD BE EXPECTED OF THESE TWO.

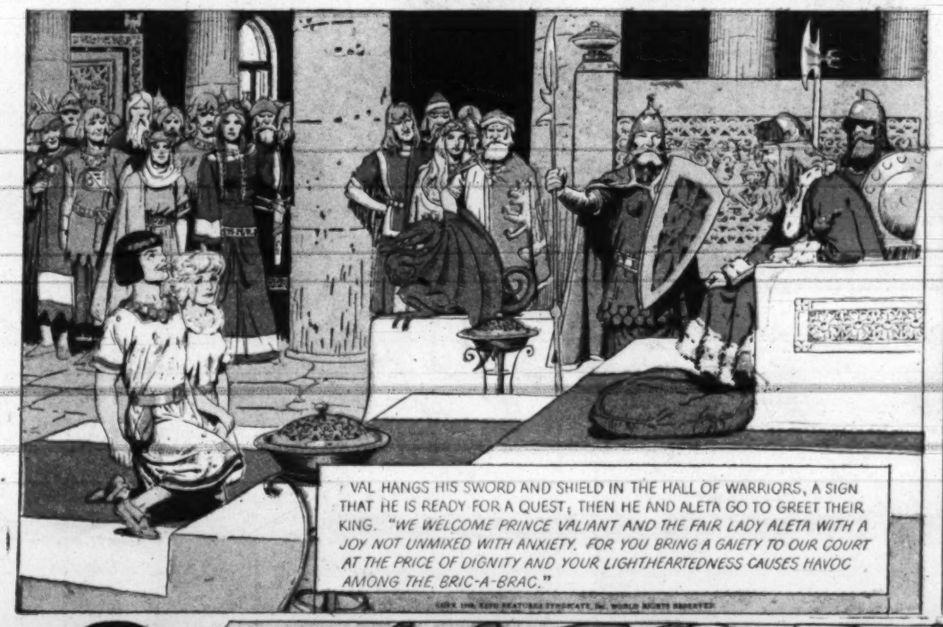


"WELCOME HOME, ALETA! YOU WERE EVER THE PRETTIEST GIRL IN CAMELOT.." "...IN THE WORLD," ALETA MODESTLY CORRECTS HIM. "...IN THE WORLD," ADDS GAWAIN, "BUT NOW YOU ARE SO BEAUTIFUL THERE IS NO ONE WORTHY TO MAKE LOVE TO YOU... SAVE ONLY I. WHAT HAVE YOU DONE TO ACHIEVE THIS?"

"RAD A BABY," LAUGHS ALETA, PLACING ARN IN HIS ARMS. AN EFFECTIVE WAY TO SCARE A BACHELOR INTO SILENCE!

THERE WILL BE EXCITING DAYS AHEAD FOR ALETA; IN HER ABSENCE THE FASHIONS HAVE CHANGED! SHE WILL HAVE TO HAVE A WHOLE NEW WARDROBE!

BUT FOR VAL THERE IS NO CHANGE IN STYLE, HE TAKES HIS BATTLE-SCARRED ARMOR DOWN TO THE SMITHY TO HAVE THE DENTS STRAIGHTENED OUT.



VAL HANGS HIS SWORD AND SHIELD IN THE HALL OF WARRIORS, A SIGN THAT HE IS READY FOR A QUEST; THEN HE AND ALETA GO TO GREET THEIR KING. "WE WELCOME PRINCE VALIANT AND THE FAIR LADY ALETA WITH A JOY NOT UNMIXED WITH ANXIETY, FOR YOU BRING A GAIETY TO OUR COURT AT THE PRICE OF DIGNITY AND YOUR LIGHTHEARTEDNESS CAUSES HAVOC AMONG THE BRIC-A-BRAC."

HAL FOSTER

WHILE KING ARTHUR IS HAVING A BIT OF FUN AT VAL'S EXPENSE QUITE ANOTHER KIND OF KING PLANS TO PROFIT AT ARTHUR'S EXPENSE.

NEXT WEEK— Val's First Quest.
